WALL ST. CLOSE

Today

Money Cheap. Also Wheat. Magnificent Targets. Multiply by 10 and 3. Disaster in Texas.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MONEY WAS CHEAP yesterday, only three per cent, "on call." But even that favorite tool of Wall Street failed to put up stocks.

Wheat was cheap also, barely above a dollar a bushel, which is bad news for farmers, and everyone else.

Spring wheat prospects are excellent, export demand is small. As usual, the farmer finds that when he has it he cannot get a fair price for it.

If war came, that battleship would need all possible protection. Bombs from the air, or torpedoes from submarines, would sink it before the marines could put on their life preservers — if they have any. Such a ship, with its thousands of men, is a $50,000,000 target for an airplane with a crew of two or three.

AS THE GREAT ships paraded, one hundred forty naval war planes, magnificently handled, flew overhead, in perfect formation. Every ship below them would have been at their mercy in real war.

And the 140 fighting airships cost less than one-third the price of one first-class battleship.

Multiply the 140 fighting planes by ten, multiply the result by three, and you will not quite equal the air fleet of France. That fact, as Lord Beaverbrook has remarked, makes England polite to France.

It might, at least, make this country wake up.

NEARLY ONE HUNDRED lost their lives in heavy winds in Texas. Jumping two hundred miles at a time, from one county to another, the tornado struck communities far apart.

Private homes were opened generously everywhere to those injured, or whose houses had been destroyed. In Frost the prompt action of two public school teachers, moving children to the open fields, saved the lives of 75. Intense and unseasonable hot weather, elsewhere, might well account for the erratic and dangerously powerful winds.

In New York yesterday the temperature, at noon, was 87 degrees, breaking all records for May seventh

NEWS FROM BURMA tells of many deaths by earthquake and tidal wave. Ancient pagodas were rocked to destruction. From the top of one, the Shwe-Dagon pagoda, there fell a huge weather vane, of solid gold, said to be worth $1,200,000.

MANY DEVOUT Burmans, doubtless asked themselves what particular god had become annoyed, just what had annoyed him, and how he could be placated.

IN VERY ancient times human sacrifices might have been offered, in the belief that the right god would accept them.

And the victims, before having their throats cut, would be ordered to take humble messages of propitiation to the higher regions.

Educated Burmans know that it was only this old earth, trying to settle down into permanent shape. That process will continue for thousands of centuries.

MODERN BOOTLEG-gangster crime is viciously cruel.

In Chicago a man "taken for a ride" is found in a ditch, many bullets in his body, marks on his throat, showing that he had been choked and, most horrible, his eyeballs gouged out.

Police think this was a warning to others in disfavor.

ON THE OTHER hand, gangland delights to honor those that in its opinion fall in a good cause.

In Newark, N. J., Frankie Mazzocchi is described by the police as a "gunman killed in a bootleggers' quarrel about territorial rights." Invading the other bootleggers' territory is the deadly sin.

Mazzocchi will have a magnificent funeral, no expense spared, truckloads of flowers and a fine grave. He was shot dead as he stood on a corner.

THE SENATE by a vote of 41 to 39 rejects Judge Parker, nominated by President Hoover for the Supreme Court.

Lawyers of high standing have said that decisions by Judge Parker, now criticized, were the only decisions he should have rendered in accordance with law.

But it is probable that President Hoover is glad to have the matter ended, adversely.

The confirmation of a judge, so savagely criticized, justly or otherwise, would have affected the public mind, and respect for the highest court, unfavorably

DR. BUTLER, head of Columbia University, told a gathering in London that our new tariff bill, if passed, will take Congress away from the Republican party, at the election this fall.

That pleases the British, anxious to have us use goods made in Britain as much as possible.

NEVERTHELESS attacks on free trade will be the backbone of the next Tory campaign Rothermere and Beaverbrook, two more influential men, out of office in England, are fighting to keep British buying for British workers and dealers throughout the Empire.

MACHINE GUN KILLS 2 CONVICTS

EARLY VOTES HIT BLUE LAWS

Returns in Sun-Telegraph Canvass Show Downtown Wards Opposed to Measure

The first tally of ballots cast by registered voters of Pittsburgh in the Blue Law poll by the Sun-Telegraph gives the proponents of repeal a commanding lead.

The first votes to be counted came from the downtown wards, Soho, the Hill district and the Penn avenue, Lawrenceville and Butler street sections of the city.

The sentiment of the voters first to report from these congested areas of the city is predominantly in favor of abolishing the existing Blue Laws, 90 per cent of the tabulation favoring repeal, five per cent for modification and five per cent for continuance.

458 FOR REPEAL

The initial tabulation, comprising 510 ballots, gives this result:

For the Blue Law	27
For modification	25
For repeal	458

These sections of the city, the first to receive ballots in the poll, are generally regarded as opposed to the Blue Law and the margin in favor of repeal will likely be reduced as returns are counted from other sections of the city.

Votes are now coming in from all wards of the city and are counted daily. Each tally and the latest standing on the three questions will be published daily for the duration of the canvass.

WARD TOTALS

Figures by wards are also being assembled to indicate the sentiment of voters regarding statutory Sunday observance in the various sections of Pittsburgh. Ward totals will also be announced daily.

Voters receiving postcard ballots are urged to mark their preference upon one question only, and to place their ballots in the mail promptly. The indications by the poll thus far are that approximately 20 per cent of voters receiving cards deposit their ballots at once and that the others delay their voting and mailing for a few days.

Discus Blow Fatal To College Athlete

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., May 8.—(AP.)—Melville Marshall, 18, star distance runner and sophomore at West Virginia Wesleyan College, died at Buckhannon Hospital today from a skull fracture received April 14 when struck accidentally with a discus thrown by Paul Sharp during practice for a track meet.

College athletic officials announced all athletic engagements for this week had been canceled, including two baseball games with West Virginia University and tennis matches with Broaddus College. The Wesleyan track team was withdrawn from the track meet at Morgantown Saturday.

Taxi Union Approval Denied

The Parmelee Transportation Company has not agreed to recognize the union of its striking drivers, the company's counsel, Attorney C. K. Robinson, said today in denial of a published report.

However, there was feeling in the air that the strike was reaching an end.

The strikers' committee and representatives of the company were in conference again today, trying to end the four-months-old strike.

In his denial Robinson insisted that he was not refuting the claims of any one person, but that he was simply explaining the company's attitude.

Previously, Attorney Henry Ellenbogen, counsel for the strikers, had said that the company had agreed to recognize the union.

129,789 CENSUS GAIN REPORTED

A gain of 129,789 in population in that portion of Pittsburgh and Allegheny county lying south of the Monongahela and Ohio rivers, was reported today by A. D. Levy, Census supervisor for the 13th district. The population of the district is given as 444,410.

Levy's district includes ten wards of Pittsburgh, the cities of Duquesne and Clairton, 22 boroughs and 18 townships.

The 10 city wards, Sixteenth to Twentieth inclusive and Twenty-eighth and Thirty-second inclusive have a population of 182,842 an increase of 66,413, over the 1920 census figures. Duquesne, with 21,385, shows an increase of 2,374, and Clairton, with 15,284, records an increase of 4,507. Twenty-two boroughs have a population of 133,946, an increase of 30,184, and the 18 townships have 90,953, an increase of 26,302.

Homestead reported a loss of 318, from its population of 20,452 in 1920.

The Twenty-third Ward had listed 17,645 in the present census.

SENT ADVICE TO HOOVER, SAYS DRY

Information on Appointees Given by Saloon League, McBride Tells Lobby Quiz

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP.)—F. Scott McBride, of the Anti-Saloon League, testified today before the Senate Lobby Committee that his organization had furnished information to the White House concerning presidential appointments.

He added that while the league furnished the White House information on prospective appointees, it had no other contact with the Chief Executive.

BOTH PARTIES AIDED

In answer to questions by Chairman Caraway, he said the league had supported both Democrats and Republicans and asserted it was rarely necessary to bring "political pressure" on members of Congress because of the success of other work by the dry association.

Representative Tinkham, (Rep.), Massachusetts, an anti-dry, charged the league with violations of the law in failing to report all money spent in political campaigns.

Tinkham said the organization collected $67,565,313 from 1883 to 1926 and reported only "nominal sums."

WORK THROUGH CHURCHES

McBride testified that the work of his organization was carried on largely through churches.

As McBride took the stand he faced Senator Blaine (Rep.), Wisconsin, the only anti-dry member of the committee, and Chairman Caraway (Dem.), Arkansas, a dry.

McBride said he had been con-

Relief From Heat Wave Felt

Slight moderation of the May heat wave was felt here today. The mercury rose to 80, with likelihood that it would go one or two degrees higher, compared with the high mark of 86 yesterday.

Humidity was lower today, which made the heat more bearable. Skies are clear west to the Mississippi and little change in temperature is expected tomorrow, according to Forecaster W. S. Brotzman.

400 SET FIRE TO PRISON TENTS

Shooting Declared Accident 'To Be Expected'; Colonel Refuses Rebels Shelter

International News Service.

COLUMBUS, O., May 8.—With an "anything-may-happen" feeling electrifying the atmosphere, Ohio State Penitentiary was in a state of tenseness again today, following the killing of two sleeping convicts by the accidental discharge of a machine gun.

Four hundred convicts, who had been temporarily quartered in tents in a barbed-wire stockade, set fire to their canvas abodes earlier in the morning, and all except one of the 88 tents were destroyed by flames.

The dead are Albert Freeman and James W. Ross, the former a Negro.

NEW TENTS REFUSED

Ernest Warren, a third convict, was slightly wounded in the side by a ricocheted bullet.

The prisoners, authorities announced, will sleep in the open as a result of their incendiary act, and if it rains—as officially predicted—will also sleep "in the mud," according to Col. Robert Haubrich, who is in charge of the National Guardsmen who have been in control of the penitentiary since the Easter Monday night fire catastrophe, which resulted in the deaths of 320 convicts.

Haubrich said no new tents would be furnished the prisoners.

'WHISPERS' HIT BY PINCHOT

FRANKLIN, Pa., May 8.—(AP.)—The inevitable whispers that creep into every political campaign have put Gifford Pinchot on the defense long enough to deliver a double-barreled rejoinder in the neighboring cities of Franklin and Oil City.

The candidate for governor of Pennsylvania last night amplified his stand for more stringent regulation of public utilities and explained the record of his previous administration concerning hospitalization and welfare appropriations.

On both subjects Pinchot charged he was being misrepresented in a "whispering campaign" which he attributed to his political enemies. He said:

"Whispering is one of the favorite weapons of gang politics."

ATTITUDE ON UTILITIES

Leaving Franklin this morning, the candidate struck into the northwestern corner of the state with his itinerary calling for speeches at Mercer, Greenville,

Goldsborough Hops On Homeward Flight

LOS ANGELES, May 8.—(AP.)—Frank Goldsborough, 19-year-old Jackson Heights (N. Y.) aviator, hopped off here today at 7:33 a. m. (11:33 a. m. Pittsburgh time) on the first leg of his return trip to New York in an effort to establish a west-east trans-continental flight record for junior fliers. He set a new east-west record of 34 hours and 3 minutes in his class, when he landed here last Sunday after a flight from Westfield, N. J.

Winters Remains In Grave Condition

Little change was noted in the condition of City Controller Daniel Winters, gravely ill in the Cunningham Sanitarium, Cleveland, his son, Bert Winters, reported from his bedside today. The controller passed a fairly comfortable night, the report said.

The controller is suffering from a complication of kidney and heart disease, and physicians hold out scant hope for his recovery.

Stocks Rally With Bears Routed

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP.)—Stock prices rebounded smartly on the New York Stock Exchange today, as bears were driven to cover in the copper shares, after a further selling movement which depressed U. S. Steel to a new low for the year.

The rebound attracted renewed selling, however, and trading became dull, with price trends irregular.

The coppers were rushed up $3 to more than $5 a share, as bears, who had been expecting further reductions in the price of the red metal, rushed to cover their short commitments when it was reported that the latest decline in the metal was meeting with substantial buying, both in the United States and abroad.

United States Steel, after selling off more than $2 a share to a new 1930 low at $165.75, attracted strong support and more than canceled its loss. The stock sold as low as $150 a share in the autumn crash. Many leading shares lost $2 to $4 during the morning, but these losses were reduced or canceled later, Westinghouse soon showing a moderate gain over yesterday's final price.

OXYGEN KEEPS BOY ALIVE

Waging a brave fight against pneumonia, little Richard Harkins, 3-year-old son of Leroy Harkins, of 527 Ridge avenue, New Kensington, was revived by oxygen today by members of the New Kensington fire department after a 16-hour battle. Richard, suffering from pneumonia for the last three weeks, was suddenly taken worse yesterday, and as a last resort, inhalators were rushed to the home by the New Kensington fire department. George Cope, who responded, worked with the child from 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon until 8 p. m. Then George Clawson, fire chief, and G. D. Justhan relieved him and worked until midnight.

"Bart" Bartlett worked over the youngster until 6:30 this morning, when his condition was said to be past the danger point.

HAVANA, May 8.—(INS.)—Theodore Roosevelt, governor of Porto Rico, today was en route by airplane to Miami from San Juan. He arrived at Camaguey, Cuba, yesterday afternoon, and after spending the night there, resumed flight to Havana and Miami in a Pan-American Airways plane.

JONES TO BRAVE GIANT BATS

The Pirates and Giants will bring their interesting series to a close this afternoon at Forbes Field. The series favors the enemy by two games to one, the home team winning a slugfest yesterday by the score of 16 to 8.

Percy Lee Jones, the new left-hander who came to the Pirates from the Braves in the Burleigh Grimes deal, will be on the mound for the Buccos. Fred Fitzsimmons is the probable selection for the Giants.

Will Cressy, Actor Gassed in War, Dies

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., May 8.—(AP.)—Will Cressy, 66, veteran actor, died today at his home here. While entertaining soldiers near the front in the World War, he suffered from a gas attack, which affected his heart. He had been on the stage most of his life and was in the original "Old Homestead" company with Denman Thompson. With his wife he had toured most of the large vaudeville circuits of the country.

Wales Golf Match Partner Of 'King' Bobby Jones

SUNNINGDALE, Eng., May 8.—(INS.)—The king of golf and a king-to-be thrilled a large and enthusiastic gallery on the Sunningdale course here this afternoon when Bobby Jones and the Prince of Wales met Sir Philip Sassoon and Harrison Johnston, national amateur champion of America, in an impromptu two-ball foursome match.

The match ended all square at the eighteenth, after a brilliant onslaught by Bobby Jones and his royal partner during the last few moments. With their opponents dormie three at the fifteenth, Jones and his Royal Highness took the last three holes to square the match.

Just before he Prince's foursome started, his Highness met all the members of the American Walker cup team.

The Prince, who knows a good golfer when he sees one, chose another great American player for a partner last year, pacing with Walter Hagen against Sir Philip Sassoon and Aubrey Boomer, British professional. The Prince and Sir Walter were victorious, 1 up.

"What I like about the Prince's game," said Walter afterward, "is his keenness and the clean way he hits the ball. He may hit a little over-hard at times, but he watches the effect of each shot and tries to better it."

WIND-TORN TEXAS TOWNS PREPARE TO BURY 79 VICTIMS

OTHER DEAD SOUGHT IN RUINS

International News Service.

DALLAS, Tex., May 8.—With relief and reconstruction work well under way, Central Texas today turned to the task of burying 79 victims of a series of tornadoes which two days ago spread death and destruction over a scorce of thickly populated communities.

The human toll today was definitely placed at 75, exacted as follows: Runge and vicinity 30; Frost 24; Bynum 7, Waco 6, Spur 4; Ensign 2; Ennis 2; Mertens 2; San Antonio 1; and Bronson 1.

FUNERAL FOR 24

In the little city of Frost, levelled by the cyclonic winds, a mass funeral was to be held for the 24 victims there this afternoon.

The funeral will be without church ceremonies, no place of worship having been spared by the tornadoes.

Similar rites were to be held in the small farming community near Runge where 30 persons, mostly Mexican tenant farmers, lay dead.

Meanwhile efforts were being made to check the injured list, which is expected to exceed 500.

HOSPITALS FILLED

Emergency hospitals in every city where the tempestuous gales struck still were filled with the hurt today. Several larger towns on the fringe of the devastated area were caring for many injured.

Red Cross relief agencies were scattered over the stricken area, and refugee camps were filled with the homeless.

Undaunted by the untold havoc wrought by the storms, the tornado-torn cities yesterday began the work of rehabilitation, and today order was clearly being restored out of the chaos.

TROOPS ON GUARD

No exact estimate of the property damage has been possible, due principally to the vast number of buildings wrecked.

National guardsmen and armed citizens patroled the streets of Frost last night and today to prevent the ruined stores and shops from being looted.

A corps of physicians and nurses has been busy for the last 24 hours at Runge, where 30 persons were killed by the tornado's fury.

Many of those injured by flying debris are being treated with tetanus anti-toxin. A number were struck by pieces of metal, which the wind imbedded in their bodies.

At Randolph Field, government flying school where two were killed by one of the twisters, soldiers were rebuilding the wrecked hangars.

TAXI STRIKER'S PLACE RAIDED

Joseph Tito, 28, a striking Yellow cab driver, who opened a confectionery store at 312 Merrimac street, a week ago, was haled before Magistrate J. J. Sweeney in Mt. Washington Police Court today, charged with keeping a disorderly house.

Police testified that investigating a woman's complaint that she had seen men leaving the confectionery intoxicated, they found a gallon of moonshine under a trap door.

Tito denied knowledge of the moonshine, the trap door and men leaving his place drunk. As the police had made no purchase of liquor, Sweeney discharged Tito.

TROOPS KILL 2 PRISONERS

The militiamen were changing the belt of bullets on the army weapon when one of the men pressed the trigger by accident. The gun had been trained on sleeping inmates of the E and F dormitory.

Only two bullets were discharged, but those two shots were enough to cause the instant deaths of two peacefully-sleeping convicts and to result in the slight injury of another.

By a peculiar quirk of fate Freeman and Ross, the two innocent victims, were burned in the fire disaster of April 21 at the penitentiary and had been released from the prison hospital only two days ago.

"TO BE EXPECTED"

Col Haubrich declared:

"This morning's occurrence is to be regretted very much. However, it is fortunate that such a tragedy has not occurred before.

"Where 700 men (National Guardsmen), all armed, are standing guard, an accidental shooting is to be expected.

"It is indeed unfortunate that the bullets killed innocent prisoners."

The guard commander, who won a Distinguished Service Cross in the World War, announced he had appointed Capt. James Collier, of the Ironton, O., Howitzer Company, to conduct a probe of the accidental shooting this morning.

Haubrich stated there was much confusion inside the prison.

Asked what would be done with the 400 prisoners in the roofless stockade in the event of a thunderstorm, the colonel replied:

"They'd have to stay out there in the rain, as we have no place to put them."

Of the 3,200 convicts now inside the grim gray walls of the penitentiary here, approximately 200 belong to what has been dubbed the "I Won't Work Club." Such unruly prisoners have been securely locked and chained in cells and are kept on a diet of bread and water.

Seven hundred militiamen are now on duty, inside and outside the penitentiary, with an equal number in reserve.

1,500 AT WORK

Nearly 1,500 inmates have been gradually returned to work in the auto-tag, tin and printing shops.

Gathering of details of the shooting this morning was slow. Deputy Warden J. C. Woodard made the first official announcement—a brief statement confirming the shooting and the deaths of two men. No further information could be received until Col. Haubrich, the official spokesman, came back from "inside."

Prison officials ordered that the undertakers, to whom the bodies were turned over, should give out neither names nor numbers of the dead prisoners. They, likely, feared the giving out of erroneous information, as convicts have been trading numbers among themselves. Some have been wearing no numbers at all.

Castle Shannon's population increased from 2,353 to 3,808 the census figures showed. North Fayette township dropped from 5,000 to 3,510, due principally to annexation of part of the township, it was said.

Returns at DuBois show the present population as 11,510; decrease of 3,171 or 23.10 per cent.

Fox Film Head Signs Long Term Contract

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP.)—Winfield Sheehan, vice president and general manager of the Fox Film Corporation since its organization in 1914, has signed a long-term contract with Harley L. U. S. RADIO SUIT DUE IN WEEK

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP.)—TheD epartment of Justice is expected to bring suit against the Radio Corporation of America "within a week" before members of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, who today were informed by John Lord O'Brian, special assistant to the attorney general, on the progress of investigations looking toward action.

After hearing a letter from O'Brian, in executive session, the committee decided not to question him. He had been summoned to appear.

Along with his own comments, O'Brian sent the committee a statement from the Radio Corporation, which said contracts for unification of its radio holdings with those of Westinghouse and General Electric had not been consummated.

CATHOLICS TOLD TO KEEP FROM MOSQUES

Papal Legate Eases Tension Among Moslems in Tunis Over Eucharist Congress

CARTHAGE, Tunisia, May 8.—(AP.)—Newspapers here today warned the 20,000 or more pilgrims who have assembled for the Eucharistic Congress that unbelievers will not be admitted to Moslem mosques. The warning was given with a desire to prevent friction between the cleries and laymen and the followers of Islam.

Action of Cardinal Lepicier, papal delegate, in asking release of eleven Arab students who were arrested over the week-end for planning an anti-Christian demonstration during the congress, has had a favorable influence on their compatriots, but the feeling between the two groups has not been entirely quenched.

TUNIS, Tunisia, May 8.—(AP.)—The bells of Tunis today rang out their call to communion masses for the thousands of pilgrims attending the Roman Catholic Eucharistic Congress in this seat of antiquity.

The second day of the world-wide religious assemblage started with the partaking of the blessed sacrament. Hundreds of Americans arose early on the steamships Rochambeau and Araguaya to attend mass in the Church of St. Jeanne D'Arc, which had been especially assigned to that group of new world worshippers. The African sun was hidden away behind merciful cloud banks. Fears of a hot, dusty sirocco, common at this season, failed to materialize. The breeze that was wafted in from the desert bore with it no storm indication. It was so cool that many of the visitors wore their top-coats.

SENT ADVICE TO HOOVER

nected with the league for 11 years and before that was a Presbyterian minister. He became national superintendent upon the death of the late Wayne B. Wheeler.

He said the league advocated the prohibition law by agitation, education, law enforcement and legislation.

Some of the speakers, he said, were paid for speeches and others were regularly employed.

The National Anti-Saloon organization has 154 members on the board of directors, each state being represented by at least two.

POLITICAL ACTIVITIES

Questioned by Caraway, the witness said the political activities of the organization was about five per cent of the total.

"It used to be about 95 per cent, didn't it?" Caraway asked.

"No, it never was that high," McBride said.

Asked by Caraway what action was taken when a prohibition bill is introduced in Congress, the witness said the league co-operated with other dry organizations and sent letters to members of Congress.

"Some times, but that is not necessary very often."

"Do you have any contact with the President?"

"I have not and our organization has not as an organization."

GIVE INFORMATION

"Do you make recommendations for appointments to the President or his subordinates?"

"No, we give information."

"You say this man is good and that man bad?"

"Yes."

Caraway asked if the organization would place "coals of fire on the President's back" if the appointees were not satisfactory.

"We wouldn't do that but the public might want to," McBride said.

The plan of the league concerning prohibition appointments, he testified was contained in a memorandum which said:

"Never to permit the league to be maneuvered into assuming responsibility for the appointee. Such responsibility is resident solely in the appointing power."

FAVORS JONES LAW

McBride testified tha league "presumed to speak" only on prohibition appointments. He said he was "strong for the Jones law," and thought it had worked well, but denied that the league wrote that statute or the Volstead Act.

He explained, however, that it probably had suggested certain provisions of the law.

Caraway said the league had been described as the most powerful lobbying organization in Washington."

CLAIMS LESS DRINKING

"I don't think so," McBride said. "I think our work has been effective, but we haven't had to do much to be effective. The work was done back in the home districts."

Caraway asked McBride if he thought a group should organize in an effort to impose its will on the government.

"I do not," he said. "There should be no super-government."

The witness said not as much liquor was being consumed now as before prohibition went into effect.

"If that were so," he added, "the wets would be better satisfied. This is a fight between those who want liquor and those who think it is injurious."

CONTRIBUTORS ASKED

McBride asked if it would not be all right to give a list of contributors of $1,000 or more, but Caraway asked for the complete list.

The witness said it might be "embarrassing" to some of the contributors to have their names made public.

At the conclusion of his testimony, McBride presented a statement showing the league last year had spent $272,049 and collected $269,916. Of the total received, he said, $164,154 was raised by popular subscription.

The disbursements inclued $25,974 for traveling expenses; $4,359 for postage; $15,029 for publicity and rent in the Washington office; $47,258 for the educational department; $7,864 for the legislative department; $4,426 for the legal department, and $28,039 for the executive department.

WICKERSHAM ASSAILS PRISONS

Tells American Law Group Penal Conditions Cry Aloud for Improvement

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP.)—Present methods of dealing with criminal offenders were assailed before the American Law Institute today by Chairman Wickersham, of the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission.

Chief Justice Hughes praised the institute for its fact-finding endeavors concerning a "restatement of the common law," which he said would need to be carried on for years.

With these facts, the chief justice said "even legislation may become intelligent."

Wickersham said the "present day practice of endeavoring to prevent crimes by augmented penalties" was based upon "a fallacy which has time and again been demonstrated."

"Pending the discussion of this subject," he added, "men and women are being sent to prison—to antiquated, overcrowded, unsanitary and unsafe institutions, under conditions which cry aloud to high heaven for immediate improvement."

He cited the recent disastrous fire at the Columbus (O.), prison. Wickersham said he "would not have the construction of new, fairly decent and adequate prisons wait upon the reformation of the penal laws, and other holocausts."

Senate Passes 2 More Prison Reform Bills

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP.)—Two additional measures in the administration's prison improvement program, providing reorganization of federal prison administration and diversification of employment for prisoners, were passed today by the Senate.

The administration proposal for two additional federal institutions was passed over. The Senate yesterday passed five other prison reform proposals.

CLEVELAND, May 8.—The U. S. Attorney Generals's office has definitely decided to take no action on the demand of a Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company stockholder that suit be brought to stop the Youngstown-Bethlehem steel merger on the grounds of anti-trust law violation. Ban on Cut-Rate Taxis Before Superior Court

The matter of taxicab rates in Philadelphia and the alleged stifling of competition by the Public Service Commission were protests heard yesterday by the Superior Court. The right of the Public Service Commission to refuse an admittedly ably-managed and financially strong corporation permission to operate a light taxicab service at reduced rates, as was done in the case of the Universal Cab Company, was argued before the court.

The Universal Cab Company had been refused a certificate to operate a call and demand service and an appeal was taken to the higher court. The company had planned to charge 15 cents for the first quarter mile and five cents per quarter mile thereafter. The question also was raised as to the right of the commission to refuse the company a permit to operate on the ground that such rates would not be remunerative.

Attorneys attacked the right of the commission to create a complete urban transportation monopoly in the Eastern city.

The protestants against the ruling of the commission were Benjamin F. Hoffman, Thomas B. Martindale, Earle B. Gunkle, Samuel T. Banham, Joseph A. Cunningham and John F. Daly. The Yellow Cab Company of Philadelphia was an intervening appellee in the original case heard before the commission.

Snow, Gales in California While East Swelters

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—(AP.)—Freak May weather had brought heavy snow falls to the Sierra mountains today, while a terrific gale yesterday struck the Southern California coast.

Eight inches of snow fell at the Calaveras grove of big trees in little more than an hour. Snow also fell from the Tahoe region to Ash mountain in Sequoia National Park.

Heavy gales struck Southern California coast near Redondo Beach and for several hours threatened fishing enthusiasts and crews of small boats with disaster.

At the St. James parochial school classes were dismissed when the wind reached a velocity that seemed likely to cave in the school building.

Numbers of fishermen who had put out in comparatively calm weather had trouble getting back to shore. Several members of the Santa Monica motion picture colony were included in those storm bound. In a small launch, Gilbert Roland and Townsend Netcher, husband of Constance Talmadge, were unable to land on the unprotected Santa Monica coast line for several hours. They finally landed in a cove.

TWIN FALLS, Mont., May 8.—(AP.)—For the first time in 24 years a heavy snow has visited this section in May, a three-inch fall yesterday causing alarm of fruit growers. Temperatures also tumbled to new seasonal low records.

27 KILLED AS MADDENED GANDHI RIOTERS SEIZE CITY

GROG SHOPS AND COURTS BURNED

Soldiers Helpless as Mobs Charge; 8 Women Are Rescued, Sent to Poona

SHOLAPUR, Bombay, India, May 8.—(AP.)—Twenty-seven or more police and natives were killed in desperate rioting which, starting last night, was resumed at dawn today and had resulted at noon in seizure of this city of 120,000 inhabitants by the adherents of Mahatma Gandhi.

The local police were powerless. Citizen reserves who joined them soon were thrown back by the rioters. Trops rushed into this textile community likewise proved unable to cope with the situation.

Eight European women with their five children had been evacuated this evening from the town. They were sent by special train to Poona.

The refugees will reach Poona early tomorrow.

BURN POLICE STATIONS

Six police stations and the magistrate's court were burned down this morning and all liquor shops in town suffered a similar fate.

Apparently the rioters were in complete control. Continuous firing occured and the police gradually were pushed back and hemmed in.

POLICE OPEN FIRE

The trouble started last night. A number of volunteers in the civil disobedience program started cutting down palm trees from which liquor is taken. They ignored police orders to stop. A district magistrate warned them to disperse. The crowd, larger every minute, refused and the police opened fire.

In an instant the fury of the mob was unleashed.

Bombay reported another extensive cotton fire at Sewri. About $75,000 worth of baled cotton was destroyed.

GANDHI TRANSFER DENIED

POONA, India, May 8.—(AP.)—Reports published in London by the Exchange Telegraph that Mahatma Gandhi has been transferred from the Yeroda Prison to the military sanitorium at Purandhar were officially denied late today.

TARIFF BACK IN CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(INS.)—The administration's tariff bill was back in conference today, with House and Senate conferees slated for the task of arbitrating provisions upon which the two branches of Congress have been unable to agree.

The Senate refused to settle any of the items in controversy, but sent the whole bill back to conference. This tossed upon the conferees the problem of settling differences on lumber and silver rates, the Blease provision for importing cement for public buildings free from duty, the Senate provision for employing a people's counsel to advise the tariff commission, the Senate's repeal of the flexible tariff provision and the Senate's adoption of the debenture plan of farm relief.

There was a hint of a filibuster by Democrats and insurgent Republicans against enactment of the bill if both the flexible repeal and the debenture are abandoned by the conferees.

Coolidge on Radio, Aids Tercentenary

BOSTON, May 8.—(INS.)—Calvin Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge were here today to help Watertown, on the other side of the Charles River, carry out the first real tercentenary program in the Greater Boston district. The address of the former President, his first in New England since his retirement from the White House, was to be broadcast over a nation-wide network. Watertown was the ancestral home of the Coolidges.

KING TO GREET EX-MODEL

PARIS, May 8.—(AP.)—The cleverest needle workers in the Rue de la Paix today were making a white satin dress, embroidered with silver, for the pretty mannequin bride of Prince Aga Khan, wealthy Indian sportsman and Moslem leader, who next month will be presented at the Court of St. James.

As they work the embroiderers recount the tale of how Marcelle Carron, the comparatively poor little French girl, daughter of a hotel administrator and once their companion, became the princess wife of one of the world's wealthiest men. They are fabricating a very beautiful dress so that when the little princess bows before the King and Queen of England she will be pleased with their artistry.

In addition to the court gown the happy begum will wear a resplendent diamond tiara. As the prince's wife she is now a British subject.

The eastern high pressure area developed considerably in area and increased somewhat in pressure, resulting in fair weather east of the Mississippi River and a slight lowering in temperature over the Ohio Valley states and the lake region.

The disturbance that was centered over Iowa yesterday and threatened thunderstorms for this section, moved northward over the plains, and is now centered over Southern Manitoba. It produced further generous rains over the northern plains and the upper Mississippi Valley states and heavy rain at Winnipeg. Another disturbance is centered over Southern Utah and Western Colorado. It is causing light rains and snows in the Southern and Central Rocky Mountain states.

River Conditions.

The rivers are stationary or falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is 2.1 feet; Lock No. 7, 11.0; Pittsburgh, 11.0; Dam No. 4, 9.6; Dam No. 6, 8.5; Dam No. 9, 8.8, and Dam No. 12, 5.0. The dams are up.

J. V. HURD, WIFE DIE IN AUTO PLUNGE

Machine Goes Into Creek as It Speeds Off Road; Both Were Ex-Pittsburghers

Funeral arrangements were being made today for Jack V. Hurd, vice president and secretary of the Monongahela Tube Company, and his wife, Mrs. Caroline Butterfield Hurd, who were killed yesterday in an automobile accident near Wilmington, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Hurd were crushed to death when their auto failed to take a curve near a bridge, and plunged into a creek in the northern part of Wilmington, en route from their winter home in Pinehurst to visit Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Phillips, of Wilmington.

KILLED OUTRIGHT

Two small boys heard the crash and found the machine submerged in 14 feet of water. The bodies were discovered floating near the bridge. Physicians said they were killed outright.

Mr. Hurd was born in Pittsburgh about 55 years ago, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hurd. He had made his home here until about 1928. Since then Mr. and Mrs. Hurd have lived in New York and Pinehurst.

He had been connected with the Monongahela Tube Company, of which his father was one of the founders, virtually since its beginning in 1899, and was a member of the Duquesne Club. He had resided at the Schenley Apartments until two years ago.

DIVORCED GOLF STAR

Mr. Hurd leaves a son, Sigourney, a former pupil at Shady Side Academy, and a sister, Mrs. J. G. Splane, of Detroit, as well as his brother in Pinehurst, N. C. Hurd, who is arranging the funeral.

He was the former husband of Dorothy Campbell Hurd, at one time the woman golf champion of the United States, Great Britain and Canada.

They were divorced in 1923 after Mrs. Hurd had filed suit charging him with cruel and barbarous treatment, and Hurd a counter suit alleging that his wife preferred life in the out-of-doors to housekeeping.

Mr. Hurd married Mrs. Caroline McCord Butterfield, a native of Columbus, O., who resided in New York and Pinehurst, in 1927.

Friends here were unable to say whether the bodies would be brought here for burial.

CHICAGO, May 8.—(INS.)—Suit for $20,000, brought by the E. M. Gattle & Co., jewelry firm of New York, was pending today against James Stanley Joyce, millionaire lumberman and former husband of Peggy Hopkins Joyce.

Mrs. Nellie Vail Joyce, Peggy's successor, incurred the bill through purchase of jewelry shortly before she filed suit for divorce against the lumberman, the complaint alleges.

Among the articles listed were an emerald bracelet valued at $12,500 and a diamond bracelet valued at $9,500.

2 SCORE HURT IN OIL SHIP BLAST

BAYONNE, N. J., May 8.—(AP.)—The entire plant of the Gulf Refining Company was in danger of destruction today after a tanker loaded with gasoline exploded at the piers. Between 30 and 40 men were injured and three members of the tanker's crew were missing. Flames spread swiftly across the yard and attacked several fuel tanks and a warehouse where gasoline was stored.

The tanker Schurchia, of the Fidelity Petroleum Company, tied at Pier 2, was destroyed quickly. Another tanker was towed out into Kill Van Kull as fireboats from New York and from nearby industries attempted to get close to fight the fire.

The Tidewater Oil Company's plant, adjoining the Gulf plant, also was believed to be in danger.

As the fire spread across the yard it swept around the warehouse and attacked a number of tank cars loaded with oil. These exploded as flames licked around them.

The fire brought out every piece of apparatus in Bayonne, eight fireboats and the forces of the Gulf, Tidewater and Standard Oil plants. The latter adjoins the Tidewater yards on the north.

The fire was believed to have started aboard the Schurchia, 10,000-gallon tanker used to supply harbor craft. The boat was loaded to capacity when the explosion occurred.

SAMARKAND, Russian Turkestan, May 8.—(AP.)—For the first time in modern history, a group of foreigners, mostly American newspaper correspondents, were permitted to enter the forbidden gates of Samarkand today.

LOSES ELECTION KILLS HIMSELF

GARY, Ind., May 8.—(AP.)—William J. Fulton, defeated for renomination as county commissioner in Lake County at Tuesday's primary election, shot and killed himself at his home today.

Fulton's campaign manager, M. H. Marquardt, was arrested on election day on a charge of conspiracy to violate the state election laws in importing five Chicago women to vote.

Fulton, a former mayor of Gary, was 48 years old.

In a note written to his wife shortly before he shot himself, Fulton said:

"I am at the breaking point, and whether in defeat or victory, I know not. Still, I just can't believe myself on this horrible affair. Whether done by my enemies for vengeance or by my friends in their great wish to help me God knows I am innocent of it all, and so are my loyal friends who worked with me in this campaign, but you know I have gone my limit of strength physically. I just can't stand this last straw.

"If my by enemies, they might just as well have shot me."

AWAIT WORD OF HOOVER ON PARKER

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP.)—President Hoover continued today to maintain silence on the rejection by the Senate of Judge John J. Parker for the Supreme Court.

Shortly after the President reached his office, Vice President Curtis called and discussed the situation. It was said at the White House that no decision had yet been reached whether any statement would be made by the President at this time. It was indicated, however, that nothing would be said today.

President Hoover is expected at the capitol to undertake immediately consideration of another appointment to the vacant post on the Supreme Court bench, with a view of sending it to the Senate in time to obtain confirmation at this session.

TALKS WITH WATSON

Those now under consideration for the vacancy include Judges Arba S. Van Valkenburgh, of Missouri, William S. Kenyon, of Iowa, and John H. Cotteral, of Oklahoma.

The names of Fenton Whitlock Booth, of Illinois, chief justice of the federal court of claims, and Robert S. Von Moschizker, chief justice of the Pennsylvania supreme court, also were before the president.

Newton D. Barker, of Ohio, President Wilson's secretary of war, and John W. Davis, the Democratic presidential nominee in 1924, have been mentioned, but senate leaders appear convinced a Republican will be named.

REJECTED BY SENATE

By a vote of 41 to 39, the Senate in mid-afternoon yesterday turned down the Parker nomination after 10 days of debate, in which the charges of labor and Negro organizations that Parker was prejudiced against the working men and the Negro race had a prominent part.

Oil Sale Nets $2,500,000 For Marion Hollins

LOS ANGELES, May 8.—(AP.)—Sale of the Kettleman Oil Company for approximately $10,500,000 with a resulting profit of $2,500,000 to Marion Hollins, Pebble Beach, Cal., former women's national golf champion, has been revealed here.

Purchasers of the company included the Pacific Western Oil Company, the Standard Oil Company of California, and the Honolulu Consolidated Oil Company.

Other stockholders who received large amounts included Harold E. Talbott, Jr., New York financier; Walter P. Chrysler, automobile manufacturer; Samuel McRoberts, New York banker; McKim Hollins, the golfer's brother, and the Payne Whitney estate.

The golf player, who was crowned national champion in 1921, went to New York and interested the late Payne Whitney, a friend of her family, in the proposition to drill the first well on the acreage near that formerly held by the Marland Oil Company. Out of this connection grew the Kettleman Company.

Actor Present at Slaying Of Lincoln Dies at 85

BALTIMORE, May 8.—(INS.)—William J. Ferguson, 85, last surviving member of the company playing "Our American Cousin" at Ford's Theater, Washington, the night President Lincoln was shot, is dead at Pikesville, Md.

He arrived there a month ago from New York for a rest at the home of relatives. He leaves his widow.

Ferguson was for more than 60 years on the stage and had virtually retired some years ago, but he would not admit he was "through." He was well known on Broadway a generation ago.

Born here of Scottish parents, he got his first job with a theatrical company in 1864. He was call boy in Ford's Theater the night of April 14, 1865, and had been assigned to learn the part of Lieut. Vernor in "Looking For a Ship" with the famous Laura Keene.

When Booth entered the President's box, Ferguson and Miss Keene were going over stage business in the prompter's box in the wings.

He often told the story of the assassinations after Edwin Booth, brother of Wilkes Booth, the slayer, died. He always said Booth did not shout "sic semper tyrannis" as history records.

GRUNDY ADMITS USING BRITISH MACHINERY

Senator Says Mill Equipment Bought Many Years Ago; Guest at Luncheon Here

Senator Joseph R. Grundy, here today to continue his campaign to succeed himself, replied to a charge made in a Philadelphia radio address by W. F. Kelly, international president of the United Textile Workers of America, that Grundy had equipped his textile mills in Bristol, Pa., almost exclusively with British-made textile machinery.

Kelly declared that Grundy refuses to purchase American machines and operates nearly 100 pieces made either in Scotland or England.

PAYS U. S. WAGES

Grundy said it was true his establishment contains British machinery and added that when the mill was established many years ago there was no American textile equipment available. Replacement parts have to be purchased abroad, he explained, adding:

"The important thing is that we have been paying American wages ever since the mill went into operation."

Senator Grundy attended a luncheon at noon in the William Penn Hotel, given by George S. Oliver to women chairmen of the Grundy-for-Senator campaign committees in western counties.

GUESTS PRESENT

Guests at the speakers' table in addition to Senator Grundy were Mrs. George S. Oliver, W. L. Mellon, Miss Sarah Soffel, Mrs. Bessie Dobson Altemus, W. L. Mure, Mrs. Miles G. Bulger, Jr., Mrs. Charles Long, Mrs. James J. Coyne, Miss S. M. R. O'Hara, Mrs. Charles A. Stauffer, A. Lyle Linderman, Mrs. William S. Haddock, Mrs. A. Clifton Verner and Mr. Oliver.

Miss Soffel spoke on behalf of the western women and Miss O'Hara for women of the eastern area of the state.

Davis Brands Residence Attack 'Cheap Trick'

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, candidate for United States senator, will not come to Pittsburgh to reply to charges placed before the Registration Commission that he has no legal residence in Pennsylvania.

The Sun-Telegraph called Davis' attention yesterday to the charges made by attorneys representing John J. O'Brien, a mechanic, of 2205 Murray avenue.

"Replying to your telegram, will say that I have resided in Pittsburgh and have voted at every election held in Pittsburgh for more than 20 years, and have lived in Pennsylvania for more than 40 years. Started to work as a boy of 10 in the iron and steel mills at Sharon, Pa., and in 1894 went to Indiana to work in tinplate mill and learned a new trade; was honored and elected to public office, and returned to Pittsburgh more than 20 years ago. Under the circumstances don't think it necessary for me to be at Pittsburgh Monday.

"They attempted this same trick on Theodore Roosevelt when he was a candidate for governor of New York, and this sort of cheap political trick would seem to be the last desperate move of those who are playing a losing game."

ANTI-DRY, HERE FOR RALLY, HITS FOES

Bohlen Pledges Prohibition Fight; Other Candidates And Curran Speak Tonight

Francis H. Bohlen, candidate for United States Senator on the anti-dry ticket, arrived here today and reiterated an attack on his opponents, Secretary of Labor Davis and Senator Grundy.

Bohlen will be joined at a mass meeting tonight in Carnegie Music Hall, Schenley Park, by his running mates, Thomas W. Phillips for Governor, and Charles Dorrance for lieutenant-governor. Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, will preside.

Speakers at the mass meeting will include Maj. Henry H. Curran, president of the National Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

BOHLEN'S ATTACK

Bohlen said:

"The prohibition issue is now brought out into the open in the Senatorial contest, with favoring repeal and Senator Grundy and Secretary Davis standing behind the Republican and President Hoover's program in the Wickersham Commission.

"That commission's function is not to consider prohibition as an experiment to be investigated but as a settled policy to be enforced by drastic and hitherto unknown means.

"My opponents are pledged to support any legislation for prohibition enforcement and until that has been tried and proved a failure there can be no hope from them for any relief from present intolerable conditions that so-called prohibition has brought upon us.

HITS DRY DICTATORS

"I have pledged to do all in my power to secure the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and, until that can be accomplished, to work for the repeal or modification of the Volstead act.

"My election will mean not only an anti-dry senator from Pennsylvania, but will give encouragement to the anti-dry majority as an offset to the dry dictatorship."

William Frew, chairman of the local anti-dry committee, declared Mayor Kline's comment on Phillips' position in the race for governor was conclusive evidence that alarm has crept into the camps of political machines.

"Mayor Kline asserts in one breath that the increasing appeal of Phillips' candidacy is hurting the chance of Brown for governor and in another breath the Mayor declares that Phillips cannot win," Frew said.

FISHER BACKING GRUNDY, BROWN

PHILADELPHIA, May 8 (AP).—Following a conference between Gov. Fisher and W. L. Mellon, former chairman of the Republican State Committee in Harrisburg, word has reached this city that the Governor is supporting Senator Joseph R. Grundy to succeed himself. Francis Shunk Brown for Governor and Judge J. Frank Graff for Superior Court judge at the Republican primary May 20.

The Governor recently endorsed Senator Grundy's candidacy in a letter to a woman member of the Republican State Committee in Easton. It also was known he favors the nomination of Judge Graff. Armstrong County, whom he appointed to the Superior Court to serve until the election. Mr. Fisher, however, never has said publicly which candidate for the governorship he favors.

Employes of state departments and bureaus are said to have received notice through their superiors that the Governor is personally interested in Grundy, Brown and Graff.

Mr. Mellon several weeks ago made a public declaration for Senator Grundy and former Attorney General Brown. Before returning to his home in Pittsburgh, he also talked with Auditor General Charles A. Waters, a field general of the Grundy campaign.

MAGEE BOOSTS DAVIS, BROWN

Support for the Davis-Brown ticket was urged by former Mayor W. A. Magee in a broadcast last night over KDKA and by Attorney W. H. Coleman over WJAS.

Addressing about 500 employes of the County Bureau of Buildings in headquarters, Armstrong said:

"Many of you men and women were appointed by me and others were retained. We are all a happy family and I want it to remain a happy family, as I have at least 19 months to serve.

"One thing you can do to help is to appreciate what I've done for you and give your support to these candidates on the Davis-Brown slate. I'm for Davis and Brown, and when you vote for those candidates you're voting for Joe' Armstrong."

TENTH WARD MEETING

Mayor Kline told the Tenth Ward residents that the people of Pittsburgh in electing him state senator, judge of Common Pleas Court and mayor seemed to consider him somewhat versed in public affairs and capable of counseling them in such matters.

Other speakers at the Tenth Ward meeting were Congressman P. J. Sullivan, seeking re-election; George C. Metzner and P. J. Maloney, candidates for the Legislature; Public Works Director Edward G. Lang, James P. Bailey, chief inspector of weights and measures, and John M. Huston.

Kline and Armstrong spoke in Hotel Henry headquarters at a meeting of county committeewomen this afternoon and will address a meeting of the Tenth Legislative District at 8 p. m.

Bernard J. Myers, state chairman of the Davis-Brown campaign, and Phillip Murray, of the United Mine Workers of America, will be among the speakers Saturday night in North Side Carnegie Music Hall.

MAGEE'S RADIO TALK

In his radio address, former Mayor Magee said:

"For example, in the matter of prohibition he favors a referendum whereby the voters may express their preference, an application of true democratic principles.

"As to Mr. Davis, his life has been lived among the common people. He is a product of democracy. He, like his opponent, has been a beneficiary of the protective tariff principle.

"He knows Pennsylvania's traditional economic policy and can be relied upon to be not only faithful to it, but active and zealous in its behalf."

MRS. STEWART G. O. P. HOSTESS

Mrs. Florence Cook Stewart was hostess to about 250 members of the Women's Republican Club of the Eighteenth Ward at a meeting last night in Liederkranz Hall, Curtin avenue.

Campaign speeches for the Davis-Brown ticket were made by Congressman Harry A. Estep, seeking re-election; Joseph O. Armstrong, Jr., unopposed for the Republican nomination for state senator from the Thirty-eighth District; F. J. Herrington, candidate for one of the four nominations for the Legislature from the Sixth District, and Mrs. Lyda Peelor, president of the club.

An entertainment was given by Mrs. George Vollmen and Mrs. Bullman in readings, and musical selections by pupils of J. D. Bacher.

HOLD RALLIES FOR PINCHOT

Mrs. A. L. Fillmore delivered the principal address at the noonday meeting today in Pinchot-for-Governor headquarters, Magee Building, Fourth avenue. Other speakers included Attorneys E. H. Hicks and Louis Rosenfield. John G. Koedel will preside.

Attorney Ralph H. Frank will broadcast a 15-minute address at 7:30 p. m. over KQV in support of the candidacy of Pinchot. Frank will preside at the noon meeting in headquarters tomorrow. Other speakers will include Walter Smart and E. O. Spotts. Attorney John H. Lauer will broadcast a Pinchot speech at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow over WJAS.

Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, vice chairman of the Pinchot state committee, spoke in the candidate's behalf last night over station WJAS.

Attorney Homer N. Young presided at the Twenty-seventh Ward Pinchot Committee's meeting last night in John Morrow School. Mrs. Walter McFarland was elected chairman of the women's division.

Speakers included Frank I. Gollmar, Allegheny County chairman of the Pinchot campaign and F. D. Lancaster. Young predicted Pinchot would carry the ward.

Meadville and Erie. He will remain overnight at Erie.

Explaining his attitude on public utilities, Pinchot declared:

"In the whispering campaign it is being said that I am an enemy of public utilities. To any one who knows my record such a statement is purely ridiculous."

Saying that every year a greater proportion of public money is invested in utilities, he drew a line of distinction between "intelligent" corporations satisfied to be publicly regulated and those who fight it in an effort to grab extortionate rates from the public, adding:

HOSPITAL AID STAND

"Public utilities are essential. Public utilities to give their best service must prosper and be protected, but that does not mean that public utilities should be left free to prey on the public as some have been doing."

With reference to "whispering" concerning the record of the Pinchot administration from 1923 to 1927, the former governor said:

"There are still some people I find who believe foolish stories that the Pinchot administration was unjust to hospitals of the state. This story is based mainly on allegation that hospitals were starved while we were paying off the $32,000,000 deficit imposed on the state by machine rule. As a matter of actual bookkeeping fact, the hospitals had more than $900,000 to spend the first year after the Pinchot budget went into effect in excess of what they had under Gov. Sproul's last appropriation bills."

In addition the candidate took claim to taking hospitals as well as granting of State aid to hospitals "out of the dirty bog of political favoritism."

PARK AIDS IN SLUSH INQUIRY

District Attorney Andrew T. Park announced today that he had offered utmost co-operation to United States Senator Nye, chairman of the Senate Campaign Funds Committee which has been investigating expenditures in the Pennsylvania primary.

Park wrote Nye today that although he did not plan a special investigation, he would turn over to the Senate committee any evidence submitted to him.

Nye had asked Park and United States Attorney Louis E. Graham to assist in bringing to light any evidence of corruption or excessive expenditures.

Husband Up Second Time Within Week

For the second time in a week, Walter Psuty, 19, of 2419 Sarah street, was in Morals Court today on complaint of his wife, Veronica, 18. The first time she testified he had poured moonshine on her head on their first wedding anniversary. Today she said he had kicked her on the shins in an argument. Magistrate T. D. Jones turned them over to Morals Court workers.

Sailors Confess Slayings As 'Lie Detector' Quivers

CHICAGO, May 8.—(AP)—A [illegible] signal victory for one of science's newest devices for solving crime was claimed today in the announcement that the "Lie Detector" developed at the University of Chicago, had solved the murder of M. A. Douglas, strangled in a hotel room Monday.

Leonard Keeler, who perfected the "Lie Detector" invented by August Vollmer, University of Chicago criminologist, said the instrument had been used on a number of sailors at the Great Lakes Naval Training School, and that two had confessed the slaying. Coroner Herman N. Bundesen, who participated in the tests, declined to confirm Keeler's statement, but said there had been "important developments."

Douglas came from Detroit and registered at a West Madison street hotel with two sailors the night before the murder. The seamen had disappeared when Douglas's body was found.

Many sailors at the training station submitted to the "Lie Detector" test last night, Keeler said.

In the case of two of them, according to Keeler, the "Lie Detector" showed an irregular line on the graph when they denied knowledge of the crime. An irregular line indicates the person under examination is not telling the truth. Further questioning brought confessions, Keeler said.

'JAKE' SICKNESS BLAMED ON U. S.

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 8 (AP). Dr. Louis W. Benson, state health commissioner, today blamed the action of the Federal Government in a formula manufacture of alcohol for the wave of fatal paralysis which swept the United States and for the wide hundreds of persons suffering partial paralysis.

Questioning the purity of alcohol used by the government for medicinal purposes, Dr. Benson said facts brought to his attention justified advising people against drinking any patent medicines or extracts containing a high percentage of alcohol. "Jamaica ginger has been widely blamed for much of the sickness.

The state commissioner said many of the 1,500 cases of paralysis in Oklahoma resulted from drinking bootleg medicine. He added that a recent tour of inspection he made there he met several physicians who said they were afraid to prescribe any medicine containing alcohol.

"It seems peculiar to us that the Federal Government with its vast resources has not been able to determine what the poison is," Dr. Benson said.

Pittsburgh Boys Held as Runaways

FREEDOM, Pa., May 8. Taken into custody by Freedom police, two runaway boys, North Side Pittsburgh residents, Anthony Madfish, 15, of 2806 Wadlas street, and Steve Kodylo, 16, of 1514 Geyer avenue, were turned over to the Beaver County juvenile probation officer.

YOUTH SUBJECT OF SCIENTISTS

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP). In point of maturity and responsibility, says Dr. S. M. Gruenberg of Columbia University, the modern youth does not compare favorably with his grandfather when the latter was young.

Addressing the International Congress on Mental Hygiene, Dr. Gruenberg today said that the youth of today is appallingly unaware of alternatives and almost totally innocent in the making of choices.

The problem to be confronted is to discover a technique whereby the adolescent may be projected into a situation where the stakes are real and the issue worthy of concern.

The maturity process of the modern child in his opinion is likely to be delayed by the lengthening of the period of schooling with the generally consequent freedom from economic obligation.

Dr. Arthur H. Ruggles of Yale University said the youth of today is open, frank and eager to put his cards on the table. It is difficult, he pointed out, to find enough hours to devote to the problems young men bring to the college mental hygienist.

NEW YORK, May 8 (AP). Mrs. Katherine Blake, wife of Dr. Joseph A. Blake of East Boothbay, Me., and former wife of Clarence H. Mackay, left her estate to four children of her second marriage, her will revealed.

The estate, valued at over $100,000, will be divided among Katherine Joan, Mary and William Blake of New York.

Her three children of her first marriage, Ellin Berlin, wife of Irving Berlin; Katherine O'Brien and John William Mackay, receive no legacies, the will explains, because they are amply provided for under the terms of a trust deed made by their grandfather, John William Mackay, at the time of my marriage to his son, Clarence H. Mackay.

"Only Strickly Fresh Eggs Sold Here"

No lay of the last minstrel is this barnyard commentary.

It's rusty with age, this little legend, and only because it points a moral do we revive it here.

Once upon a time an ancient storekeeper down at the crossroads said to his sign painter, "See here now. We don't have to say all that about OUR eggs. Why not economize on words and save paint? Take that word 'only'—why, it's unnecessary on the face of it. Cross that off. Then it reads, 'Strictly Fresh Eggs Sold Here.' You see how much better that is! But look, we don't even need to say 'strictly,' because if they're fresh they're naturally strictly fresh. 'Liminate the 'strictly'! Now then, take that word 'fresh.' Why, everybody knows Hempelzweig's won't sell anything but fresh eggs; why should we tell folks something they already know. Then that phrase 'sold here'—everybody knows those eggs are sold here and not down in Pete Smith's barber shop or Jones' hardware store. So take out the 'sold here'

'Eggs'—that's plenty!—just say 'Eggs'!

Pretty good philosophy, we'd say; and just as applicable to Kaufmann's as to the little country grocery. We too can omit the other five words. We too can be certain in advance that when we say "eggs" or "silks" or "Paris gowns," the public knows they're strictly fresh, knows that the quality MUST be there, knows that the printed promise of this store can be taken LITERALLY.

We Can Hardly Believe It Either

CAPONE LINGERS IN HAVANA

HAVANA, May 8.—(INS.)—Rumors which gained considerable credence here today said that "Scarface" Al Capone plans to settle down in Havana.

He came here a short time ago with six friends.

Capone also was reported to have invested a sizeable sum of money in a local enterprise.

CHICAGO, May 8.—(AP.)—Special prohibition agents, acting under orders from Washington, raided two Capone-operated night clubs in Cicero early today, made five arrests and seized a small quantity of liquor.

The Cotton Club, a popular resort operated by Ralph Capone, brother of Al (Scarface) Capone, and the Greyhound Inn, also a Capone night club, were the places raided.

McCormick Sleuth Misses $3,000 Gem Theft

CHICAGO, May 8.—(INS.)—A lone bandit who robbed the Gold Coast home of Miss Cecelia Sturm with a private detective only a few rods away, was at large today with $3,000 worth of Miss Sturm's jewelry.

The sight of the detective standing guard in the yard of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick's home next door was so reassuring that Miss Sturm left her door unlocked.

After plundering the home, the bandit forced Miss Sturm to lead him to the front door as though he were a guest, to avoid arousing the detective's suspicions.

SPAIN AWAITS REVOLT ACTION

MADRID, May 8.—(INS.)—The Spanish public today anxiously awaited the government's action in the face of reports from Barcelona of a revolutionary movement planned for tonight to establish another dictatorship.

Martinez Anido, Gen. Barrera and leaders of two cavalry regiments headed the movement, according to reports, and the revolt was advocated by them to compel King Alfonso to take stronger action against Republicans who seek to overthrow the monarchy.

Lieut. Gen. Damosa, speaking for the government, declared that the revolutionary movement had already failed, due to the fact that that the King had won over one of the cavalry leaders.

Sanchez Guerra, Meljuiades Alvares, Lerroux and other leaders decided to oppose the revolt after a conference. Though reports said that Barcelona was quiet, there was an undercurrent of uneasiness.

Police riot squads and firemen ended the melee in an hour. One student was arrested. Two others were treated for cuts on the head.

The unidentified bugler had hardly finished his rendition when electric light bulbs, bottles and the like were hurtling through the warm spring night. Police arrived as the students were parading in pajamas.

FOREST BLAZES UNDER CONTROL

NEW YORK, May 8.—(INS.)—Aside from several small blazes in New Jersey, forest and woodland fires which swept eastern states earlier this week were under control today.

In New England vast damage was done and Massachusetts today closed her woods to trout fishermen to prevent the danger of forest fires starting through carelessness of campers.

In New Jersey, a new fire at Leektown destroyed a sawmill, four homes and a large tract of pine timber.

Thousands of weary Jersey firefighters rested today, while the Red Cross and other relief agencies pushed work in caring for the homeless.

Rain expected today and tomorrow will completely extinguish all fires in New Jersey, officials said.

TWO MEN FACE DEATH IN CHAIR

CHICAGO, May 8.—(INS.)—Unless the Illinois State Supreme Court intervenes today with writs of supersedeas, two young bandit murderers will die in the electric chair here tonight.

They are William Lenhardt, Cleveland gunman found guilty of killing Milton Valisopoulos in a robbery, and August Vogel, "whim slayer" of Lyle Perrenoud, a young salesman.

Lenhardt was convicted on a charge of killing Valisopoulos in a robbery at his victim's restaurant in June, 1929.

Attorneys for both men have appealed to Associate Justice Frederic De Young, of the State Supreme Court, to stay the executions.

OIL PLANT FIRE LOSS $200,000

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP.)—An explosion and fire at a distributing plant of the Richfield Oil Corporation in Long Island City last night destroyed the building and wrecked four tank cars. Fire department officials estimated the damage at $200,000.

Several other oil plants were in danger for a time, including stations of the Tidewater and Utility oil companies, but were not damaged.

Several thousand gallons of high test gasoline were burned. The cause of the explosion and fire was not definitely determined but reports to police headquarters said a chauffeur spilled gasoline while filling the tank of his truck and that this was ignited.

EUROPEAN FILM TRUST EXPANDS

BERLIN, May 8.—(AP.)—In line with their project to build a film combine that will supply Europe with talking pictures made by and for Europeans, the Max Reinhardt-Curtis-Melnitz group has acquired the distributing facilities of the Terra Film Company from the German Dye Trust. The price was not made public.

The first pictures distributed by the new owners, it was said, probably will be a Reinhardt talking-film version of Offenbach's "Vie Parisienne" and two operettas scheduled to be produced by Herr Tietjen, general superintendent of the Prussian State Opera, who also will be on the board of directors.

SPORT DEALERS TO DEBUNK 'ADS'

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 8.—(AP.)—A code of trade practice ethics designed to debunk sporting goods advertising and to bring to an end the "indorsement racket" was adopted by representatives of 90 per cent of the sporting goods manufacturers of the United States at a trade practice conference held here by the Federal Trade Commission.

Garland S. Ferguson, Jr., chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, presided. Eleven resolutions were adopted all directed at false advertising and misrepresentation of the use of sporting goods products by athletes.

Under the proposed code of ethics, after the official adoption of the resolutions, sporting goods manufacturers must disclose the obligation existing between the use of an indorsement or the name of the player on the manufacturers' products.

Boy, 6, Dies After Drinking Pint Of Moonshine

BARNESBORO, Pa., May 8.—Charles DeDea, 6, is dead the result of acute alcholism, according to the verdict of a coroner's jury. The child is said to have procured a bottle of "moonshine" at his home and drank nearly a pint. Three physicians worked for more than four hours to save the child's life without avail.

Man's Charred Body Found in Fire Ruins

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., May 8.—In re-checking guests of the Brown Front Hotel, burned yesterday in the Smithfield fire, it was discovered that George Fullner, 50, of Benwood, Route 1, previously accounted for, had been working on night turn for the West Virginia Pipe Line Company and investigation disclosed his charred remains in the debris. He had been asleep in his room in the hotel.

GORE IGNORANT OF FEE CHANGE

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 8. (AP.)—Former Gov. Howard M. Gore, who was a member of the commission created by the Legislature to prepare a water power bill in 1925, said in a statement that he had never heard of the change in the power bill's license fee from 1 per cent to $10 on each 100 horsepower generated.

The matter came up at Charleston during the Cheat River power hearing before the Public Service Commission, and it was brought out that it had been charged in one newspaper's editorial column and reprinted in others that the fee provision had been "surreptitiously changed." A number of members of the Legislature appeared before the hearing to deny the contention.

Gore said he had never heard a single suggestion that the fee be altered and that he never heard of the reading of this bill either in the Senate or elsewhere in public with this proposed change. He added that "if he had been informed in any way that the Senate committee proposed to change the 1 per cent license fee to the ridiculous fee which was finally put into the bill by someone, he would vigorously have opposed it."

School Board Raises Sharon Tax 3 Mills

SHARON, Pa., May 8.—The tax levy has been increased from 23 to 26 mills by the school board. The increase was necessary to take care of an increase in expenses brought about when parts of Hickory Township were admitted to the district. The increase will give the board a total of $484,893.

The board has elected Carl Reinhardt and Miss Ardis Manning, of Sharon, as physical education directors at the new junior high school.

ATLANTIC GASOLINE

SUPER-QUALITY NO EXTRA COST

You could get along with less than five digits on your hand . . . but your efficiency would be bound to suffer.

You can get along with a gasoline that is efficient in some particular qualities though lacking in others—and there are many such fuels on the market. . . . But why handicap your motor when there's no necessity?

Atlantic Gasoline combines, to the highest degree ever attained, ALL the essentials of a complete all-round motor fuel.

Banks' Reopening Greeted by Bands

MONROE, N. C., May 8.—(AP)—Bands blared a welcome and fire trucks rolled in parade as two banking institutions opened in Monroe which for three weeks had been without an active bank.

For Monroe it was a jubilant moment. Three banks closed their doors three weeks ago from temporary financial distress with approximately two million dollars on deposit.

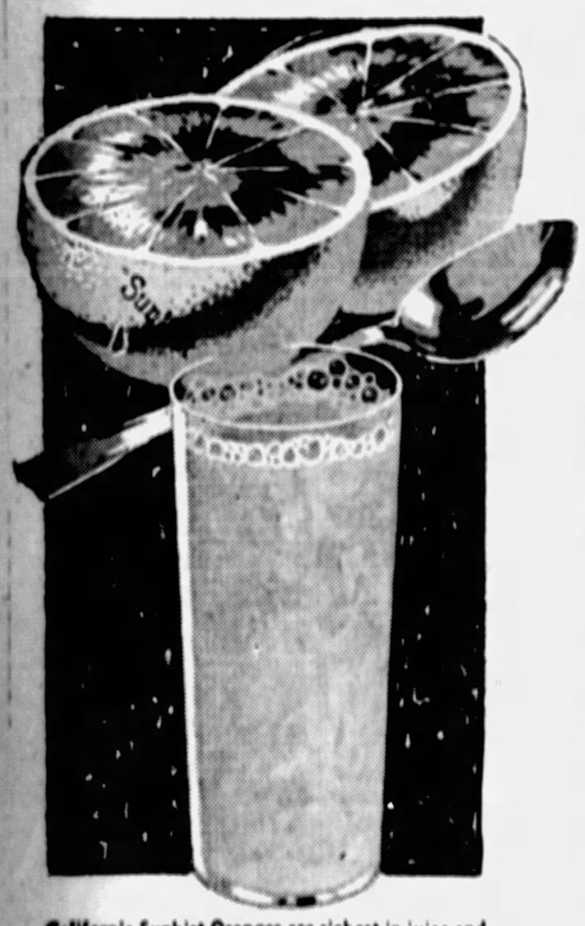
SUNKIST ORANGES



California Sunkist Oranges are richest in juice and finest in flavor. Compare their dark, rich juice with the paler kind from oranges grown elsewhere. . . . Besides, Sunkist Oranges make extra-attractive salads and desserts. Meat is firm but tender and may be prepared without waste or mussiness. Easier to peel and segment, too—and they slice appetizingly thin. ...The trademark "Sunkist" on skin and wrapper assures dependable quality.

A little arithmetic will save you money

FROM a mass of claims and counter-claims, one fact stands out--AMOCO-GAS gives more miles per gallon--least cost per mile.

This is proved every day by hundreds of truck-fleet operators who must know to a penny their cost per mile--and by thousands of motorists who want low operating costs and better performance, too.

Prove it to yourself by figuring your own cost per mile. Note how many more miles you get to each gallon--how this extra mileage cuts down your cost per mile. Over a period of time, notice your reduction in repair bills and generally reduced operating costs.

Put it up to AMOCO-GAS, your motor and a lead pencil. A little old-fashioned arithmetic will save you money. When you come to AMOCO-GAS and the lowest cost per mile, you'll come to better all-around performance, too.

The Bank of International Settlements will then be able to go forward with business. It was recently organized, and officers were elected, at Basel, Switzerland.

"Be a snob" says College Prof.

Promotion depends on appearance as well as brains

MAYBE this sounds foolish at first glance, but is it? How many men do you know who need just a little grooming to give them a better place in the world? Two things will improve your appearance immensely. Well kept hands and a good smooth shave! And "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly makes it possible to have both.

Take the shave, for example. Tomorrow morning spread a light film of "Vaseline" Jelly on your face before you work in the lather. Then shave and see the difference. After you try this once you'll be a "Vaseline" Jelly fan for life.

As for the hands—when you come in from doing any form of manual work, apply "Vaseline" Jelly and rub it in briskly before you wash. It softens the cracks, loosens the dirt, soothes the irritation.

IRENE'S DOUBLE LOSES SUIT

NEW CASTLE, Pa., May 8.—The jury in the case of Rose Majors against John Marlin, in which the former sought to secure $15,000 damages because of alleged slanderous statements made by the latter, yesterday returned a verdict in favor of the defendant.

Marlin reported to District Attorney John S. Powers on December 27, 1929, that when he had seen a woman and two men with a little boy coming from the apartment of Rose Majors on South Mill street, the woman pulled a gun on him and a man in the party stopped her. He had reported it to the district attorney because he thought the woman resembled Irene Schroeder and the child, Donnie Schroeder, who were wanted in connection with the murder of Corp. Brady Paul.

CAR CONDUCTOR TELLS HOW NEW KONJOLA WORKED

Suffered Three Years—Famed Medicine First To Bring Relief From Ailments

Don't harbor any doubts about the merits of Konjola, the medicine that has been quick to win new fame and friends everywhere it has been introduced and put to the test. Get all the facts about this medicine that triumphs even after all else tried has been found wanting. Hear the remarkable story of this new and different medicine from the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, Pittsburgh. See for yourself how Konjola, taken after meals, works with the food you eat in cleansing and stimulating the ailing organs, and in aiding Nature in paving the way for the return of new and vigorous health.

Take, as a typical example of Konjola at work, the case of Mr. Mark P. Lovett, street car conductor, 40 East Roseridge avenue, Bellevue, Pittsburgh. After all, results are what count in any medicine, and Konjola's success rests upon its proven ability to give splendid results. Even though Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals, it quickly brings relief, and a treatment of from four to eight bottles brings amazing results. Read, now, the words of Mr. Lovett, who recently said to the Konjola Man:

"I was generally rundown in health. I was weak, tired and worn-out each morning. I had stomach trouble that caused gas and bloating after eating. I also had headaches and dizzy spells. I was in this condition for about three years. I spent hundreds of dollars in an effort to get relief. I have paid as high as fifty dollars for examinations.

"Someone recommended Konjola and I got some right away. I didn't notice any results until after the second bottle. Then I felt refreshed each morning and ready for my day's work as conductor for the Street Railway Company. The gas and bloating disappeared and my food digests a lot better. Headaches are less frequent and my bowels are in more normal condition. It is worth so much to get relief that I am glad to indorse Konjola."

Konjola will produce results that will amaze those with the most stubborn ailments. It is recommended that six or eight bottles be taken as a fair trial.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man. Konjola is sold by all Dow Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

'GOAT GLANDER' ATTACKS LAW

TOPEKA, Kas., May 8.—(AP.)—Dr. John R. Brinkley, "goat gland" specialist of Milford, Kas., late yesterday filed suit in District Court here to enjoin the Kansas Board of Medical Registration and Examination from acting upon a complaint seeking revocation of his license to practice medicine and surgery in the state.

The Milford physician has been directed to appear before the board at a hearing June 17 to show cause why his license should not be revoked.

Judge George H. Whitcomb granted a temporary order restraining the board from acting upon the complaint pending hearing on an application for a temporary injunction set for May 16.

Dr. Brinkley's petition attacked the constitutionality of the law under which revocation of his license has been asked, on the ground it did not provide compulsory process for the attendance of witnesses.

Specific denial was made of the charges of gross immorality and unprofessional conduct contained in the complaint filed against the physician last week by Dr. L. F. Barney, Kansas City, Kas.

GIANNINI BACKS BRANCH BANKS

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP.)—The prediction that "nation-wide branch banking is coming and you can't stop it," was made before the House banking committee today by A. P. Giannini, organizer of the Bank of Italy and the Trans-America Corporation.

"You can't block economic progress," he said. In these days of rapid communication and transportation, the little communities are drying up."

Giannini testified in the committee's study of banking two days after retirement from active participation in the organization he built up from a small district bank, in 1904, to be one of the country's largest financial institutions.

According to Agent Roush, the defendant had forged the names of physicians to the prescriptions and passed them in drug stores in Dormont, Pittsburgh, McKees Rocks and Braddock.

Soft Road Bottom Delays Paving Job

HARRISBURG, May 8.—(AP.)—Discovery that soft formations exist, instead of shale and rock, beneath a proposed highway improvement in Fayette County, resulted in withdrawal of the project from the bidding scheduled for May 16, Samuel S. Eckels, chief engineer of the Department of Highways, said today. New specifications are being drawn providing for a more substantial foundation.

The improvement in Menallen and Franklin townships, would complete paving of the most direct route between Uniontown and Pittsburgh.

WAR ACE FREED BY DIVORCE

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(INS.)—Lawrence E. Hoover, world war aviator, was on the road to marital freedom today and spread on local court records is a tale of meetings between Mrs. Muriel De Vere Lyttleton Hoover, his wife, and Brig. Gen. George A. L. Dumont, former French military attache here.

Justice William Hitz, in the Supreme Court, handed down an interlocutory decree for absolute divorce, granted in Washington only for unfaithfulness. Gen. Dumont, a married man with grown daughter, was named co-respondent. Mrs. Hoover, an English woman, and Gen. Dumont are said now to be in France.

The Hoovers were married in London in 1918 just before the armistice. Mrs. Hoover was a noted beauty and the marriage was the culmination of a wartime romance.

MONACO VOTING SET ASIDE

MONTE CARLO, May 8.—(AP.)—Prince Louis of Monaco has annulled the election of the national council chosen last Sunday by the delegates elected March 30. His decree said the election was nullified for "having been carried out contrary to the Constitution."

The delegates elected in the national and municipal elections of the principality on March 30 will meet again on May 17 to appoint an entire new slate for the national council. This council will take office on June 8 if it meets with the prince's approval.

The annulling of last Sunday's election does not mean that there will be another general popular ballot in Monaco. At the last election, March 30, the party supporting Prince Louis and led by Mayor Eugene Marquet won an overwhelming victory.

Prince Louis declared that the national council elected Sunday was not that which the people had approved in March. Monacan politics have for some time been in a state of turmoil and confusion, and Prince Louis has been reported several times on the verge of abdicating in disgust at political disputes over disposal of the gambling Casino receipts.

Under the 1911 constitution, the government is carried on under the authority of the prince by a ministry assisted by a council of state, and the legislative power is exercised by the prince and a national council consisting of 21 members elected for 4 years.

DROPPING BIBLE STUDY CLEARED

AMHERST, Mass., May 8.—(AP)—An official explanation of the discontinuance of the course in Biblical literature at Amherst College that has been conducted for the last six years by the Rev. Dr. James Gordon Gilkey, pastor of South Congregational Church, Springfield, was issued on authority of President Arthur Stanley Pease. It was stated that the object of the discontinuance of the course conducted by Dr. Gilkey two days a week was eventually to place such a course under direction of a resident, full-time member of the faculty. The present instance was said to parallel similar cases in the past.

The replacement of the present course will not be possible for lack of time and funds, until the college year 1931-32, it was said, but the omission for the 1930-31 year will not mean that students wishing to study Biblical literature during their college course will be unable to do so.

The announcement of the discontinuance of the course conducted by Dr. Gilkey has caused considerable protest, not only among members of the student body but by alumni.

Declares Woman Red Cross Doctor

Recommends Dr. Luntz's Flaxolyn To Win The Glorious Healthy Color and Smooth Skin Which Always Awakens Warm Admiration

There is no sickness which tells on a person so quickly as that dreadful, yet common condition, Constipation. One famous physician states that the intestinal poisons due to constipation are the principal cause of twenty different skin affections.

Dr. Regina Schuman, noted doctor of Leningrad, Russia, and an active physician on the battle-front with the Russian Red Cross during the war, says: "If your complexion betrays your constipated condition; if you suffer from loss of appetite, gas on the stomach, or from a run-down condition, my best advice is: 'try Flaxolyn'.

Calls Flaxolyn Concentrated Health Force

"Of the hundreds of tonic-laxatives which have come to my professional notice in the course of my many years practice," continues Dr. Schuman, "I find none so ideally suited to combat the evils of constipation and to build up the system, as Flaxolyn.

"Flaxolyn's old-fashioned, harmless herbs and other ingredients are of the utmost benefit in quickly helping to restore the bowels and stomach to natural action. Flaxolyn provides a concentrated health force."

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Oldtimers will shake their heads over the passing of John Goettmann, for they will recall Goettmann's restaurant in Diamond street and long for those good old days. Mr. Goettmann and his brothers, Charles and George, were famed hosts. Everybody, it seems, ate at Goettmann's, and the menu was as varied as the clientele. At one table you might hear a group of gamblers in deep discussion and at the next you would see, but not overhear, politicians in whispered confab.

There was a bar attached to the Goettmann restaurant, but Mr. Goettmann reversed the order of food serving as subsidiary to beer. The Goettmann bar closed at 8 p. m., because its proprietor felt that primarily he was a restaurateur; the brass rail was a convenience to diners.

To many Pittsburghers the Goettmann bar, despite its excellent reputation, will be remembered as the one saloon invaded here by Carrie Nation, she of hatchet fame. They say that Carrie strode right up to the bar, thumped an enthusiastic fist on the wet counter and told the assembled gentry they were filling themselves with poison. She was escorted not only from the saloon, but from the city, or at least warned to visit no more such hostelries.

Mr. Goettmann's first restaurant was a small affair in Diamond street many years ago—so many years ago that Diamond street was then known as Diamond alley. With limited capital Mr. Goettmann had opened his doors and the menu was as limited, featuring such inexpensive and easily available dishes as beef stew.

As proud as an actor, Mr. Goettmann, who was all the waiters, used to serve well-filled dishes of steaming stew to customers of simple tastes. But he liked to tell of how, now and then, unexpected visitors would order sirloin steaks and he would bark back to the chef, "One sirloin, well done," and the chef would hastily lay aside his apron and run fearfully to the higher-priced restaurant two blocks north to borrow, until next morning, a steak.

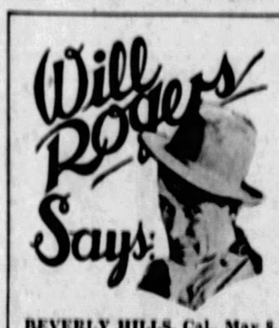
We have a solution for the evil of boys hopping rides on street cars, although it is not quite the solution that Tom Fitzgerald and other moguls of the Pittsburgh Railways have been seeking, vainly. Our idea is to advertise the boys as an added attraction. Certainly they provide good entertainment.

Last night at least 10 boys were hanging to the sides of the trolleys, riding free and high. One went so far as to crawl to the roof of the car while it was in action. It is next to impossible to chase them away, for before each stop they hop from the car and wait until it starts again. If Mr. Fitzgerald will become reconciled to the situation, he will see the merit of our suggestion and no doubt send us a check for the best suggestion of the month, if not the year. Buy a street car pass and see the acrobats!



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 8.

We was all just reading about the wonderful reception and sincere love and affection shown our Gold Star Mothers on their way to France—it made us proud to be living in such a generous nation. Then in the very next column, another mother killed seven children because she could not feed 'em any longer.

Where is all these relief organizations that have all the social names on the literature. This woman was on streets before their eyes every night. This poor soul had done her bit for Ohio, she had contributed a husband to its wonderful jail.

Yours,

WILL.

FOURTH JURY PLOT SUSPECT SOUGHT

GIRL UNAFRAID

CHAPTER XXVI.

Ken's words—sending a poison of despair stealing through her . . . Not wild and rebellious despair which held bracing anger. This was a cold hand crushing down in her heart. Crushing hope.

She was face to face with the thing she feared. Here was the reason for that uncertainty which had lurked beneath her happiness. Fate had cornered her—and she could not fight back.

Her youth and beauty—they were weapons to wield against Cecile. But that threatening future had changed its appearance. No longer Cecile's beautiful, cynical face which opposed her. Cecile was a secondary menace now.

That unfriendly future had taken on the aspect of a frail old woman. A feeble woman who held the invincible weapon of helplessness.

Faint terror stealing through her . . . and the sick sense of being beaten.

"Well—that's the gist of it—" Ken's voice was tired and beaten. "I'll be frank. I forgot all about you, Ardeth, and our dinner engagement. I was like something crazy. Took all my wits to keep up in front of Mother. Musn't let her suspect. I had to go out to Cecile's dinner, of course, or she'd have begun to ask questions. When I met the others I sort of got a grip on myself. I remembered you. I got to a telephone. But you'd already left. And then I saw you out there with Tom."

"Oh, Ken—Ken"—she was groping for him, blind with regret and despair.

He patted her arm, but his eyes were absent and there was a grim set to his mouth.

Ardeth Sorry

Tells Why She Went With Tom

"Ken"—her voice trembled, "I can't say how sorry I am. I didn't guess. I'm a jealous cat, I suppose . . . And while I was waiting, Tom passed. He asked me to go. I was nearly crazy—when you wait alone, every minute is a year, you know—"

He interrupted her halting voice. "I don't blame you, Ardeth. It—it just sort of got me, seeing you look up at Tom like that. But I should talk—I have no right—"

"Don't say that!" she cried sharply. "Oh, dearest—there's only you!" Heedless of passing cars, she flung her arms about him.

Ken was pale to the lips as he gently loosed her clasp. His eyes avoided her own—went far out to fasten on a red oil tanker nosing its way out the Gate. He spoke slowly, as though he had difficulty finding the words.

"I'm so damned miserable, Ardeth. I don't know how to say this. I've been thinking—going over and over last night in my mind until I'm nearly crazy. Seeing you, last night with Tom, sort of opened my eyes. He—he likes you, Tom does. I feel—oh, I feel like a dog in the manger—"

Wants Her

Stalled Because of His Mother

"Why?" her stiff lips would hardly form the word.

"To keep you from—from other fellows."

"Oh." Her hands were clasped so tightly that the knuckles were bloodless. "Oh"

He turned on her with a sort of angry wildness. "No! You mustn't think that! That I don't care! There's nothing I wouldn't go through for you! I'd marry you tomorrow—but—there is mother. I can't break her heart. It would mean just that if I went to her and told her that you—that I—! Oh—of course she'd say she wanted me to be happy—that's the way with mothers. But she's set her heart on—on Cecile. She thinks she's doing the best thing for me. And how can I cross her now?"

The last, almost a groan.

"No—" she whispered. "No—you can't."

He went on more calmly. "Stall . . . That's what I've been doing. You know it! Hoping things will come right. If she had anyone else—my father—or another son . . . I can't hurt her. And I have no right to ask you to wait—for years, maybe. . . . A girl like you—and old Tom more than half in love with you now."

Sweet and vivid relief shooting through her veins. Warming her to life—to a love which was pain.

"Oh—darling—" she was fumbling for his hand. "Is that all! Wait—Oh—for a hundred years! Any time, Ken, so it comes right for us in the end! I thought—Oh, I thought you didn't want me!"

"Want you." The husky roughness of his voice was music. "Wild about you, Moth. But—I'm caught!"

She was suddenly buoyant. "Ah, just for now! But some day things are going to come right for us!"

Optimism

Happier After Their Conversation

He flinched away from his own thoughts. Drew a deep sigh. "Maybe you're right . . . After all, why shouldn't they?"

The warm optimism of youth flowing back with the thought. "Maybe the doctor isn't right about Mother. Doctors have been mistaken before." He turned. Drew her to him with rough passion. "We'll make things come right, Moth!"

They parted on that note.

Days merged into weeks. Autumn into winter. Ardeth felt that she moved through a dream. She was holding her breath lest she wake.

The shop filled her days, for Jeanette was becoming bored with her new toy. It was only the gossip of the smokerie which brought Jeanette down each day.

It was Ardeth who did the real work of the store; not only selling now, but buying—sending out the bills and the checks at each end of the month.

Tom Calls

Ardeth Remains Loyal To Ken

In the evenings there were little inexpensive dinners with Ken. There were long rides down the highway through the crisp, star-filled nights.

When Ken could not be with her she stayed quietly in her own room, sometimes reading, filmy pink trifle which later would be laid away in the bottom bureau drawer.

A steadily growing stack of dainty underthings were here. Some nights Ardeth would sit back on her heels, eyes like stars, while she lifted the tissue paper and gloated over them. The beginning of her modest trousseau. It seemed, in some mysterious way, to hasten the time when she and Ken could be married.

Now and then a note of dogged hope in his voice. Tom Corbet phoned and asked her to go out with him to dinner—to a show.

Gentle finality gloried in this chance to show her loyalty to Ken. Better to stay alone like this, in the quiet little room perched high above the city, than to go out with someone else.

There was comfort in the thought. It was, she thought defiantly, as though she were earning the right to her happiness.

Indict Beer Runner In Headless Murder

Philip Fazio, of Clairton, alleged beer runner, was indicted by the grand jury yesterday on a charge of murder growing out of the slaying of William Gregory, whose headless body was found in a barrel in Penn Township. Gregory, driver for a beer syndicate, was believed murdered for revenge after he was alleged to have double-crossed his employers by selling a truckload of beer.

Fazio, who was arrested a few days after the identification of the body, denies knowledge of the murder.

MUNHALL'S TAX UP ONE MILL

The valuation of taxable property in Munhall for 1930 is $20,373,480, an increase of more than $7,000,000 since 1929, according to a statement of L. Y. Woodward, borough clerk. The increase was made possible by the $2,500,000 improvements at the Homestead Steel Works of the Carnegie Steel Company, and by the annexation of Homestead Park, the Vondera Plan and other sections within the last year, according to Woodward.

The 1930 tax rate has been set at 12 mills, 1 mill higher than that of 1929.

The Sproul station is located in Frankstown road, Wilkinsburg, was sold by the sheriff two weeks ago to satisfy a lien of $7,943.75, which Sproul's former attorney, Kenneth Cunningham, alleged was owing him for professional services.

The radio commission yesterday announced that the application of the Pittsburgh Broadcasters and that of William Roy McShaffrey had been consolidated and that a joint hearing would be held.

Lose Pound-a-Week Menu

DIET NO. 10

To reduce one pound a week, a series of safe and sane diets have been prepared by Dr. A. I. Ringer, consultant on metabolism for the Medical Information Bureau of the New York Academy of Medicine. They are appearing daily in the Sun-Telegraph. Here is the tenth day's diet for tomorrow:

BREAKFAST

One orange

Two shirred eggs

Thin slice of bread

Tea, one cup

LUNCH

Moderate portion of broiled lobster

Dandelion greens salad without dressing

Thin slice of bread

Coffee, one cup

DINNER

One plate of consomme

Moderate portion of T-bone steak

Beet greens salad with lemon juice

Sliced tomatoes

One baked potato

Diet Hints

Overeating has become a social habit. Most social affairs in the present day are accompanied by food. Hostesses think they have failed in their duties if they don't provide refreshments for their guests.

Most of the food served at social functions, such as bridge parties and teas, is rich in calories, and consequently very fattening. There are usually sandwiches, cakes and salads, with liberal helpings of whipped cream.

Guests who are trying to reduce their weight should consider their reducing a polite excuse for refusing to eat all the food offered them, says Dr. A. I. Ringer, consultant on metabolism for the Medical Information Bureau of the New York Academy of Medicine. The daily reducing diets appearing in the Sun-Telegraph contain just enough food to keep up bodily energy, and to reduce weight at the rate of one pound a week.

Gang Killing Case Goes to Jury Today

The death penalty was asked for Ulysses Pridgeon, Negro, of Jacks Run road, by Prosecutor Jacob Kalson today in Pridgeon's trial on a charge of murdering Emmet Curtis, 27, Negro, of Idlewild street. The jury was to be given the case this afternoon.

Pridgeon admitted he was with the gang of six accused in the shooting of Curtis but denied firing the revolver.

Westminster Guild Will Hold Supper

THREE FACE CHARGES IN FIXING

Judge Holds Contempt Case In Abeyance; McDonald Cleared; Woman Accused

The jury tampering plot investigation, in which city patrolmen are accused, had crystallized today into the arrests of three persons, one of them a woman, with a fourth being sought by county detectives in connection with the case.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park swore out informations late yesterday charging embracery against Mrs. Joseph Hamovitz, of 2610 Webster avenue; her husband, Joseph, of the same address, and Frank Nathan, of 5630 Montour street, after a hearing before Judge Frank P. Patterson, in which Plainclothesman Earl McDonald was questioned. McDonald was not held.

The fourth suspect, who Hamovitz testified was a man named "Angel," is being sought by detectives. He is alleged, according to Park, to have been one of the men who approached the jurors.

WOMEN INVOLVE POLICE

The case grew out of the assertions of two jurywomen—Mrs. Elizabeth Austin, of 251 Oakland avenue, and Mrs. Marie Weisbecker, of Webster avenue—that they had been approached by men—one of them a policeman in uniform—and asked to give the defendant "the breaks" in a $25,000 damage suit.

Mrs. Laura Faulkner, wife of Police Inspector Charles Faulkner, was defendant in the suit. She was named in proceedings brought by William P. Leathers as a result of an automobile accident at Perrysville and Marshall avenues, North Side, two years ago.

Immediately after the hearing yesterday, District Attorney Park announced the investigation would be continued to discover the identity of the policemen who called on Mrs. Austin and Mrs. Weisbecker.

LIST GIVEN OFFICER

Although Judge Patterson told Park and Assistant District Attorney Meredith Reid he had sufficient evidence to hold the three suspects for contempt of court and for alleged violations of the 1925 jury tampering law, he said he would reserve decision "pending their further conduct." Immediately afterwards Park filed embracery information.

It was testified that Plainclothesman McDonald was at the counsel table when jurors were being picked to hear the case. He was given a list, testimony brought out, of jurors and several times went into conference with Mrs. Faulkner's counsel when challenges were made.

Questioned as to why he sat at the table McDonald told Park he was a witness in the case and at no time talked about challenges. He obtained the list, he asserted, to show to Mrs. Faulkner, feeling "she would be interested in knowing who was serving on her case." Neither of the two jurywomen could identify McDonald as one of the men they say approached them.

James M. Clark, director of public safety, has announced he would recommend immediate dismissal of any policeman convicted and ordered Inspector Faulkner to make a complete investigation and interrogate every officer under him on the charges.

COUNCIL URGES ANDERSON

James B. Anderson, assistant postmaster here, was indorsed for successor to George W. Gosser by eight city councilmen in a petition sent to Senator David A. Reed in Washington. The only councilman not signing the document was Charles Anderson.

The assistant postmaster has been in the service of the postoffice department 30 years, beginning as a clerk. The petition cites that "he posseses the necessary qualifications for the position."

Commerce Members Electing Directors

Chamber of Commerce members today were engaged in electing the 12 men who will serve as directors for the next three years. It is expected that virtually the entire membership of 6,500 will participate in the election. There is a ticket of 24 candidates to be voted upon.

Voting machines are being used. The polls opened at 10 o'clock and were to remain open until 4 p. m. The results of the election will be announced tonight.

Auto Injures Girl, Driver Is Arrested

Virginia Burdette, 19, of 7137 Frankstown avenue, struck by an auto at Highland and Penn avenues today, received a probable fractured skull. She was reported in fair condition at Pittsburgh Hospital. The driver, Alexander Smithers, of Susquehanna street, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving.

Park Will Speak To Kiwanis Club

District Attorney Andrew T. Park was scheduled to speak at the luncheon meeting of the Pittsburgh Kiwanis Club in the Fort Pitt Hotel today. He was to speak on "Crime and Prison Conditions."

Special Stamp Will Mark Braddock Battle Fete

The one hundred seventy-fifth anniversary of the battle staged in what is now Braddock, North Braddock and Rankin, will be marked by the special issue of two-cent "Battle of Braddock" stamps which Postmaster General Walter F. Brown authorized yesterday. The anniversary will be observed July 8 and 9 and many officials of state and nation are planning to attend the ceremonies.

Frank Vittor, Pittsburgh sculptor, has been asked to design the sketch for the stamp. The design will be a reproduction in an oval of the bronze statue of George Washington as a young colonel. The stamp was authorized following a conference with the United States Commission created by President Hoover to assist the towns in staging the celebration. Congressman Clyde Kelly requested the stamp and also asked Mr. Vittor to design the sketch.

FIVE INDICTED IN U. S. COURT FOR POSTAL VIOLATIONS

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interested.

Today's Question: To counteract activities of enemies of society, are moral welfare organizations justified in lobbying for their causes in Washington?

Miss Faix

MARIE FAIX, Beltzhoover, stenographer: No, nobody has a right to lobby. It isn't right to try to influence legislation by appeal to the emotions rather than to reason — and that's essentially what lobbying is.

C. B. Anderson

C. B. ANDERSON, downtown, radio engineer: I'd say yes. They have all the right in the world to go to Washington and lobby for what they think is right, just the same as anyone else. It's your privilege to help or influence legislation all you want — how else is the government to know just what the people want?

Miss Thoma

MARY THOMA, Beltzhoover, stenographer: Was Senator Grundy a moral welfare organizer? I know he'd like us all to believe he was. And how about Evanson on tariff and Shearer's armaments? If we allow moralists and the Anti-Saloon League in there, the others have a right as well.

Miss Sproul

ALYS SPROUL, Oakmont, bookkeeper: Yes, they do. I think they have as much right to take part in making laws as our legislators. Heavens knows we need them in Washington this very minute, more and more.

C. J. Kaufman

C. J. KAUFMAN, Mt. Lebanon, credit manager: Oh, I don't know. I suppose half of the Senate is lobbying on the side. If outsiders don't get it, the insiders will. So it looks as though we need the outsiders to keep the legislators clean.

Miss Mock

HELEN MOCK, North Side, biller: Well, no. Everyone has the right, I suppose, to try to get through legislation that will help their interests. But the lobbies, wet or dry, religious and atheistic, have used such rotten methods and have spent so much money that I am getting to distrust them and think they're all crooked.

THREE FORMER EMPLOYES TO BE TRIED

Ex-Postmaster, Clerk and Carrier Involved; 13 Held Under '5 and 10' Law

Five men, three of them postoffice employes, were indicted by the Federal grand jury yesterday for violations of the postal laws. The grand jury returned 25 true bills in which 30 defendants were named. Thirteen offenders were cited under the Jones "five and ten" law. THREE INDICTED FOR VICTIMIZING MERCHANTS HERE

FORGED MONEY ORDERS LAID TO TRIO

Federal Grand Jury Acts After Postal Inspector Runs Down Accused Men

Three men accused of victimizing Pittsburgh business houses on March 11 by tendering forged postal money orders for $100 each, in payment for merchandise, were indicted by the Federal grand jury here. The forgeries were said to have been made from a book of blank money orders stolen from a branch postoffice in Detroit, a week before they were passed here. The three men were later apprehended in other cities by descriptions of them sent from Pittsburgh by Postoffice Inspector George V. Craighead.

JEWELERS VICTIMIZED

They were named in the indictment charging the forging and passing of 10 counterfeit money orders, as Sam Silverman, alias Thomas A. Harrison, alias F. J. Thomas; Claude S. Sweesy, alias Claude B. Sweetland, alias Worth A. Hower, and Henry A. Lauer, alias Jack Lane. Among the victims were four downtown jewelery stores. After the "clean-up" they were said to have visited a downtown bank and obtained certified checks for the money received in change from purchase.

Before coming to Pittsburgh the passers of the counterfeit orders left a trail of the spurious orders in New York, Buffalo and Erie, each for $100. Inspector Craighead obtained descriptions and gave a special warning to the postal authorities in Cleveland to be on the lookout for them.

WOMAN SHOT

This reulted in the arrest of Silverman a few days later when he was said to have attempted to pass a counterfeit order in a Cleveland department store. He was turned over to a policeman and in an attempt to escape, fired a shot which struck a women pedestrian.

He is now under arrest in Cleveland. The other two men named in the indictment were arrested a few days later in Indianapolis, Ind., and taken to New York, where, last Monday they were convicted in the Federal Court, and each sentenced two years to the Atlanta penitentiary.

Detainers will be lodged against the three men for their appearance for trial in Pittsburgh.

Plans for the funeral of the Rev. Charles J. He was born in Germany and was brought to the United States when a child. He attended St. Augustine parochial school and the St. Fidelis Seminary at Herman, Pa. At the time of his death he was the oldest alumnus of the seminary.

After leaving the seminary he entered St. Vincent College, at Beatty, Pa., from which he entered the priesthood June 27, 1897. He organized St. Basil's congregation and erected a church in 1907, which was used until 1923, when the present church was built.

He leaves a brother, John Stepping, of Hollywood, Cal.

OUSTER TAKES NEW TURN

The political row over ousting the deputy constables in Alderman Thomas A. Flannigan's office in the First Ward took a new turn when Constable John Schneider, at whose instance the deputies had been appointed, filed a petition in Quarter Sessions Court revoking the appointments and asking the court to approve his action. The deputies are William Duncan and Ross S. Talamo, both of whom are acceptable to Alderman Flannigan, but Constable Schneider is now on the other side of the political fence.

Schneider gives three reasons for discharging his help: that he has no further need for their services; that he does not desire their services and that complaints have been made that the deputies have conducted themselves improperly. A hearing is to be held before Judge Thomas J. Ford on Friday when this latest move will supersede a prior petition filed by Schneider to have the deputies removed by the court for cause.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

100 Attend Vassar Lunch

There would be no doubt in the mind of anyone who was at Fox Chapel Golf Club yesterday that society folks do lots of things besides dancing and golfing and traveling. Ever so many of them do all these things, too, and win degrees at many of the leading women's colleges.

Nearly 100 society folks were at the annual luncheon of the Pittsburgh Branch of the Vassar Alumnae. Garden flowers in spring's gayest hues decorated the tables.

And before the meeting in the afternoon members strolled about the grounds of the beautiful clubhouse, and chatted with friends on the terrace.

Mrs. Joseph W. Kennedy was named vice president. Mrs. Philip E. Engle treasurer. Mrs. LeRoy B. Mitchell representative and Mrs. Malcolm P. McConnell auditor.

Talking with a group of friends on the terrace was Mrs. A. R. Little, who wore a smart brown print crepe and a wide-brimmed straw hat in brown.

Prints Popular

A yellow crepe dressmaker suit suit was worn by Mrs. Horace Forbes Baker with a hat of the same shade in straw, and a brown ensemble by Mrs. R. Templeton Smith. Mrs. George E. Shaw looked smart in a printed blue chiffon frock with a hat to match, and Mrs. George Pomeroy Bassett, Jr., wore a flowered chiffon dress.

Mrs. J. O. Miller was there, and Mrs. Eugene Gary looked attractive in a smart lavender crepe suit with a hat to match. Mrs. D. H. Martin Boyd wore a red crepe gown and a red straw hat. Mrs. Charles H. Matthews chose a chartreuse green crepe ensemble with a hat to match, and Mrs. Lloyd Kimmerling wore a green printed crepe gown with a black baku hat. Mrs. Milton Leggett's gown was of blue and white printed crepe with short sleeves, and her hat was of black straw.

I saw Mrs. Russell Dodworth, Jr., in a black and white printed gown, and Mrs. Samuel Comly and Mrs. Paul Frederick.

Rosebuds cannot resist this glorious sunshine much longer, and soon we shall have an abundance of roses and brides and bridal parties.

To Wed In East

And one of the most important brides in the realm of society will be Elizabeth Cugle, daughter of the Edwin Cugles, of Park avenue, Baltimore, Md., who'll marry John Baldwin Neil Benney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Barnes Benney, of Edgeworth, on Monday, June 2.

The wedding will take place in the Memorial Protestant Episcopal Church of Baltimore, with the Rev. Benjamin Lovett, the rector, as officiant.

Mrs. Arunah Sheperdson Abell IV, of Baltimore, will be her sister's matron of honor, and Mrs. McElroy Moss, of Washington, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Walter Armistead Williams, of Richmond; Alice Harvey, of Wilmington, Del., and Carolyn Reeves Taylor, Malanie A. Dugan and Elizabeth Wister Huey, all of Baltimore, will be bridesmaids.

Richard R. Quay, Jr., of Sewickley, will be best man. And later on I'll tell you who the ushers will be.

Elizabeth made her debut at the famous Bachelors' Cotillion of Baltimore several years ago, and Mr. Benney is the grandson of the late Brig. Gen. John Baldwin Neil. He is a Princeton man and a last year's graduate of Oxford University.

June Brides

Nancy Shaw Miller, daughter of the William Booth Millers, of Sewickley, has named June 28 as the date for her marriage to Robert Upjohn Redpath, Jr., son of Mrs. Redpath and of the late Dr. Robert Upjohn Redpath, of Maplewood, N. J. Nancy was a graduate of Smith, class of '29, and her fiance, of Yale, class of 1928.

And I know of still another June date. Ursula Reilly, daughter of the Eugene S. Reillys, of Wightman street, whose betrothal to Joseph Harding Gillespie, son of Mrs. Anne M. Gillespie and of the late Michael J. Gillespie, of Boston, Mass., was announced recently, has named her wedding date, Thursday, June 5, will be the notable day, and the place of the ceremony will be St. Paul's Cathedral.

The list of June buds is surely growing, and there's no doubt now that the little season will be delightful. Some time ago I mentioned that Elisabeth Patton McKay, daughter of the Thomas J. McKays, of Morewood avenue, would be a debutante of the coming season. And now I know that she's going to be presented next month at a tea her mother will give in the family home on Monday, June 30. This year Elisabeth is studying at the French School in New York.

Mt. Lebanon Club Sees Playlet

Another original and interesting program has been set down in the annals of the Woman's Fortnightly Review of Mt. Lebanon. When the members gathered yesterday at "Avonlea," Mrs. J. W. Davis' charming new home in Ashland avenue, for a program under the direction of Mrs. S. A. Schreiner they found that it was to be a play written by Mrs. Schreiner. Further they discovered that she had written a sprightly little sketch, humorous and with an undercurrent of analysis and wholesome philosophy that gave them a most delightful afternoon.

Each part was read with a satisfying naturalness. Jean Charters and Virginia McCown, two of the club's loveliest daughters, were especially fine as "the younger generation," agreeing that their mothers had no time to hear their troubles because they were so busy going to parties, imbibing culture or saving the nation from something. Three "mothers" were played by Mrs. M. S. Kimmel, Mrs. S. Y. Free and Mrs. W. C. Allen, as members of the woman's club program committee, one of whom had her ideas in her "unconscious mind."

The philosophy, as well as much of the humor, was put into the mouths of the two "grandmothers." Mrs. J. V. Gilfillan and Mrs. I. G. Amsler. As the old-fashioned one who saw much to be thankful for in growing old, because there were "so many things you were through with," and who saw "the futility of much that women are doing," Mrs. Gilfillan voiced the belief that a parent cannot expect a child to respect the laws of its country when it has never been taught obedience to parental authority. Mrs. Amsler was the berouged, cigaret-smoking grandmother whose disposition had broadened along with her waistline, who believed in "form relief and not farm relief," and that every woman should look half and not twice her age. She it was who recalled the days when women's sleeves were baby blimps, when hats were kept on with sharpened lightning rods and a woman wore as much steel as a 1930 Ford car.

Mrs. Adolph Krebs contributed a song "off stage."

One of the earliest organizations to announce its plans for next season is the Oakmont Junior Woman's Club which has arranged as its opening event a bridge dinner for September 8 in the Alcoma Country Club. Glen Cleeton, of Carnegie Tech, will address the members on "Psychology Applied" in October, a travel talk is slated for November; December 1 will bring the Christmas party, and on January 5 the seniors will be entertained by the juniors at the Willows, and Miss Eleanor Flynn, of the Pittsburgh Girls' Conference, will address them. DESIGNERS ORIGINATE A SUITABLE SPRING COAT

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, MAY 8. — Even if you are well suited, there are times when your thoughts are likely to be coated with a desire for a new afternoon wrap, one that will adequately convey the luxury of leisure hours spent in delightful surroundings. Despite the prevalence of the suit there is a rising demand here for smart afternoon coats and wraps to be worn at functions where the suit however good looking it may be does not somehow seem quite adequate to properly grace the occasion. And so, such wraps are to be found in the majority of the new collections, and they are being readily purchased by the smartest women here. Although luxurious fabrics and furs are used, the wrap of the moment manages to retain an engaging air of simplicity and trimness. This is due in part to the absence of superfluous detail and complicated silhouette, and makes for a much more desirable garment than was the voluminous and richly embellished wrap of other seasons. Whether trimmed with silver fox or sable, the afternoon coat manages to retain the trig tailored effect that we have adopted as the sartorial trade mark of today.

THE SKETCH of the afternoon coat shown here is of a model featured in the new collection of Paquin. It is of heavy black crepe mongol with a shallow cape collar bordered by a single skin of silver fox. Turned-back, circular cuffs are caught up beneath a triangle of the same fur. The coat is not quite full length and dips down in back. Circular godets set in at either side afford a slight flare to the silhouette.

CHIFFON is being extensively employed for evening frocks just now, with emphasis on the monotoned fabrics in all sorts of alluring shades and hues. Emerald green chiffon was used to make the very youthful and attractive evening frock shown herewith. It is from Augustabernard, who is having much success this season.

THREE CIRCULAR flounces with the fullness caught at regular intervals form the bolero, the peplum and the skirt flounce, all of them important highlights of the mode. A flat belt of the fabric, stiffened at the back, is placed just above the hips and fastens with a strass and emerald buckle.

Johnston, Congress president, gave the invocation and later voiced an appreciation of the work done by the department during the year. Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, junior past president, complimented Mrs. Elsie Breese Mitchell, who is called "the little mother of the choral," because she organized it four years ago, on the splendid attainments of her group. Dr. Charles N. Boyd, director of the Pittsburgh Musical Institute, speaker of the afternoon, had as his subject, "Musical Amateurs." Dr. Boyd began by naming world-famous men, who, although following other professions and occupations, were really wonderful musicians, among them Borodini, of Russia, and Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the House.

A most delightful musical program was presented by Janet Turner, with Editha Weikal at the piano. George Miller, pianist, played some modernistic numbers, which pleased his audience greatly. Earl B. Collins, director of the choral, spoke briefly. Mrs. E. Boyd Birch, secretary, reported $220 in the scholarship fund, which was established a year ago.

COMMENT ABOUT PLAYERS AND EVENTS IN AMUSEMENT REALMS

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Everybody has read "The Last Days of Pompeii" and everybody has seen "Richelieu," but few people are aware that both were written by the same man, Edward Bulwer, Earl of Lytton. Walter Hampden's fine reconstructed revival of the old drama at the Alvin this week gives interest to the story of how "Richelieu" came to be written for William Macready.

"The Last Days of Pompeii" had just been finished, but not yet published, when actor and author met in Dublin. That was in 1834. McCready urged him to write a play, and the result was "The Duchess de la Valliere," a dismal failure.

George Seibel, who had been there.

"What do you think of the new play?" he asked the friend.

"Hm, it's very well for that sort of thing," was the friend's answer.

The play was a great success, but the authorship was not divulged for weeks. When anybody asked Bulwer what he thought of the new play, he always answered, "It's very well for that sort of thing."

Again the lure of the stage beckoned him and he got the idea of "Richelieu." How that play was written and rewritten, how Bulwer himself had no faith in it, how it finally came to production on March 7, 1839, is almost a romance.

BROWNING FIRST CRITIC

It is a curious coincidence that Robert Browning, on whose "Ring and the Book" Walter Hampden's other play of "Caponsacchi" is based, was the first to express a favorable opinion of "Richelieu."

While Macready and Bulwer were in doubt about the drama, the author wrote the actor: "I begin to despair of the play and of myself." So they decided that Macready should read it to a party of friends, among whom was Robert Browning.

They were asked to express no opinion aloud, but to write their impressions on slips of paper. Browning wrote the laconic sentence from "Hamlet":

"The play's the thing."

So "Richelieu" was finally produced, and scored an instantaneously overwhelming success. It had just become the fashion to call for "author," and the Times commented on this as follows:

"To Lytton Bulwer, according to the new and most absurd fashion, being called for, made his bow from the stage-box to a crowded audience."

OTHER BULWER PLAYS

Although he wrote several plays in later years, only one of Bulwer's other productions met with success, "The Sea Captain." "Not So Bad As We Seem," "The Rightful Heir," and "Junius" all died young.

But a satirical comedy called "Money" made a hit and remained in the repertoire for years. Its last pretentious revival was on the occasion of the Kaiser's visit to London in 1911, when it was played at Drury Lane as a gala performance in honor of the German Emperor.

Bulwer, who looked like a melancholy Byronic hero, has another distinction. He wrote the most foolish love letters that have ever been printed. When his wife left him, she published them to be revenged. And she had the pleasant habit of telling other novelists that their villains were not villainous enough.

"You should have known Bulwer Lytton," she said; "then you would have known what a real villain is like."

Frick School Head Speaks at Emsworth

Miss Antoinette Canfield, of the Frick Training School for Teachers, will address a meeting of the Emsworth Parent-Teacher association at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Emsworth School auditirium. Her topic will be "The Value of Music to Children."

MUSIC
Cine-Symphony Orchestra
Carnegie Music Hall

The Cine-Symphony Orchestra recently organized to secure employment for musicians whom the talkies and vitaphone deprived of income, gave a concert in Carnegie Music Hall last night. This orchestra began its career in connection with pictures shown in the Gayety Theater and is now making a heroic struggle not to "combat" the talkies, but to keep people interested in man-made versus machine-made music.

J. Fred Lissfelt

Certainly the experiment is noble enough and the purpose will eventually succeed, as we have so often seen the artist win over talking machine and radio, but whether this group of men can stand up against progress of the machine and win in their own day is still in question.

They played a high class program of popular classics, better than in most movie theaters. Litolff's "Robespierre" Overture, Nevin's "In Arcady," Massenet's "Scenes Pittoresques," Hadley's "Herod" and the Liszt "Second Hungarian Rhapsody." Umberto Egizi conducted, and Cass Whitney, a good local baritone, sang the Massenet "Vision Fugitive" and a group of songs. Owing to the greater number of strings than in most orchestras of this size, this orchestra should do some fine things with more rehearsal, and certainly every person interested in music will wish these men deserving success.

Mr. Gilbert Studies Voice And Evades Scribes Who Ridiculed Him

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, May 8.

Will Rogers is keen to produce Mark Twain's "Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," as his next outloud. Will usually has his own way when it comes to stories. So 'tis quite possible "Seeing America First" will be held in abeyance until after "Connecticut Yankee" is celluloided. With dialogue contributed by Rogers in his inimitable droll style the flick should be a wow. Tom Mix starred in a screen adaptation of the story years ago, but Tom played it more burlesque than satire.

Will Rogers.

JACK SILENT

For the past six or eight months, Jack Gilbert has kept severely to himself. At least he has insofar as interviews and statements are concerned.

Naturally, Gilbert felt the barbed sting of picture scribes both here and elsewhere. He heard his staunchest boosters declare, after seeing "One Glorious Night," that he was headed for the twilight of the stars. Perhaps he considered the wholesale slams unfair and unjust. After all, it was his first released talky. It was a miserable story. He received little help from the supporting cast. Catherine Dale Owen, a newcomer to the screen, heroined for him. She lacked warmness, her beauty being of a chilled, repressed nature.

John Gilbert.

People commented violently on Jack's voice. Yes, his voice did register badly. But after all, an audience would have shrieked at a basso spouting the hurdy-gurdy passion Gilbert was called upon to spout.

BUT HE'S NOT IDLE

Angry most likely at opinions that dismissed him with ridicule, Jack protected himself in silence. But he hasn't been idle. He has been studying voice. He probably has learned how to throw his voice so as to rid it of the high pitched quality it had in "One Glorious Night."

He is ready for his next talky. "Away For a Sailor." I think it is called. Jim Tully, his arch enemy of newspaper bally-hooing, will play one of the sailors who sees shore excitement with Jack. This a swash-buckling yarn as far removed from the tripe that was "One Glorious Night" as a mocking-bird is from a polar bear.

This department figures Gilbert will knock 'em for a loop with his second outloud. At all events, here's giving the boy a hand.

Warren (Fox actor) Hymer has nine dogs. The biggest is a St. Bernard, weighing 275 pounds. The next in size is a cross between a Big Dane and a St. Bernard that weighs 160 pounds and keeps fit on seven pounds of horse meat daily. Some pet. . . .

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

Old Boy

They fade—those showgirls of yesterday
Who ate my lobsters, drank champagne and wine
I purchased for a laugh when life was fine
And world's end lay just down below Broadway.

I passed one on the street the other noon
As I walked, old and grateful, in the sun;
I never would have known she was the one
Had she not said, "Do you forget so soon?"

So soon! It must be twenty years ago
When she was fresh and flawless as a flame.
And now I fumble and forget her name

They fade, and falter, but they haunt the street

You've Met Him

The newest type of nuisance is the "Tsitzer." He's the pest who is considered lower than a kibitzer and he is just as difficult to come out of your hair.

The Tsitzer doesn't interrupt card players by telling them how they should have played their hands. The Tsitzer" merely looks over your shoulder and when you make what he considers a blunder he smacks his tongue against his teeth, making this sound: tsitz tsitz, tsitz, tsitz, tsitz, tsitz.

As If We Didn't Know

Two Fans Meet

"Where were you last Saturday?"

"I was Garbo-Gilberting with my new heart, Molly."

"What! It seems as only yesterday that you were welded to Sarah."

"Oh, that's been Reno-vated."

"Is your new pash in the money?"

"Her pappy is ridiculous with it."

"Heheheh."

"Well, good luck and may all your troubles be blessed events."

Ho, Hum

Spring, birds sing
Wreckers wreck, lovers neck
Fishes spawn, people yawn
Flowers grow, poets poo
—Al Klein

Heheheh

E. E. Paramore, Jr., reports on the actor who came to Hollywood with a letter of recommendation from a Broadway manager. The letter concluded: "He plays Hamlet, Macbeth, Shylock and billiards—billiards best."

Sifton the Matter

Some of our sincerest friends and severest critics scored for the manner in which I handled Paul Sifton ... the Sunday World and his alleged interview with Ethel Barrymore. They pointed out that it was childish of us to accuse Sifton of "putting those words in her mouth" to even matters with us and the other dramatic critics who roasted his play "The Belt."

Well, Paul Sifton did put many of those words in Ethel Barrymore's mouth. According to mutual friends in Boston, where Miss Barrymore now is playing, she said:

"Winchell is right. Mr. Sifton misquoted me a great deal. I did not complain about the New York critics. I said I abhored the typical New York first-nighters and their wisecracking. In response to Mr. Sifton's query, 'What do you think of Walter Winchell?' I replied facetiously, 'It's a wonder he isn't shot for some of the things he writes about people. I didn't mention his dramatic criticisms. Nor did I call the other critics 'Rock Men' or imply that they were like the things that crawled from under rocks.'"

And so it appears that we were not so childish, after all, in suspecting Sifton of defaming his fellow critics, and if that interview is a sample of his news-gathering accuracy, then he obviously is as ridiculous a reporter as he is a playwright.

Gag

A 200-pound woman strong and healthy had her meek-looking and emaciated midget husband of 98 pounds arraigned before the night court magistrate.

"What's the charge?" queried Hizzoner.

"He beat her up," said the arresting cop.

"Do you plead guilty or not guilty?" asked the judge.

"Five dollars or five days," countered the court.

Later, when the hostile gnome had been lodged in the hoosegow, a court official said to the judge:

"Weren't you a trifle severe with him?"

And They Hang Pictures!

H. N. Swanson feels a bad gag coming on and he dares you to stop him. Says Mr. Swanson: "A chorus girl gets her 40 winks every night, but they come from the first row."

Newspaperman Stuff

Walter Hoban tells about one of Philadelphia's slower-thinkers who got a reporter's job on a Philly rag. He was assigned to a Fourth of July celebration in Fairmount Park there. The Governor was listed to let the eagle scream and the Mayor was billed for a patriotic outburst. After that the committee had arranged a load of fireworks.

The dope covered the job, returned to the editorial rooms and began to one-finger his report on the typewriter. Half finished, he looked up from his copy and said to the city editor, "By the way, the display of fireworks didn't materialize. The jolly old things exploded and injured a dozen children. Shall I mention that?"

Making Scoopee

Among other things that cannot wait for publication in the next "This Town of Ours" column is the fact that a New York newspaper is going to blow the lid off the Ohio prison phire and graft scandal, because the Ohio papers won't.

A Form of Criticism

Among other tacks left on our chair last night one reads as follows: "You don't have to be crazy to be a columnist, but apparently it helps a little."

And This—

"People who live in tin houses shouldn't throw can-openers!"

Miss Morris to Lead Pitt Grand March

Miss Agnes Claire Morris, Pittsburgh, will lead the grand march at the annual dance of the Students' Association of the University of Pittsburgh Downtown division at the Hotel Schenley Saturday evening. Leading the march with Miss Morris will be Clarence D. Weimer, president of the Downtown Students' Association.

HAMPDEN SPLENDID AS SOLDIER-SAINT IN 'CAPONSACCHI'

That richly poetic drama made out of Browning's "The Ring and the Book" and played here before by Walter Hampden, was repeated twice yesterday at the Alvin Theater. "Caponsacchi" is not only a remarkable play but also a role in which Hampden excels. As the soldier-priest he is dignified and romantic, reads his lines with intelligence and feeling, satisfies eyes and ears and stirs the heart. This is one of the finest things of our modern theater with a murder scene as gruesomely realistic as any thing could be.

EVERYTHING IN HARMONY

The production as a whole is on the same high level—everything in harmony. The Italian background is convincing, as it must be through the medium of Browning's great original. And the various actors of the company distinguish themselves—especially Cecil Yapp as the unctuous Canon Conti and Ernest Rowan as the inhuman Franceschini.

Ingeborg Torrup plays Pompilia and is just as appealing as Edith Barrett who played it before her.

A POPE IN JUDGMENT

Moffat Johnston is Pope Innocent, a part that is quite brief, but could almost dominate the play. He was adequate and impressive but did not reach the luminous serenity of Stanley Howlett who originated this part.

Claude Bragdon's noble setting for the drama of Arthur Goodrich and Rose Palmer is one of the best things he has ever done. It is a fitting frame for a well-nigh perfect drama. G. S.

Pirates Break Slump.
Hurling Still Problem.
St. Louis Weak Spot.
Rabbit Ball Up Again.
Injustice to Carey.

IMPROVED SPIRIT IS SHOWN BY BUCS

WHETHER IT WAS the sending of Fred Brickell into the lineup or something else that changed the luck, the fact remains that the Pirates looked like a different club, in spirit as well as in batting strength, when they turned the tables on the Giants yesterday in the third slugfest of the wild series at Forbes Field. It was by no means an ideal major league ball game that the Rovers won. On the contrary the weird, drawn-out exhibition, in which 24 runs and 31 hits were piled up by the two teams, taxed the patience and endurance of even the loyal home rooters. However, the victory was a start in the right direction, and it is to be hoped it marked the end of the slump in which the Bucs lost three games in a row, five out of six, and six out of eight.

Fred Brickell

Incidentally, it interrupted another long run of adversity in the matter of competition with the New York club. Up to yesterday, the McGrawites had beaten the Corsairs eight times in succession and had won nine of their last 10 games at Forbes Field.

ASIDE FROM THE season's fifth exhibition of high-grade relief pitching by Steve Swetonic, who has thus far been the best finishing hurler in the big show, further pleasing evidence of Pirate reserve strength was given by Fred Brickell. Back in the lineup for the first time since the second game of the year, Fred played a brilliant all-around game that made him look good enough for any regular outfield. With Ira Flagstead and Jim Mosolf also available the Bucs certainly appear more strongly fortified in that department than any rival outfit.

But in spite of the successful outcome of the afternoon's wild activities, the pitching branch continues to be a problem. Though given a six-run lead in the first inning, Ervin Brame had to be lifted in the fifth. It was Brame's first derricking of the season, but it was the tenth consecutive game in which Manager Ens was forced to use more than one hurler. He has been able to get through with a single flinger only six times in 18 game to date. Better pitching is the crying need. The Bucs cannot make 16 runs every day.

THE BASEBALL SITUATION in St. Louis is a source of worry to the club owners in the other cities of the two big leagues. Neither the Cardinals nor the Browns are drawing, and visiting clubs are barely making expenses there.

Sam Breadon

Last year, Sam Breadon, chief owner of the Cards, attributed the falling off in baseball attendance generally to the broadcasting of games by radio. This year the patronage in his own town has continued at a low mark and it is a question whether his action in moving up all Monday games in an attempt to coax the fans out to Sunday double-headers will help matters.

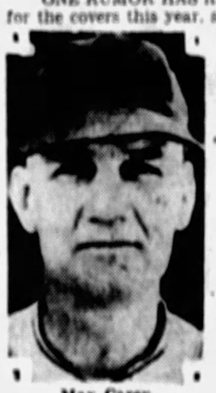
LAST SUNDAY THE initial bargain card of this kind between the Cards and Robins drew fewer than 16,000 paid admissions, and there is the added possibility that Sunday dual bills will hurt business further on week days. It is pretty clear that St. Louis will not support two clubs and that continuous baseball there will not pay. One team will have to be shifted, but there is likely to be a lot of wrangling next winter before a choice is made between the two proposals—the moving of the Cardinals to Detroit or the transfer of the Browns to Kansas City. On one hand it will be argued that Kansas City is not a major league town and is not suited geographically, and that besides it would hot be easy to make such an arrangement with the American Association. On the other side, the National League will contend, very naturally, that it was first in St. Louis and should have first rights to the territory.

THE HUGE DAILY totals in runs and hits, broken only occasionally by such a rarity as that 1-to-0 game in Cincinnati yesterday, has brought about during the last few days, a revival of the annual howl against the lively ball. The same complaint has been made every season for a decade—that the rabbit pill has cheapened home runs, and robbed the game of its scientific features.

Nothing has ever been done about it, however, and it is doubtful if the result will be different this time. The magnates simply refuse to see that the lively ball is one of the causes of the falling off in diamond interest of which they complain.

ONE RUMOR HAS it that the manufacturers used thicker leather for the covers this year, seeking to deaden the spheres, but succeeded only in making them even livelier.

But in a few days, as usual, we'll probably get the same old joke report from big league headquarters that there has been no change in the ball for many years and that the big scores are due simply to the "tardiness of the pitchers in rounding into shape."



Max Carey

WHEN BASEBALL WRONGS or unjust rulings are being discussed, the case of Max Carey must be given a prominent place on the list. The Pirate coach, during almost 20 years of service in the big show, has held the reputation of being a diamond worker never guilty of using vile language, yet on Tuesday he was ordered off the field by Umpire Donohue and suspended for three days by League President Heydler because of a remark directed at the arbiter by ANOTHER man on the Pirate bench.

IT HAS BEEN established that Carey did not utter a word and was wholly innocent, yet he has to suffer a suspension and a tarnished reputation for an offense that he did not commit. It's a tough break for one of the cleanest-mouthed players in baseball who now shows another real sporting quality by taking the rap for a clubmate without a squawk.

This is not the first time at Forbes Field that an innocent player has been punished through a case of mistaken identity. Several years ago an umpire standing behind the pitcher while the Giants were in the field turned around and fined Johnny Rawlings $50 for a remark that a subsequent investigation showed had been uttered by another New York player. On another occasion Lee Meadows, while a rookie with the Cardinals, was fined $50 through a similar mistake. The fine of Rawlings stood but that of Meadows was remitted.

IN BATTING IN five runs in one inning at St. Louis yesterday, Chick Hafey, of the Cardinals, did not equal the major league record, but he tied the best mark made in the last nine seasons. It has not

DESERT LIGHT, WHITNEY ACES NOT LISTED

BALTIMORE, May 8.—(AP.)—Eleven of the country's leading 3-year-olds were named today to face the barrier in the $50,000 added Preakness at a mile and three-sixteenths at Pimlico tomorrow.

Of the 11 named out of the 78 nominated, only one, Walter J. Salmon's Snowflake, coupled in the betting with Swinfield, is a filly. Snowflake will be under an impost of only 121 pounds as compared with 126 the others will carry. The entries and jockeys:

Belair stud's Gallant Fox, Earle Sande; Walter J. Salmon's Snowflake, S. Robertson; Home stable's Tetrarchal, W. Kelsey; Glenn Riddle Farm's Full Dress, J. McCoy; Audley Farms' Woodcraft, no boy; John L. Pontinus' Michigan Boy, J. Shelton; Seagram stable's Sweet Sentiment, F. Coltiletti; Thomas M. Cassidy's Crack Brigade, G. Ellis; Howe stable's Gold Brook, J. Maiben; Walter J. Salmon's Swinfield, L. Schaefer; Walter M. Jeffords' Armageddon, J. Eaby.

The Howe stable's entries of Tetrarchal and Gold Brook also are coupled.

Out of the list is Desert Light, Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt's colt, who this season has failed to bear out his promise as a 2-year-old. Harry Payne Whitney, three times winner of the Preakness, did not enter his Crazy Coot and will be unrepresented. He previously had announced his crack pair Boojum and Whichone, would not start.

DERBY FIELD CUT TO 30

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP.)—With the fifty-seventh running of the Kentucky Derby only 10 days away, the probably starting field has narrowed down to some 30 of America's outstanding 3-year-olds.

If more than 22 answer the bugle call on May 17, it will be a record for the Kentucky turf classic. Two years ago Reigh Count conquered 21 of the coun-

Fred Brickell got back into the lineup for the Pirates against the Giants at Forbes Field yesterday and was one of the biggest factors in ending the locals' losing streak. He handled six putouts and made two hits. Pictures above show him in action in the third inning. At the top he is beating out a bunt, in the center he is stealing second and at the bottom he is scoring on Grantham's double.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: WAVES DO NOT MOVE—In the apparent movement of a wave, the water does not advance with the disturbance of the water's surface. The energy alone, tending to restore the water's equilibrium, is transmitted. The matter is stationary. (Reference: Any treatise on elementary geology explains this phenomenon.) ST. THOMAS AQUINAS—St. Thomas Aquinas (1225-1274), born in Naples, of the family of the courts of Aquino, is the most brilliant theologian of the Western Church, and the greatest philosopher of the Middle Ages. For his great bulk he was known as the "Great Ox of Sicily." The detail I illustrated, of having his dining table cut to fit his body, is based upon C. Werner's "Der Heilige Thomas." SEA LEVEL IS NOT LEVEL—The surface of the sea is affected by winds, salinity, barometric pressure, temperature, vicinity of continental masses, coastward elevations, etc., and is highly irregular. The term "sea-level" employed by geodetitians is purely an imaginary term defined by spirit leveling. The surfaces of the waters of the different oceans show a great variety of elevations.

PRIMO TO BOX GODFREY

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—(AP.)—Primo Carnera, Giant Italian, and George Godfrey, Negro heavyweight of Leiperville, will battle in the Phillies' ball park on Monday night, June 23. Announcement of the match was made yesterday for the Philadelphia promoters by Frank Wiener, chairman of the State Athletic Commission.

Wiener said the seconds would have to be approved by him in order to avert a repetition of the towel-tossing incident in Oakland, Cal., recently which resulted in Carnera's suspension by the California and New York Athletic Associations as well as the National Boxing Association.

Babe to Give Radio Address Tomorrow

Babe Ruth, who has bruised many an ethereal wave and created many an air current with his home run bludgeon, will create an ethereal disturbance of an entirely different sort at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening when he will deliver a baseball message to the nation's diamond fans over the Columbia broadcasting chain.

The address by the Sultan of Swat gives promise of being of exceptional interest to baseball lovers who read his entertaining articles regularly in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Carnegie, Coraopolis Meet on Grid Today

Football will be given a warm reception in Carnegie at 5:30 this afternoon when the Carnegie and Coraopolis High School elevens clash at the Carnegie High field.

The game will mark the termination of spring grid drills at both schools, and was arranged so that the coaches could get a line on the material available for next fall's teams.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER

Well, folks, that was a little better, wasn't it? We can get back on top today, but the main thing to do is to win and the other stuff will take care of itself. You fans who like a lot of hittin' have been gettin' your money's worth.

Jule was pretty good yesterday and there was some good cracks by him and a lot of wise remarks from some of the others on the bench. Gee, I was glad Mike Donohue didn't look my way and set me down for three days. I will admit I've said a few smart Aleck things to the umps, but I watch my language pretty well and I guess you can go a long ways with those birds if you know how to say it.

ENS DIZZY

Jule got off a good one near the close of the game. Everybody on both benches was sweatin' just watching those balls bound against fences. After things began to get normal, Jule was counting the scores by innings on the board and I guess he was about dizzy. Finally he looked at the Red-Brave game and saw nothing

PHIL SLUGGER ENTERS RACE FOR CROWN

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

A merry chase for the batting championship of the National League appears to be in store for the fans. Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, who had the highest mark of all major league batsmen last season, threw his hat into the ring with a bang yesterday by making five hits. Thus Lefty accepts the challenge flung by Paul Waner and the other star sockers of the Heydler circuit.

Brother Paul's battin has been one of the features of the baseball races to date. There is much more consistency than power to the hitting to the little star these days. Paul specializing in clean singles that contribute to Pittsburgh successes.

LOTS OF OPPOSITION

O'Doul and Brother Paul will have a lot of opposition as they move along. Babe Herman, Bill Terry, Rogers Hornsby and several others are likely to check in before the competition gets very warm.

Pirate players and fans are disappointed that Lloyd Waner is not "in there" pressing his brother and the other luminaries. Lloyd had a wonderful season last year. Those people who said he was a somewhat lucky hitter have been having a terrible time trying to figure out an alibi for his string of three-baggers that was big enough to lead both circuits.

Brother Lloyd delivered a punishing wallop to his critics in rising to such slugging heights. He put out something they could not answer, they were entirely confounded.

BUCS SWAMP GIANTS

The Pirates overpowered the Giants yesterday in a slugging festival to give the home team its first victory in three fights with.

Gus Suhr was a demon with the bat for the Pirates in yesterday's 16-8 victory over the Giants. He made a triple, double and single, walked twice, scored three runs and drove in four more. At the top above, he is shown scoring on an infield out in the fourth inning. Center shows P. Waner and Comorosky scoring on Gus' single in the fifth. Below, Brame is crossing the plate on his long home run smash in the fourth.

THUNDERING FIELD MAKES BLANKET FINISH

GENEVA DOWNS DUKE NETTERS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Johnny Hecker led a well-balanced and powerful Geneva net squad to the Bluff courts yesterday and at the termination of a protracted battle the clever Covenanters had romped off with a 6-1 triumph over Grant Street's Dukes. The tussle marked the opening of the Tri-State Conference card and be it said here and now the team that overcomes the Beaver Falls delegation will just about capture loop laurels.

The Hilltoppers copped their lone verdict in the initial singles tilt wherein Capt. Andy Smeaton proved too steady for the redoubtable Hecker. Drives to forehand and backhand slid fluently from the facile bat of the elongated Red and Blue ace as Hecker unable to find the range went under 6-3, 6-0.

Stewart Snodgrass, former rumor star, opened the Gold and White winning parade with a decisive 6-1, 6-0 victory over Bill Smeaton. Bill's wildness aided in determining the issue, and the same may be related of Bullon's loss to Lorin Early and Bullon's to Don Wilson. In an all-Campbell debate, Dick of Geneva, outstayed Jimmy of Duquesne, 5-7, 11-9, 6-1.

Both doubles affairs were hotly contested, the Pittsburghers blowing leads in each. The most striking feature of the two-men events was the unexpectedly potent overhead work displayed by the newly-paired Duke duo. Bullion and Campbell. Speed and accuracy, though were a bit on the side of the invaders. The summary:

CONTI TO USE SPECIAL BAT

CUMBERLAND, Md., May 8.—Joseph Conti, of Renovo, Pa., who is entering upon his third year as regular third sacker of the Cumberland Colts, of the Middle Atlantic League, hopes to improve his batting this season with the aid of a newly-designed ash similar to the one invented by Syl Simon, third sacker of the Erie Central League club last season.

Conti, who major league scouts declare would be in faster company if he could hit, is handicapped because of the loss of the second and third fingers on his left hand, the result of an accident while chopping wood some years ago. The newly designed war club carries a steel spring attachment on its handle, as well padded to keep from cutting the batsman's hand and will prevent the user from losing his grip when he swings.

Sylvester Simon used the same model bat in the Central League last year and ranked third in the league with an average of .338. He was sold to Nashville, of the Southern Association, at the close of the 1929 season.

SMITH CARDS 72 IN PLAY ABROAD

SOUTHPORT, England, May 8.—(INS.)—With Horton Smith, of Joplin, Mo., close on his heels, Len Holland led the field at the end of the first round of the British professional golf championship today with a 71.

Smith, the only American entered in the $7,500 tournament, played careful, steady golf and turned in a 72. A few players had not completed the round, but there seemed little likelihood of lower scores.

The tournament is being played over the Addington course today and tomorrow. Smith's card:

Out . . 4 4 4 5 4 4 3 4 4—36
In . . 5 3 4 3 4 5 4 4 4—36—72

Holland's 71 proved to be the low score for the round. Smith's 72 made him second best, while James Ockenden shot a 76 for the 18 holes.

Harry Cotton had a 73 and George Duncan an 80.

been beaten since Fred Merkle drove in six tallies in an inning for the Giants on May 13, 1911.

The all-time record is seven runs, knocked in by Ed Cartwright of the St. Louis American Association club in September 23, 1899. Cartwright made two home runs in one inning, the first with the bases filled and the second with two men on. Ty Cobb, in 1909, Ray Bates, in 1917, Chick Gandil in 1919, and Al Simmons in 1929, each knocked in five markers in an inning.

Earl Sande

HEAVY FAVORITES HAVE been beaten in many a horse race, including a number of the annual runnings of this famous stake itself, but if Gallant Fox runs true to form he must be conceded to have a better chance for victory than any other starter in the $50,000 Preakness at Pimlico tomorrow. The fact that Earl Sande, doing a flashy comeback, will be in the saddle, practically assures that the best in Gallant Fox will be brought out, and the result of the Wood Memorial at Jamaica recently indicated that that "best" will be good enough to defeat any other contender. At any rate, Gallant Fox is the horse that the rest of them will have to beat. The names of some famous horses appear in the list of post Preakness winners, including Man o' War, Sir Barton, Rostonian, Phillers, Tom Ochiltree, Display, Watercress, Victorian. Dr. Freeland was the winner last year. The race is generally depended upon to furnish the last line on the Kentucky Derby, which is run eight days later.

TECH, WASH-JEFF MEET ON TRACK TODAY

SKIBO SQUAD FAVORED OVER PRESIDENTS

By JESS CARVER.

With nothing particular at stake, save that grand and glorious feeling that always attends the kicking around of an old athletic rival, Carnegie Tech and Wash-Jeff will put on a track and field meet in the Tartan Bowl this afternoon.

The Halferty-coached squad, which is just another way of indicating the Tartans, with a victory over Western Reserve and a respectable showing against Geneva, is favored over W. and J.

The meet originally was scheduled for Tuesday, but it rained so hard Monday that the Skibo cinders were in no fit condition for a track meet that day, and the affair was moved back to this afternoon.

The Tipoff

While the varsity is meeting Wash-Jeff, Coach Plebe trackmen will engage the attention of Shady Side Academy on the Academy greensward.

Originally scheduled for next Wednesday, the annual Pitt-Tech dual meet has been moved up one day, and will be run off Tuesday afternoon. He guided thereby.

Geneva College's brilliant track and field team is in Alfred, N. Y., today for a dual engagement with Alfred College. Saturday, the Covenanters are at home to the Dukes.

Wash-Jeff's tennis squad continues its winning swing by stacking up against the racquet wielders of Haverford at Haverford this afternoon. The California Teachers' baseball team meets the Southern Mid-Atlantics club today.

Wash-Jeff will wind up spring football practice Saturday afternoon with a stiff scrimmage session. The scrimmage will be stiff and so will the ball players Monday.

Darnell Cooper, Pitt's crack Negro freshman high jumper, set a new University record yesterday, competing against Kent, when he cleared the bar at six feet one and five-eighths inches. Cooper won the national scholastic high jump championship last spring.

Harry Yost, Moe Rubenstein's six foot center, has been elected captain of the Ambridge High basketball squad for next year. He is also a footballer, and is working at a tackle during Ambridge's spring practice.

SPRINGFIELD COPS

the New Yorkers. The score was 16 to 8.

The battle abounded in batting features. Homers were struck by Ervin Brame and Bob O'Farrell. Brame's drive carried high into the upper deck of the rightfield stands.

Another big high spot was the rescue pitching of Steve Swetonic who did much to save the game for the Pirates. Steve relieved Brame in the fifth with the bases loaded and carried on like a star for the remainder of the game. The Giants were held runless by the North Side youth. Manager McGraw used four pitchers.

W. Va. to Sponsor Big Meet Saturday

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., May 8.—Practically assured of entries from at least 10 of 11 degree-granting institutions of West Virginia, the university athletic authorities were going ahead with their plans for entertaining athletes from Marshall, Bethany, Wesleyan, Broaddus, Concord, Fairmont State, Davis-Elkins, Morris-Harvey and New River State at the first annual West Virginia intercollegiates to be held here this Saturday. The university will enter a team and there is a possibility that the representation of degree-granting institutions will be 100 per cent.

West Penn Golf Pro-files

NO. 35.

ANTHONY J. FACTOR, Brackenridge Heights Country Club.

Tony Factor.

Perhaps one of the least-known and yet one of the most promising of Western Pennsylvania's rising golf professionals, is little Anthony J. (Tony) Factor, pro at the Brackenridge Heights Country Club. In stature, Tony is a reminder of Perry Del Vecchio, former West Penn titlist—just a wee bit of a man, who has, as Dave Broudy says, the ol' socko in his drive. Factor is a natural golfer, who follows the advice of his own teachings .... and folks at Brackenridge swear by him both as an instructor and a player. He is one of the few men who is professional at the course he started playing on, never having been associated in any way with any other club. When he was 13 years of age, Tony started to caddie at Brackenridge. His interest was so great, that it wasn't long before he was placed in the shop, under Fred Loeffler, who was pro there then, and after eight years of this work, succeeded Fred when Loeffler resigned to go to Ellwood City. Tony is in his third year as pro at Brackenridge. Basketball is his winter pastime, and he likes to play baseball as well. In many tourneys he was barred after a time—just too good for his fellow caddies. His best marks at Brackenridge are a 32 for holes, par 35, and a 66 for 18 holes, par 70, the latter score equalling the course record established in a tourney by Dave McKay, of the Pittsburgh Field Club. Watch Tony—he's a comer.—VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Stanford Offers Bowl for Tryouts

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—(AP.)—Use of Stanford University's huge stadium for the 1932 tryouts for the American Olympic games team was offered yesterday by the board of athletic control. The invitation was forwarded to Frederick W. Rubien, of New York, secretary of the A. A. U. and a games committee official, by Harry Maloney, president of the Pacific association, local branch of the A. A. U.

Stanford officials, in authorizing Maloney to send the invitation, expressed the opinion that it would be more practicable to have the tryouts on the West Coast. If they are in the East, the athletes would have to cross the continent to compete in the games.

Smith Wins Salary Argument With Reds

CHICAGO, May 8.—(AP.)—Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis has upheld the salary claim of Joseph Smith against the Cincinnati Club of the National League.

Smith contracted with the Reds last year for $1,500, but was subsequently released on option to the Peoria club of the Three Eye League, which sent him to North Platte of the Nebraska State League. At North Platte, he received only $80 a month whereas he contended he should have received $1,500 for the season.

The Reds were ordered to reimburse him within 10 days because they held his services on option during the entire season.

DAVIES TO BOX BLACK BILL AT BOWL

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

The Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, is going ahead with its plans for the season and already has booked a Willie Davies - Black Bill match to follow its inaugural featuring Battling Battalino, the world featherweight champion, and Vic Burrone, of New York, one week from tonight.

Willie Davies

Davies and Black Bill have met a number of times, twice in Havana, Cuba. Their most recent clash, in New York, saw Bill eliminate the Charleroi star from the flyweight elimination tournament which eventually was won by Midget Wolgast, who defeated Bill in the final.

Between Rounds

The Motor Square Garden card for next Monday night has been completed with the signing of Freddie Smith, amateur bantamweight, of Carnegie, for the six-round opening bout with Mose Butch, of Oakland. This will be Smith's first bout for money, while Butch made his professional debut the same ring last Monday night. Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, and Young Saylor, of Charleroi, box the main bout of a list of three 10-rounders. Benny Schwartz, of Baltimore, and Frisco Grande, Filipino, of Buffalo, are in the semi-final, and Tom Mains, of Soho, meets Young Ruby, of Charleroi, in the first 10-rounder.

The Schwartz-Grande bout will be a repeat number. Benny defeated Grande in Baltimore three years ago.

Young Stribling boxes Dick Shortland in a 12-rounder in Albert Hall, London, tonight. Other bouts listed tonight include: Frankie Wine vs. John Schwake, Springfield, Ill.; Jackie Evans vs. Bobby O'Dowd, Ottumwa, Ia., and Midget Wolgast vs. Pinky Silverberg (non-title), Philadelphia. Bruce Flowers boxes Eddie Anderson at Milwaukee.

A wire came to hand that the news dispatches crediting Paul Igre with a victory over Ted Yarosz in their bout at Wheeling last Monday night were incorrect and that Yarosz really registered a win, his second over Igre.

Giant, Cub Duels May Net New Crowd Record

CHICAGO, May 8.—(AP.)—A new National League attendance record for four games today appeared certain for the impending series between two of the greatest rivals in the circuit—the championship Cubs and the New York Giants.

Given a good break by the weather, more than 150,000 spectators are expected to jam Wrigley Field for the four games, which start tomorrow. It won't be all cash business, however, as Friday is ladies' day and 20,000 free tickets have been distributed among the fanettes.

Either the Giants or the Cubs can be in the cellar, but when they play each other, we have big crowds," remarked President William Veeck of the Cubs. "But this time, the reservations have been unusually large, as first place may be decided in the pennant race."

Nick Altrock Says:

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Much as I hate to change my collar every day I'm afraid we may have to go to Pittsburgh for the World Series in October. Get a load of that Pirate club with Lloyd Waner out and Pie Traynor absent three weeks and Burleigh Grimes traded. They are still fighting for the lead. Jewel Ens is the kind of a manager that could sew buttons on a potato sack and come out with a new suit. Say, that Detroit team isn't so bad as it looks in the league standing. All they need is a self starter and some breaks.

DIOLITE WINS ENGLISH STAKE

NEWMARKET, Eng., May 8.—(AP.)—Diolite, England's ranking 2-year-old of 1929, carried the silks of Sir Hugo Hirst into derby favoritism yesterday with a smashing triumph in the 2,000 guineas, first of the season's five classics for 3-year-olds.

Finishing two lengths in front of W. M. Cazalet's Paradine, Diolite surprised the large crowd, including His Majesty and Princess Mary, by stepping the mile of soft going in 1:42 2-5. Maj. Courtauld's Silver Flare finished third. With Lord Derby's Caerleon, the favorite, in tenth position, Strongbow, which has been installed as the derby choice along with Diolite and Caerleon, was well back in the field of 28 at the finish.

On the basis of his great juvenile race, Diolite was made the second choice in the wagering, closing at five to one. Paradine faced the starter at odds of 100 to 1, while Silver Flare was quoted at 25 to 1.

ZACHARY CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY WITH WIN

RUTH'S HOMER AIDS MOUND VETERAN

Associated Press.

Jonathan Thompson Zachary, of the New York Yankees, is not the oldest pitcher in the American League, in spite of his nickname, "Old Tom." Nor is he by any means the youngest. Tom became 33 years old yesterday and he celebrated his birthday in harness, showing the youngsters a few things.

Last year Zachary led the American League pitchers by winning 12 games without a defeat. He also had the best earned run rating, giving only 33 in 120 innings. Up to yesterday Tom had not done so well during the chilly spring days, but with the advent of summer weather he scored his first victory, beating the Cleveland Indians, 8 to 7.

AID FROM RUTH

Zachary received some aid from another Yankee ancient, Babe Ruth, and from Roy Sherid, who is more than 10 years younger. Ruth contributed largely to the five-run rally which decided the game by hiting his fourth home run of the season with two on base. Sherid came to Zachary's rescue when he weakened in the late innings.

Except in three National League games yesterday, the pitchers had the better of the major league batters. Benny Frey, of Cincinnati, and George Earnshaw of the Philadelphia Athletics, turned in the best performances, each allowing only three hits. Frey won his game but Earnshaw lost.

HALE HITS HOMER

Two of the three hits off Earnshaw were made by the opposing pitcher, Walter Stewart, of the St. Louis Browns, who pitched a six-hit game. The third was a homer by Sammy Hale with one man on base which gave the Browns a 2-to-1 decision. Frey won his third straight game and his second 1-to-0 contest by stopping the Boston Braves. Cincinnati did not come through against Ben Cantwell until the ninth inning when a pair of doubles brought the game's only run.

Earl Whitehill, of Detroit, had the better of three Washington pitchers, holding the Senators to six hits for a 3-to-1 triumph. The Tigers got eight blows. Horace Lisenbee allowed the Chicago White Sox a dozen hits but kept them harmlessly scattered, while young Tom Oliver led the Boston Red Sox to a 6-to-4 victory. Oliver, who has hit safely in 16 consecutive games, got four blows in five times at bat.

CARDS FOUND PHILS

The St. Louis Cardinals were in the front rank of the heavy hitters yesterday as they hammered five Philadelphia pitchers for a 16 to 11 victory. The game produced 35 hits, 19 of them for extra bases, and five home runs. The cards had just a one-hit margin but they bunched their clouts for nine runs in the fifth inning.

Not far behind came the Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Giants, dividing 31 hits in Pittsburgh's 16-to-8 victory. The Giants got 16 of the blows, but Pittsburgh greeted the debut of Roy Parmelee as a starting pitcher with a six-run burst and never were overtaken.

The Chicago Cubs continued the assaults on Brooklyn pitching by hitting steadily and at the proper moments to gain a 9-to-5 victory after Brooklyn had opened the game with a home-run drive that brought four tallies in the first inning. Glenn Wright and Del Bissonette hit successive homers in this frame, and Bissonette added a second in the sixth inning. Charley Root hurled the whole game for the Cubs although he allowed 12 hits.

Kiski Track Team Downs Pitt Frosh

Kiski's track and field team scored a 63 1-6-to-53 5-6 victory over the Pitt freshmen squad in a dual meet at the Stadium yesterday afternoon. Kiski took six first places to five for the freshmen. Cornell Cooper, star Pitt jumper, leaped 6 feet 1⅛ inches, to set a new University mark in the high jump. The summary:

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

Sport Vignettes

Outdoor polo is to be one of the Saturday afternoon sports attractions in Pittsburgh as soon as arrangements for a suitable playing field can be completed, which will be about the middle of the summer . . . . The Pittsburgh Hunt Club is arranging for a new field in back of Aspinwall and may have competition in a league made up of teams representing the Hunt Club, the Three Hundred and Eighth Cavalry, Shady Side Academy and the One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery . . . . The sport got off to a good start indoors at the Hunt Armory, where it has been played on Saturday nights for several weeks, attracting steadily increasing crowds . . . . Because of limited playing space, the teams are limited to three men indoors, but outdoor rules call for four-men aggregations . . . . Jimmy Conrad, with Irish Kane manager of Johnny Dunn, says it is a pleasure to work in the corner behind the New Kensington featherweight, who made himself solid with the fans through his fine fight against Jackie Rodgers at Motor Square Garden last Monday night . . . . After that furious third round, in which Rodgers blazed away with his heaviest guns, but was unable to even rock Dunn, Jimmy asked the latter how he felt as he came back for the minute rest period . . . . The answer was a smile from the boxer . . . . "He's all through, Jim," Johnny said, according to Conrad . . . . "He's shot the works and hasn't anything left." . . . . And in his recent bout with Andy Martin, at Duquesne Garden, Dunn got a rise out of Kane by feigning grogginess . . . . It was just before the bell for the tenth and final round . . . . "When does the fight start?" Dunn asked innocently . . . . Immediately Irish reached into his vest pocket for the smelling salts and began waving them in front of Johnny's nose . . . . It required a "Get away with that stuff, I was only kidding you," to make Irish cut it out, and then he felt like bouncing the water bottle off the lad with the fine Irish sense of humor . . . . Flynn's gym, the training rendezvous of local boxers for more than a year, has been closed . . . . Francis Flynn, the promoter, is going away for the summer and didn't care to have the quarters on his hands, so all of the boxers were given notice to get their stuff out of the lockers and seek new training spots . . . . A lot of the boys are mourning the passing of the most popular place of its kind the city ever has known . . . . Jock Ewart, of the Preston North End soccer team, who has been barred from the game for life in England because he tried to induce an opposing team to "lay down" in a game, was the star of the British team's game with Heidelberg on the Duquesne University field here last year . . . . Playing goal, his work stood out as the main factor in preventing a rout of the highly-touted invaders . . . . With the Yankees sporting Pitcher Gomez and the Robins boasting Catcher Lopez, what an Oh Yez, if not Yo-Yo, game this baseball is getting to be.—HARRY KECK.

"What th' heck are they playing with in Cincinnati—nickel rockets?" he hollered out.

Well, it looked like somebody got mixed up in the boxes of balls. I think the factories that make the balls sent some Blue Ridge League balls to Cincinnati by mistake, so if you see an epidemic of home-run hittin' in Martinsburg or Hagerstown, you'll know that the Blue Ridgers are low-bridgin' the pitchers with rabbit balls that were meant for Cincy.

It sure looked funny to see the Braves and Reds in a 1 to 0 game on the same day all the other batters was runnin' the outfielders ragged.

STILL ON LEFTIES

I think some of the pitchers are gettin' disgusted; if they get the taxi strike settled I think some of them would try to catch on drivin' the cabs. They say there's less danger driving a taxi than there is dodging them bullets shot by Bill Terry, Gus Suhr and some more of them sluggers. Jule said it would be just like some lefthander to take a runout powder, but I told him to look up the box scores and see who was gettin' walloped—the righthanders or lefthanders.

When I was playing Class D ball they didn't have to have loud speakers to talk to the outfielders. They threw a ball out there in the first inning and you finished with it unless somebody fouled one off or a kid grabbed it. I guess it's as fair for one as it is for the others, but Chic Fraser says it's takin' a lot of science out of the game.

NO USE WORRYING

Oh well, I'm too young to be worrying about them things. Let McGrew and them veterans figure it out. I know a lot of birds that can't hit a golf ball as far as Elv Brame hit that homer yesterday, so let's give the latter a little credit once in a while.

It won't be long now until another payday comes and I'm in pretty fair shape. If I get that straw hat I'm expecting on the advertisin' plan, I'll save five berries and that won't be hard to take.

LIFE CHARACTER FIXED IN YOUTH

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(INS.)—Psychiatrists attending the first international congress on mental hygiene today indorsed this aged doctrine: "Take care of the child and the adult will take care of himself."

Dr. Marion E. Kenworth, psychatric consultant for the Institute for Child Guidance in New York, told the congress habits and desires acquired or repressed, even during the mother-nursing stage, have their effect on the child in later years. Thumb-sucking babies are maladjusted infants, their habits the result of the wrong kind of treatment during the nursing period. She added that one need not have concern about the child who has been made secure in the first eight years or more.

Tendencies engendered in infancy, said Sidonie Matsner Gruenberg, of Columbia University Teachers' College, take their most visible toll in adolescence. Even then they may be eradicated, she declared, by the right kind of home treatment.

Dr. Arthur M. Ruggles, of Yale University and Butler Hospital, at Providence, R. I., said college suicides are evidence of the need for mental hygiene, which he said is to increase efficiency and happiness, not to search for mental disease.

County School Aide Replogle Sworn In

Assistant Superintendent of Allegheny County Schools Samuel H. Replogle was sworn in for a new term of four years by Judge Frank P. Patterson in Common Pleas Court today. Replogle was accompanied by Judge Josiah Cohen, who made his first appearance in court for several weeks. Judge Cohen has been in ill health for some time.

Bellevue Approves 2 Paving Ordinances

Bellevue Council has approved ordinances for the grading, paving and curbing of Straw avenue and Gilliland place. Truck Driver Held In Butter Theft

Virgil Flora, 610 Lockhart street, driver for Morris & Co., packers, admitted in Central Police Court today that he had sold 32 pounds of butter to a Natrona storekeeper for $9 and pocketed the money. Flora was held over for further investigation by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

Magistrate Urges Ducking Stool in Wife Beating

The ducking stool was declared the most fitting punishment for wife beaters by Magistrate T. D. Jones in Morals Court today.

The magistrate's ire was roused by testimony of Mrs. Gladys Blausen, of 745 Grace street, who appeared against her husband, Albert, 27. She testified that he blackened her left eye and threatened to black it again. She is frail appearing and has a baby a few months old.

The magistrate fined the husband $25 with the alternative of 30 days in jail. He said:

"What wife beaters should receive is a ducking in the presence of friends and neighbors, one time the law in New England. That would stop abuse of wives quicker than a fine."

U. S., CANADA TO HOLD WEALTH

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(INS.)—Canada, a country of greater per capita wealth than the United States, rapidly paying off its foreign debts, should become a creditor nation before 20 years and with the United States eventually will hold control of the pursestrings of the world.

Official estimates, available today, showed Canadian net exports of capital are mounting to more than $50,000,000 a year, despite heavy borrowing from the United States.

In the opinion of the best-informed officials, within a period of a few years the United States and Canada will have a comfortable potential loaning power to other nations of fully $2,500,000,000 ever year, without cramping domestic credit requirements.

9 MORE BUSTS IN FAME HALL

NEW YORK, May. 8.—The busts of nine persons who have been elected to the hall of fame at New York University were unveiled today, filling the last of the pedestals for 65 celebrities.

Objects to Ice Man, Husband Starts Row

Barry Writes Chickie That He Is Married

CHAPTER LXXX.

Barry was standing, the beautifully set head lowered. He raised it slowly. Chickie saw his eyes baffled. Her heart quickened and was hot.

But she smiled. She looked up at him and smiled—in a radiance of trust, expecting his hands to fold on hers; expecting the flush across his cheeks.

He said uneasily, holding a chair for her; "I got your message today, Chickie. It followed me here."

"Only one, Barry?"

"Yes—did you send others?"

"Oh—I did—"

"I got the one saying I must come. A week more would be too late. What does it mean?"

She bit her lips, feeling an intensity, almost an anger in the low throb of his voice. She remained still—very still, drinking back tears from her eyes. They went down and burned terribly at her heart.

He said more softly: "What did you mean by that Chickie?"

But she could feel his eyes hot and demanding. She raised hers, imploring, not knowing what to say. "You know! Oh, Barry—don't you know. It's so!"

"Know what?"

She turned her head sharply, nodding: "Yes—yes—that—" The image of his face, suddenly white, like a dead thing, his lips shaking flashed with a mortal pain across her eyes. She repeated half moaning: "Oh—you know—it's so."

He wouldn't understand. He made her say it. Then he sat there rigid and staring as though some inner poison sucked the blood, even the life, from his face. He spoke mechanically. "It can't be. I don't understand. You must be mistaken."

"I'm not! It's so."

He went on, driven. "It can't be. It's nearly four months since I left. You're mistaken, Chickie. You must be—"

She smiled anguish: "I'm not mistaken."

Then with a still, frightful coldness: "Why didn't you send me word sooner? Why did you wait so long?"

Greatly Alarmed

"I sent word—months ago—"

"I never got it! Where did you send it? How can it be, Chickie? At this time? I don't see—I don't see—"

She cowered against the assault of his denials, shutting her eyes because the blanched misery of his look unnerved her. She tried to speak; her mouth drew and drew. It got so tight she couldn't form the faintest sound.

After a little she put up her hand: "Barry—don't—oh, don't! Why—you think I want this? No—want you back now? Oh, no! What else am I to do?"

When he only sat moveless like a thing of stone, except that his hands shook, she covered her face.

He got up quickly, steadying himself. "God—I never dreamed of such a thing. I can't—Lord, Chickie, why didn't you reach me? If I'd known!" The table shook with his trembling. He said abruptly: "Hurry—let's get out of here. We have to settle this—meet it. Not tonight. I'm late, Chickie. I have to go—"

She didn't stir. She felt that she was dying. In a vague, detached way she wondered why alarm possessed him so; wondered why he didn't say in the quiet way she had expected: "Awful—awful—but don't feel so. All right, now, Chickie!"

He waited, stooping a little, his hands gripped on a chair. Presently she stood up, fighting against the pulsing heat that pressed about her like waters of suffocation.

Chickie Calm

Moments passed. In these moments there bore upon her the deathless agonies she had endured. They made her strong, made her calm. She said, with a touch of proud nobility that stirred along his nerves: "You have to go, Barry? Oh, do you really? Do you mean to leave me alone, then? What am I to do? I can't meet it alone. Oh—you can't do this, can you? After all—after all that was? I don't want you now—"

He said quickly: "Chickie—listen: I'm not running away! Of course not. A shock like this—we'll meet it—of course!"

She said in a low, aching breath: "When, Barry? We'll meet it? But I can't wait much longer. Everyone will know! Barry—you mean that we'll be married—do you—"

"Chickie, listen—that won't settle everything, will it? We have to meet it. I'll do everything you say. Come here tomorrow night. Say 8 o'clock. Oh, if I'd known!. I wish to God I'd known!"

She swayed against him, a darkness of pain in her eyes. She said, weakly: "You're so white. Oh—you think I wanted this—do you?"

"No—no! Don't feel so, Chickie. I never dreamed of such a thing—such a shock. Does anyone know it?"

She shook her head. But she held to his arm. "Barry—you don't want to marry me! I know—I see that—I don't want it either. But it can't be what we want now. We can't think of ourselves. Oh—we can't! I'm afraid—Barry, you may not come tomorrow."

"I'll come. You know I'll come. I'll be here. It won't do any good to go wild about it. Think of that, Chickie. Don't worry any more. I'm up here on business. I have an appointment for 8 o'clock. It's much later."

Gets a Letter

But she smiled, her eyes entreating: "Don't you care at all—not—oh—"

He leaned down swiftly, untwining her fingers. He brushed her lips with his.

Afterward she could feel that touch like an aching wound. He said: "Tomorrow, Chickie, at eight. Well—don't worry any more. It will be all right."

She sank in a corner of the taxi. She didn't think. Queer sounds struggled at her throat. She shook them back. "No—no—a shock—of course. Tomorrow—tomorrow—"

She shut her eyes—tried to still the chattering of her teeth.

She brushed her hair a long while that night. She walked in her bare feet, quietly about the rooms, twisting her hands. But she said: "I won't worry. That won't do any good—"

Then she switched out the light, and in the darkness knelt at her bed. She was praying. She said again and over: "God—dear God—Oh, God—" There came to her a feeling of support—of something strong to lean upon.

It remained with her. During the next day it was a buoyant thing—like hope. She even smiled as she thought: "Tonight—oh—"

That evening when she reached home there was a letter. It was typed. She took it quietly, went into her room, locking the door. She sat with the envelope in her hands, little beads of cold perspiration on her forehead. A presage, as of death, stole upon her.

Barry Married

Barry had written the letter. It wasn't signed. Nor was it clear and swinging, with a flash about its phrase—It was a broken, incoherent thing:

"I'm writing this, Chickie. I couldn't tell you. Nothing could be more ghastly. But you say it's so I suppose you're certain. I can't believe it—can't understand it. Why should it happen now and not before? Things were the same.

"I'm not blaming you—You think that—but I'm not! Only it's monstrous for me. If you had reached me sooner, I would have come. Now—I'm not sure what to do.

"When I wrote you that last letter and you sent no answer, I was certain you felt the parting was the only thing for both of us. We had outgrown our feeling. It was better to end it so. Better for you and me.

"No good recalling this. I know. And I won't try to dodge the burden—I'll do whatever I can, Chickie. We'll have to meet it, of course. It may not be too late yet.

"Or better—you can go away. Go to the country and wait till it is over. No one need ever know of it. We can easily plan so that no word need ever be heard. It can be made easy for you, Chickie.

"Don't think that I don't care. I do! I'd give up my life this moment to wipe out the whole ghastly blunder—to take away this pain from you. In a way, it's more awful for me.

"But we'll arrange it. We'll have to. Tomorrow night we'll settle it. I think the wisest thing is for you to leave at once. You can go on a vacation. I'll help you. I don't say this to hurt you, Chickie. I'll do what I can now—and afterwards I'll do whatever you think is right.

"I can't do as you ask. We can't be married. If I had got your message (wo weeks ago, I would have come. I can't now, Chickie—don't let this rob you of reason—don't let us make it any more tragic. We can still meet it sanely. I'll stick until it is over. And you'll have to, of course.

"But what you ask is impossible now. It would be tragedly enough, even so—now it is beyond choice. I was married two weeks ago—"

She read no further—she stared unbelieving at the words. They became dim—they faded in the strange gray fogs that swarmed about her. Her head dropped—

FIND THE WOMAN

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

"CHERCHEZ LA FEMME," for sadness or gladness—or even for someone else's badness, according to the old gentleman who sits mentally upon a tombstone most of his time. "Look for the woman," said he.

Yourself, look under "woman," in a dictionary of quotes. And look upon what you find. My word! Under "woman" it says "Anger—Coquette—Courtship — Frailty — Love — Ruling Passion—Secrecy—Vixen—Voice." Voice! There in a sentence is what the old gentleman who sits upon a mourning bench thinks of woman. And what young men used to think. For I believe that they have gotten a bit out of the habit of blaming all their failures, as well as their achievements, upon some lady.

The sentimentality that used to be laid in scented bouquets at the feet of la femme, that tender feeling whose loss the modern woman truly regrets, is no more. There are a few old-fashioned old and young men, wonders all, who sing songs to women, who give them gifts in print of ardent words, who credit them with swaying masculine heads and hearts, who swear that woman can make a garden filled with roses of Heaven for a man. But these are rare. Giving to femininity the power of making Heaven is not much done now—and it has one advantage—along with its passing has gone, too, the laying upon her slight shoulders of the weight of roving men's unhappiness, of every derelict's fate, of every ne'er-do-well's weakness.

Nowadays a man very well knows that even if a woman makes him sad she need not send him to the dickens unless he is weak and willing to go!

HAL MEREDITH!

The name sounded so insistently in my brain that for a startled instant I thought my lips had spoken it, and I glanced around the table fearful of the effect upon the people gathered there. But none of them was paying any attention to me, and I completed my memory pictures of Katherine by adding this one of the brilliant alienist whose life history had been so curiously intertwined with hers.

They had been boy and girl together in their student days, he an interne, she a student nurse at the same hospital. He had made no secret of his admiration for her, and she, while not "in love" with him, was yet genuinely fond of the brilliant, lovable boy.

Then had come Hal's sudden and inexplicable marriage to Lucia—daughter of the old and famous alienist to whom Hal owed fealty for making possible his career. He drifted out of Katherine's life, appearing in it again by chance a few weeks after Jack Bickett's last departure for South America.

"What are you mooning over, Margaret?" she demanded. "I've spoken to you twice and you did not answer me."

"I am so sorry, Mother," I stammered, "but I was thinking of something that bothered me."

"You'll have plenty of time to think it over and talk it over, as well, on the way to the station," my mother-in-law retorted tartly. "Mrs. Bickett will miss that train if you don't get started in a minute or two. I don't know but she's missed it now." She looked around the table as if anticipating the panic which might follow the announcement. But she has cried "Wolf!" too often for any of us to pay any attention to her pessimism concerning railroad schedules. The soul of hospitality, yet she makes life miserable for any of her guests on the day of their departure by her insistence that they get to the railroad station much in advance of the scheduled train time.

"We'll go at once," I assured her, and in another minute Katherine and I were indeed in the car, and speeding toward Bridgehampton.

Katherine was unusually voluble all the way, giving me much information concerning Junior and the housekeeping which she must have known I possessed. But as we neared the station she grew quiet, and when we had reached it, well ahead of time, she sat still, making no effort to alight, but looking at me steadily.

"You are the best old scout,' she said affectionately at last. "You can't know what it's meant, just seeing you these days. To be trite, you are like a lighthouse in a stormy set, and just now I'm a very unseaworthy boat. You won't be going back to the city until after the holidays, will you? For if I've reasoned correctly from what you've told me about Noel, I shall be able to bring him out to the farm in a few days. That's what he needs, to get away from that turmoil to the heavenly peace out here. And I don't mind telling you, my dear, that I'm counting the days until I see you again."

"I shall be right here." I told her affectionately. "If I go to the city again before the holidays it will be only for a day's shopping. I shall not stay the night."

"I am so glad." Her tone was tensely earnest. "One thing more. If a letter comes from Jack, or—or—" she hesitated curiously, then repeated firmly: "If a letter comes from Jack, will you please send it on to me special delivery?"

"Of course," I said quickly, ignoring her hesitancy. But after I had put her on the train and was on my way to the telegraph office, I pondered her uncertainly with the conviction that if she had finished her first sentence it would have been a request that any letter from Hal Meredith should also be sent to her special delivery.

The operator at the telegraph office spoke briskly when I had made my identity known.

"Oh, yes, Mrs. Graham. Your telegram arrived a few minutes ago and we have held it as you requested."

I found my hand shaking as I took the blank from him. What would Marinn's answer be?

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Young Illusions

A young man's illusions about love appear to die of infantile paralysis these days—but an old man's continue to limp bravely along on fallen arches.

Many a girl marries a man, hoping to be his "guide, philosopher and friend," and wakes up to find herself only his alarm-clock, time-table, food-censor and valet.

A modern engagement appears to be just an option on a woman's affections, which a man doesn't bother to take up until he sees some other man bidding for them.

Buying a young husband, either for spot cash or on the installment plan, is the latest fad of women with more dollars than sense. But, dear me, why shouldn't the Big Butter-and-Egg Woman exchange real money for a little imitation love and a few life-like kisses, if it amuses her?

woman's indestructible illusions: her belief that silk stockings will make bony legs alluring; that powder and paint will turn a hag into a houri; and that the next hat, the next frock or the next beauty cream will "do the trick."

The honeymoon is not over so long as she regards his absorption in a book or the newspaper as an insult instead of as a blessing.

Marrying, after forty, is like receiving a belated Christmas card in February; it is so hard to recapture the spirit of romance, mystery and enthusiasm.

The tragedy of so many girls who go to the Big City looking for work is that they find just that! WORK! No temptations, no dangers, no excitement—nothing but work!

* * *

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Corsage for the Graduates

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am giving a luncheon honoring several graduates. Would corsages at the places of the honor guests be appropriate?

2. Should the honor guests be seated nearest the hostess or wherever she wishes to place them? Thank you.

Yes, appropriate and very charming. The guest of first honor should be given the seat at the right of the hostess, and the guest to be given the second place of honor should be seated on the left of the hostess. I am taking for granted that the guests are all women, as at the usual luncheon.

Practical Graduation Gifts

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have a very dear friend who will graduate in June. She is a trained nurse. I am going to the exercises. Please tell me what is a practical gift to give her. MRS. B. G.

How about a handsome purse? This is a practical gift. Or a pen or pencil, or both, engraved with her monogram, or even better, with her name. Or several fine handkerchiefs, embroidered with her monogram or initials. Or a gold key chain, with her name and address engraved on the gold tag. Or some accessory for her traveling bag, or one of the new convenient leather, zipper arrangements for holding gloves or handkerchiefs, or lingerie.

Serving Ice Cream

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly tell me which is correct? A says it is proper to serve a fork with ice cream; B says a spoon. MRS. S.

As a matter of fact, both are correct, for the most punctilious hostesses use the double-service for ice cream and place a spoon on the right of the plate and the ice cream fork on the left. Then the diner may use either or both, as he or she prefers. If only one silver utensil is placed, which is usually enough, either the spoon or the fork is correct, according to one's choice and judgement, and convenience. The double-service is, of course, particularly convenient with ice cream desserts that are a bit difficult to eat, such as maringue glace.

Household Hints

When stacking plates into the rack to drain, first dip them in cold water. This makes them dry with a clear gloss.

Pineapple parings may be boiled with sugar and spice, strained through a fine strainer or cheesecloth, and you will have a pineapple tea which is delicious alone.

* * *

Some careless person has stacked glasses one inside the other. One of them is sure to be cracked or broken when they are separated—that is, unless cold water is placed in the inner glass and warm water is allowed to run over the outside glass. This is a sure way of averting a crash that would deplete the glassware stock.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Sickness is a Social Problem

Good nature is founded on good health. That snappy, disagreeable attitude you have on Monday, isn't you. It is the effect of the disturbed stomach resulting from overeating on Sunday.

DR. COPELAND

I heard a retort once from a man who had been bitterly attacked by a fellow legislator. In quick time this man said, "I wish I had indigestion so that I migh frame a fitting reply.

There can be no doubt, I am sure, that most of the unkind, bitter and disagreeable things said in this world are flavored and spiced by the poisons of temporary ill health. Hunger, fatigue, bad air, physical discomfort from any cause,—all these are among the factors that regulate thinking.

Disease is not a personal matter. If it were, there would be less reason to blame the negligent person. His habits of overeating, late hours, unnecessary exposure, and even carousing, might be looked upon with contempt, but since they affected nobody else that would be the end of it.

But physical discomfort and ill health are not strictly personal matters. Their effect upon the mind, producing bitterness and unkindness, is something that does harm to everybody who comes in contact with the sufferer.

The mother or wife, all the members of the family, indeed, are given extra work by illness in the household. The sacrifices made are proper ones if illness comes in the ordinary way, but when such sacrifices must be made because of selfishness, it is another thing.

When we come to consider the causes for ill health, we will be more impatient about it. It is not for us to "go our own way," as if nobody else were to pay for our misdeeds.

The lowered resistance which comes from wrong living paves the way for infection. Many a case of tuberculosis, pneumonia and influenza can be traced to neglect. Think of the troops of trouble that follow such an infection.

I am speaking this way today for one reason only. I want to impress upon every reader the importance of health as a factor in the public and family welfare. Sickness can never be personal. Its gloom falls on everybody in the victim's circle of social contacts.

If you are indifferent to your own welfare, you cannot be indifferent to those about you. For their sake, if not for your own, you will be careful of your health.

THE BEAUTY BOX

By HELEN FOLLETT

Chest development is possible by exercise. One good stunt is to flap the arms as a rooster flaps his wings when crowing. The hands, tightly clinched, should be placed on the chest. With each flap lift the body higher and higher. The air will go sweeping down into the lower cells of the lungs. The chest muscles will grow strong.

Owing to the peculiar boney structure of some faces, cheeks are gaunt and hollow. More often the cause is found in a diet that does not contain fat-producing elements. Proper local treatment consists of nightly massage with a heavy cream. Fingers and thumbs are outspread over the cheeks and come together with a clawing movement which stimulates circulation in the trumpete.. muscles.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, May 9

Although this is presaged as an active day it may not be considered a favorable one for the smooth-running or the progress of the affairs in hand. There is menace of friction, quarrels, litigating, enmity or probably personal accidents or disaster, unless unusual calm and circumspection be exercised. Impetuosity, rashness and sudden activities or changes might prove hazardous. In any event there may be setback and disappointment, although personal matters are under happy rule and business, well-directed, may bring future benefits.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a very lively and exciting year, but one calling for calmness and wise management if good results are to be attained. There is danger through tumult, impetuosity, strife, litigation and accident, and also there may be obstacles and postponements. Personal affairs should prove happy and compensatory.

A child born on this day should have many fine social and cultural qualities, but should be well disciplined and educated in self-control and responsibility for its actions.

LOVELY IS THE BRIDE

Lovely is the bride as she walks down the aisle. Lovely, because of her beauty, and doubly lovely because of the tremendous preparation that has been made to insure the perfect setting for this most important event of her life. Her bridal gown, evidently the work of some genius in one of Pittsburgh's stores. Her maid and matron of honor resplendent in their pastel frocks. The bridesmaids glorious in their colorful costumes. Indeed, it is the perfect setting for the bride. At her parents' home everything is in readiness for the post-marriage ceremony—the reception. Pittsburgh florists and decorators have made the house a paradise of beauty. Gorgeous gifts from leading Pittsburgh gift shops and salons are awaiting the scrutiny of the reception guests. It is important that all of these things have been chosen carefully. Much thought must have been given their selection. The wedding season is now coming into full glory. Pittsburgh's most important stores are now featuring, in their Sun-Telegraph advertising, gifts and accessories of the wedding. Read these advertisements carefully—and be guided by them. Let the advertisements in the Sun-Telegraph serve as your buying guide.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Market Turns Dull — Local Market Narrow

MARKET TURNS DULL, UNEVEN ON RALLY

Steel Reaches Lowest of Year in Early Trading; Selling Checks Rises

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP.)—A sizeable backwash of selling swept over the stock market today, after the sharp setback late yesterday, but after several leading shares had been sharply depressed, United States Steel reaching new low ground for the year, the wave of liquidation quickly receded, and a rally set in which reached substantial proportions by early afternoon. Renewed liquidation appeared on the advance, however, and the market turned dull and irregular.

The failure of yesterday's rallies to hold apparently caused considerable disappointment, and uncertainly over the weekly brokerage loan figures, to make their appearance after the close, was an unsettling factor. The selling was well absorbed, however, and it was said in brokerage circles that important banking interests, both domestic and foreign, were still taking advantage of recessions to accumulate stocks in considerable volume.

COPPERS ADVANCE

An important factor in the afternoon rally was an upturn in the coppers. In copper trade circles it was reported that the latest reduction in the price, taking it to 12½ cents a pound, was finally meeting with considerable buying. This prompted considerable covering by shorts.

Steadily increasing brokers' loans during recent weeks, even when prices have been on the down grade, have been a little disconcerting, and Wall street would be pleased to see a sizeable reduction in the figures to be published late today. Wall street estimates, however, vary widely, showing extremes of a drop of $300,000,000 to an increase of $50,000,000. The sharp drop in stock prices under normal circumstances caused a marked decline, but the buying on the way down was obviously not all of an investment character. It is rumored that bankers have recently taken over about $150,000,000 in new bond issues and are carrying them pending more opportune conditions for public offering.

STEEL AT '30 LOW

U. S. Steel sagged more than 2 points, touching 165½, as compared to a previous 1930 minimum of 166, and a bottom in November of 150. It soon rallied, however. During the morning many of the more active issues lost 2 to 4 points, and some of the high priced shares more than 10. Westinghouse dropped 4 points, but rebounded to show a moderate gain. Radio and American Can each sold off more than 3 before rallying. J. I. Case dropped 11 points, then rebounded nearly 20 in response to unconfirmable rumors of an early 10-for-1 split-up. Amusement shares and selected utilities were well bought.

In the coppers, such issues as Anaconda, Kennecott and American Smelting sold up 3 to more than 5 points, but encountered renewed selling at the top.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, May 8.—Helped upward by relative firmness of Liverpool quotations, wheat prices here averaged higher early today, although July dipped beneath the season's low price record. Sellers at Liverpool were reported to be scarce, with a better demand there for nearby deliveries. Opening ⅛ off to ¼ up, Chicago wheat underwent a slight general sag and then scored gains. Corn, oats and provisions were firm, with corn starting unchanged to ⅜c higher, and subsequently showing additional upturns.

Tending somewhat to put new backbone into the wheat market today were authoritative Canadian advices that scarcity of reserve moisture is still a factor to be considered in the crop outlook. According to these advices, rains in Canada have relieved danger of poor and uneven germination of the spring crop, and probably will assist early growth, but it will be essential to have at least normal precipitation later in the season. On the other hand, domestic spring wheat sections were reported as thoroughly soaked, and predictions were current that crops should show splendid growth for a long time.

Fairly good export business overnight in North American wheat was announced as including purchasers of United States hard winters as well as wheat from Canada. Complete absence of wheat shipments from India during the last week attracted notice also. However, Argentine shipments showed some enlargement as compared with the previous week, but were still much below last year's figures at this time.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

LEGGE PLEASED WITH BOARD PROGRESS

More Than He Had Hoped For Accomplished at This Time, Relief Head Says

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Alexander Legge, who gave up the blue ribbon of the presidency of the International Harvester Company to become chairman of the Federal Farm Board, has become a target for doctrinaire critics.

But he has developed a thick skin, and believes that most of the attacks on Farm Board policy are ill informed. Eager to get his own appraisal of the value of the board's contributions to the solution of the farm problem I called on Mr. Legge at his Washington headquarters and asked whether he felt any progress had been made. He replied that considerably more than he had hoped for by this time had already been accomplished. Specifically he felt that the loans to stabilization agencies which have taken huge quantities of wheat and cotton from the market and the allied operations had mitigated the extent of the price decline of those commodities which have been subjected in recent months to world-wide deflation. Mr. Legge indicated that several wheat experts had told him that but for the intervention of the Farm board wheat might have crashed to 80 cents a bushel.

STABILIZATION NEAR

Asked what these government allies would do with these commodities Mr. Legge said:

"No one knows yet, although some grain has been disposed of.

"My own belief is that stabilization of commodity prices is near, and that the next major swing in prices will be upward. Many of our critics misunderstand our intention toward prices, confusing our efforts with the operation of the Stevenson plan in British colonies, which boosted rubber prices several hundred per cent. We are not out artificially to boost prices, recognizing that they are subject to the operation of the law of supply and demand. In the recent emergency, we merely sought to offset hysteria, and to avoid needless and unwarranted declines."

Mr. Legge added that the other major portion of the work of the Farm Board has been to improve the marketing machinery of farm organizations.

"If the farmer is to achieve equality with the man of industry, he must follow the new efficiency methods of business. We are not putting the government permanently into business. We are merely fostering these cooperatives and aiding them until they are able to stand on their own feet; then the government will automatically step out."

EVOLUTION AT HAND

Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, friend of President Hoover, and leading grain dealer and others have complained that the activities of the Farm Board are impinging on the grain trade. Asked about this, Mr. Legge said to me:

"Unquestionably an evolution is taking place in agriculture, and it will not be stopped by making speech against it. This is analogous to what has happened in industry. In my old business, we used to make farm wagons. Finally, the motor truck came along, and spoiled our market. Instead of lamenting the fact, we switched to the making of trucks, and greatly increased our earnings. Those engaged in warehousing and processing have nothing to fear, but the curbstone broker may be crowded. Evidently we are doing something if we are arousing strong protests from certain quarters."

With the huge fund available for the Farm Board, some observers have thought that Mr. Legge had stood between the Treasury and the politicians. Accordingly there has been uneasiness over the report that he may soon quit the job. I asked him about his intentions. Mr. Legge answered:

"I was engaged for this job only up to July 15, and nothing has been decided after that. But it makes little difference, for the organization has been built up and will go on. It doesn't matter whether one individual leaves."

Incidentally, it has been suggested to Mr. Legge that Great Britain would like him to run a farm relief program there after he finishes up here.

Mr. Legge said that the country after the speculative joyride last year was due for a severe and prolonged depression, but that President Hoover's stabilization program had checked the decline and speeded the recovery. Business is far more concerned with farm recovery than it realizes because the lack of balance between production and consumption is in large measure ascribable to low purchasing power on the farms. The process is a vicious circle.

Renewed Foreign Buying Favors Best Grade Of Rail Issues

Foreign buying is again reported in progress in sections of the stock market with indications that the best grade of rails are particularly favored in this instance. Reported European demand is supported by the evidences coming to money brokers of the transfer of substantial balances to New York in the last few days. The bulk of this money is understood to have come in from London, Paris, Amsterdam and Berlin. It is interesting to note incidentally that leading European exchanges have been heavy of late presumably in reflection of the purchase of dollars involved in the transfer of such funds.

The majority of financial oracles are not disposed to look for anything more than a quiet two-sided trading market for the next little while. They can see no immediate prospect for a resumption of bullish activities on any broad general front, but rather are inclined to look for the market to stabilize itself around current levels in a period of relative inactivity. Moreover the point is made that a strong bear crowd is operating in the market at the present, and that unlike a year ago, this element has something to work with. Technical conditions will probably shape the market's course for a spell with recurrent reactions and rallies looked for as stocks become alternately overbought and oversold.

In the face of sharp declines in prices of farm products the progress recorded by the agricultural machinery industry has been particularly impressive. Indications are that the initial quarter of this year constituted the best first quarter in the trade's experience and that further results for the year will continue to run well ahead of the results shown in 1929. Outstanding favorites in this group include International Harvester, Case Threshing and Deere, the latter on the New York Curb Market.

Considerable importance was attached to the announcement that a group headed by Lehman Bros. had purchased a substantial block of J. C. Penney common stock. The reason advanced in quarters close to the banking group for this commitment was that it was deemed a worthwhile chain store organization in which to have a large interest. From time to time reports were current to the effect that one of the leading mail order houses in the country was desirous of obtaining J. C. Penney & Co., but nothing concrete ever developed along these lines.

Although railroad equipment buying is showing signs of falling off, it is understood that General American Tank Car has sufficient business on its books to keep plants operating at a high rate of capacity until the fall starts. Aside from the business done along these lines, it is stated that the company is receiving a fair volume of business from other sources. In 1929 the company realized earnings of $7.56 a share on its capital stock and well informed interests believe that 1930 results will be favorably comparable with that figure.

To new interests which recently became identified with the Fox Film organizations is accredited much of the buying of Loew's around current levels. They are said to regard the latter as one of the strongest companies in the amusement field. Unofficial estimates place earnings of Loew's in the first half of the fiscal year above $5 a share, with indications that this figure will be more than doubled for the full year.

Buffalo Passes Minneapolis As Flour Leader

By B. C. FORBES

BUFFALO, May 8.—Which is the greatest flour center in the United States?

Your answer probably would be the same as mine was: Minneapolis. Wrong!

Buffalo this year has won that honor away from busy Minneapolis.

REVISITING this city after an absence of 10 years, one finds many impressive changes, many signs of solid growth. This growth is especially notable along industrial lines.

Time was when Buffalo was more of a commercial than a industrial center. It was steadily but rather slowly evolving as an industrial center before the World War. Since then its industrial expansion has been much more rapid.

IN NOT A FEW cities when one investigates what's what, the most common statement, where progress has been slow, is "What this city needs most of all is half a dozen first class funerals." That, I am told, was, in some measure, true of the Buffalo of yesterday, but is emphatically not true of the Buffalo of today. Some of the older generation heads have passed away and nearly all of those who remain are forward-looking rather than backward-looking, progressive rather than reactionary, cooperative with younger blood rather than obstructive.

WITH THE RISE of power of younger industrial, financial and commercial giants, there has developed a healthier civic spirit. Like many other cities, Buffalo has not been free from political influences not always beneficial to the best interests of the community. But here also a transformation has been going on and now the city's responsible men of affairs declare that Buffalo's future in this respect, as in other respects, has become distinctly more encouraging.

Seldom, indeed, have I visited a city having a greater measure of friendliness among the more important men of affairs. Buffalonians are more like Westerners than New Englanders or other Easterners in this regard. It is what, in addressing a large gathering of business men, I called a first-name community. Even the busiest men here take time to indulge in friendliness, to get together for social and civic purposes, to exercise public spiritedness.

IN MANY places that are not the homes of towering national enterprises, but are centers for subsidiaries or branches of mammoth corporations, the complaint is made that the heads of such subsidiaries and branches do not shoulder a fair share of local obligations, do not become active co-operative citizens, but attend strictly to their daily money-making duties and leave others to carry on in the public interest. One of the first things I was told here was that, with few exceptions, the heads of absentee-owned enterprises have made themselves an integral part of the community, playing a creditable part in unselfish movements fulfilling their civic duties most worthily.

Incidentally, I am told that a very distinct change has been made in the policies of important chain store companies in that their managers, instead of holding aloof and refusing to contribute either time or money to public movements, are now following a very different course. Heads of vast chains have discovered that public sentiment was turning against them because, as it was popularly phrased, "chain stores took out all they could get without putting anything back into a community."

Buffalo's gain in population in the last ten years has been only 65,000 to 573,000. But Buffalonians immediately explain this as the reason for this relatively modest showing:

"The city's boundaries have not been changed one inch in more than three-quarters of a century, whereas almost every other city in the land has greatly branched out. Teeming communities have sprung up outside our official city limits, communities which are really part and parcel of Buffalo, except that they operate under charters of their own. If we were to do as many other cities have done, extend our limits and take in these adjacent communities, our population would register an astounding increase."

Just why Buffalo has greatly expanded industrially is interesting. There is not space, however, to tell the facts today.

BIG ZINC PLANT FOR BEAVER

BEAVER, Pa., May 8.—The St. Josephs Lead Company of New York has leased 275 acres of land on the south side of the Ohio River, opposite Beaver, on which it plans to erect a $2,000,000 zinc mill, according to W. R. Jeffreys, of Potter Township, owner of the land.

Work will be begun at once and the plant will be in operation in October. Two hundred men will be employed within a short time on construction. One thousand men will be employed.

Zinc and by-products will be sold in the Pittsburgh district. Officials of the new plant, W. R. Raymer, chief engineer of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad Company, and Jeffreys, conferred with the board of Beaver County Commissioners yesterday relative to a right of way for the railroad along the road to the site of the new plant.

It was said the Pennsylvania Railroad has already reached an amicable agreement in the matter.

POWER OUTPUT INCREASING STEADILY

March Production Shows 2% Gain; Increase Noted In New York and Penna.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Despite encouraging indications from February results and preliminary reports of individual system operations, electric output for March failed to maintain the forward pace at the rate predicted. Continued slowness in the heavy industrial sections caused a spottiness in output of the various geographical divisions charted by the United States Geologic Survey so that the output for the country increased but 2 per cent in March over the corresponding 1929 month. This compared with a 5 per cent increase in January and 3 per cent in February. March production of energy of the country's public utility power plants was 8,164,030,000 k. w. h., A year ago, the output for the like month was 7,992,000,000 k. w. h.

PENNSYLVANIA GAINS

Average daily production of electricity during March was 263,400,000 k. w. h., about 3 per cent less than the average for February. The decline, however, is but the normal reduction from February to March, as indicated by the records from 1920 to 1929.

The greatest gains in current production were made in the states comprising the West, North Central and Middle Atlantic geographical divisions.

Both New York and Pennsylvania in the Middle Atlantic region showed a continuance of the higher output trend, with increases of 7 per cent each. In February, New York was up 6 per cent and Pennsylvania 2 per cent.

HYDRO OUTPUT

The country's output of electricity by water power still is below normal, although there was a substantial gain recorded in March over that for February. About 40 per cent of the total March production was by hydro equipment, compared with 35 per cent in February. Abnormal precipitation still prevails in many sections of the country, making for a record period of drought.

Despite the March slow-up, it is likely the industry will retain its inherent characteristic of new progress records yearly. One of the largest utility systems has reported output of nearly 9 per cent over April last year, and officials look for a definite upward trend in trend of electric consumption.

Biscuit Companies Plan Consolidation

SEATTLE, Wash., May 8.—(AP.)—The National Biscuit Company of New York has tendered an offer of 140,000 of its shares for the outstanding stock of the Pacific Coast Biscuit Company, according to Moritz Thomsen, chairman of the board of the Pacific Company.

The Coast Company has plants in Seattle, Spokane, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Tacoma, Sacramento and Portland.

"All Rundown — My Blood Impoverished"

Mrs. Sallie Beaver

Lancaster, Pa.—"I was all rundown. My blood was impoverished, my lower limbs would be cold and clammy due to poor circulation, and my stomach was weak and upset—I could not keep anything on it to speak of. I was too miserable for words when I began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it improved the condition of my blood, my circulation was better, and it also helped my stomach. I could eat without suffering distress. I could rest and sleep well at night, too, something I had not done for a long time. I can recommend the 'Discovery' to anyone who suffers from poor blood or a weak stomach."—Mrs. Sallie Beaver, 214 W. Walnut St.

Seasonal Upturn Expected for Quarter

NEW YORK, May 8.—Viewing industry as a whole, a higher level of industrial production and corporate profits is to be looked for in the second quarter than in the first, but improvement will be of no more than seasonal proportions and will be insufficient to bring returns of most industries within striking distance of their extraordinary good showing in the second quarter of last year, says the Standard Statistic Company. The report says the company sees no reason as yet for revising its earlier opinion that, providing outputs are carefully regulated in the interim, the second half of 1930 will witness a further recovery in general business. The extent of the recovery will be governed largely by the trend of agriculture. If new crops of wheat, cotton, etc., are of a size favorable to higher prices, the chances of marked trade expansion will be excellent. Conversely, if such yields are of sufficient volume to depress values further (and thus materially reduce prospective farm income) the general business picture will be less alluring.

U.S. STEEL RATE UNCHANGED

Steel ingot production has been reduced about 1 per cent in the past week with the industry now estimated at about 76½ per cent of capacity as against 77½ per cent in the previous week and a shade over 78 per cent two weeks ago.

United States Steel continues at a shade over 80 per cent, the same as last week, and around 81 per cent two weeks ago.

Independents are at 73 per cent, against 75 per cent a week ago and a fraction over 75 per cent two weeks ago.

At this time last year there was a reduction of 4 per cent in ingot production of the industry down to 97 per cent. The Steel Corporation was running practically at capacity, with independents at 98 per cent.

WHY BABIES GET POOR STARTS

Mothers Should Be Free From Poisons.

How can the child be healthy when the mother is sick? How can a mother feed a child the right kind of food when her own body is full of poisons?

Just look around you and see the large number of little, spindling and sore-ridden children that have never had half a chance to be strong and happy because their mothers could not give them the right start. And think of the large number that have had to give up the struggle to live, for the same reason.

A noted health evangelist says that most of the troubles of mothers reflecting themselves upon children are due to comparatively easily remedied causes, of which constipation and catarrh are the principal ones. It is said that usually the two are related. Often the constipation itself is a catarrhal condition. Anyhow, it results in the retention in the mother's body of the poisons that should be expelled. These enter into the blood stream, and must pollute the milk which forms the only food of the babe.

Therefore it is urged upon mothers and prospective mothers that they should free their bodies of catarrhal conditions, even if these seem only slight, and should be sure of a complete evacuation of the bowels at least twice a day. Three times is even better. Usually this can be accomplished by the proper use of Peruna Tonic, which is intended for catarrhal conditions and is usually a relief for constipation. It assists in digestion, helps purify the blood stream and is safe for women in expectation. A great many people say they have found it a wonderful purifier and strengthener. Peruna Tonic can be obtained of Dow's, May's & Liggett's, Mayflower, or at any other first class drug store. (A-13)

American Steel Foundries reports net income $1,019,459 for quarter ended March 31, after depreciation and federal taxes, etc., equal after preferred dividends to 91 cents a share on outstanding common, against $1,211,916 or $1.11 on common in 1929 quarter.

Darby Petroleum Corporation reports for year ended December 31, 1929, net profit of $1,155,582, after interest, depreciation, depletion, federal taxes, etc., equal to $1.13 a share on 1,019,302 no-par shares, compared with $893,556 in 1928, or $1.07 on 568,073 shares.

U.S. CORPORATE NET AT 1928 LEVELS

Quarterly Returns Are Lower Than 1929 But Above Two Years Ago; Groups Differ

NEW YORK, May 8.—Profits of industrial corporations in the first quarter of this year compare favorably with profits in the same period of 1928 and 1927 despite the fact that industrial production is lower than in either year and commodity prices have receded sharply. Net profits of the first 64 industrial and mining companies reporting to Dow, Jones & Co., for which four-year comparative figures are available, show first quarter earnings at $215,913,787 in 1930, compared with $279,587,874 in 1929, $220,285,389 in 1928 and $199,181,385 in 1927.

Showing of these 64 large and representative companies probably provides a fair index of the trends of industrial profits for the country at large. Profits of these companies were 23% lower in the first quarter of the current year than in 1929, a record year, 2% below 1928 and 8½% above 1927.

The accompanying table shows the profits according to groups of industries and reveals widely different trends. Thus the electric manufacturing companies and the two motion picture companies reported the most profitable first quarters in their histories this year, whereas the motor industry reported the lowest earnings in four years.

The chemical, food, mining and oil companies showed profits in the 1930 quarter nearly equal to 1929 and well ahead of the first quarters of 1928 and 1927.

In the miscellaneous group there was, of course, little unanimity of trend, although its general profits this year were favorable in comparison with 1929. If Du Pont were excluded from this group (Du Pont's drop in earnings being a reflection of lower General Motors dividends) the net profits for the remaining companies would be $19,381,795 against $24,286,793 in the 1929 first quarter, $21,112,670 in the 1928 period and $11,900,515 in 1927.

Pig Iron Business Better Than Shown

Although sales of pig iron in the New York district as announced each week have been running below last year, shipments have been holding up well and some interests report shipments equal to a year ago. The explanation of this apparent discrepancy is found in the amount of business being placed quietly, an example of which is seen in the placing of a 10,000-ton order in the Philadelphia district last week. Along the eastern seaboard this year there have been two such 10,000-ton orders placed this year, one or two for 7,500 tons and others for 5,000 tons. The aggregate of this business when added to publicly announced sales indicates a better condition than has been apparent.

Is there a World Leader in Your Family?

The capture of Fort Ticonderoga from the British by Ethan Allen, who is an outstanding example of "Hereditary Hyperkinesis." Descended from restless and energetic forebears, he made himself practically dictator of Vermont during the Revolutionary War, driving out both the British and the authorities of New York State, which then claimed the region.

Something interesting for you to think about—

How many members of your family will rise to great heights in national affairs—in the world of commerce and industry? Is there a modern Ethan Allen in your family—full of forceful, restless energy and leadership?—another Lincoln, Disraeli or Roosevelt? Have you ever taken inventory of your various qualifications? Let science help you. An interesting study of the careers of world famous men reveals that their restless energy and leadership came to them from "Hereditary Hyperkinesis."

Here is a recently discovered quality in people who are always starting new and important things in business, exploring new continents, breaking new ground in sciences and in the arts. It is worth knowing. A complete, easy-to-read and intensely interesting description of this newly discovered quality "Hyperkinesis" will be published next Sunday in The American Weekly. Read it aloud to the grown-ups in your family.

Where St. Paul Lived in Rome With His Soldier Jailer

The house in which St. Paul lived during his first captivity in Rome has been identified practically beyond question. It is the house which the great Apostle to the Gentiles occupied while he was converting the civilized nations of Europe to the Christian faith. It is the place of which St. Luke who accompanied St. Paul, writes in the Apostles, "but Paul was suffered to dwell by himself with a soldier that kept him." Father Parisi, Priest Archaeologist, has unearthed the very room the Apostle occupied, and the pillar to which his guardian chained him. Read the story of this remarkable discovery next Sunday in The American Weekly.

BRITAIN OPENS DISEASE FIGHT

LONDON.—So alarmed is the British government at the increasing deaths from tuberculosis due to milk infection that it is framing a bill to present before parliament copied from the statute at present in force in the United States.

Three thousand children are dying every year in Great Britain from tuberculosis contracted from milk and the government is spending about $23,000,000 annually in effective measures to combat the scourge. It is estimated that at least one-third of the tuberculosis which exists in England and Wales is due to infected milk.

Compulsory sterilization is not a law of this country but according to an official of the Ministry of Health it will be made a law on the lines now existent in America.

"The menace to public health was illustrated in a civil action which took place in Banff, Scotland. A cow which had been previously certified by a veterinary surgeon to be infected with tuberculosis was sold at auction the next day after certification and it was held in the Sheriff's Court that there was no law in existance which prevented the cow being sold; neither was there a law which prevented anybody selling the milk obtained from the animal.

"The danger to the public involved in this state of the law is indicated by the fact that of the 3,000,000 milk-producing cows and heifers in Great Britain, one million, according to expert opinion, would fail to pass the tuberculin test."

MEXICO HONORS 'GEN.' ZAPATA

MEXICO CITY.—General Emiliano Zapata used to be regarded as the hardest of all the revolutionaries that contributed to the downfall of the "aristocratic" republic of Mexico, but time is slowly lifting him into the realm of the heroes, statesmen and great liberators.

Zapata will in the future have a street named for him. The thoroughfare is now known as "las calles de la Moneda." The street was picked for the reason that the doughty Agrarian leader and bandit from Morelos lived at number 119 during the time he had control of the national capitol.

The house in question will carry a bronze tablet with the words "La ostentacion y el lujo corrompen a los hombres." "Show and luxury corrupt men." Zapata was very fond of this adage and used it whenever he could, being according to those who knew him best, the very peak his mind could reach in the realm of political philosophy.

The initiative for honoring Zapata in this manner was taken by the executive committee of the National League of Agrarian Communities. The same body is still active in a campaign that would induce the Federal government to suspend payment of interest on the bonds issued as compensation for land taken from large estates and given to the peasants.

Javelin Tosser To Do Battle On Crutches

OMAHA, Neb., May 8.—(AP.)—The sight of a javelin tosser hobbling forth on crutches to do battle for Tech high of Omaha may greet spectators at the Nebraska state high school track meet at Lincoln Friday.

Now Tech coaches who believe Jones is capable of winning the event and the state's doctor are considering taking his right leg in a plaster cast, taping it heavily and letting him hobble to the line on crutches.

Decision Certain In Title Battle

DETROIT, May 8.—(AP.)—Elmer (Slim) McClelland, referee of the world welterweight championship fight between Jackie Fields and Young Jack Thompson here tomorrow night, said today that he will not allow the bout to end in a draw decision.

"At the end of the fifteenth round Friday, if the bout should go the limit, I will declare one of the boys a winner, no matter how close the match is," McClelland said.

The referee's decision will not be subject to reversal by the State Boxing Commission.

NEW YORK, May 8.—(INS.)—Sammy Dorfman and Eddie Guida, New York lightweights, will box the semi-final at the Midget Wolgast-Willie La Monte 15-round world flyweight title bout here next week, it was announced today. Archie Bell and Domanico Bernasconi will clash in the opening 10-rounder.

Man o' War Sons Win at Pimlico

BALTIMORE, May 8.—(AP.)—Shades of Man o' War flashed over the Pimlico turf yesterday as the silks of Samuel D. Riddle carried off the honors.

Twice offsprings of the superhorse of 10 years ago, record past the judges' stand, flaunting the colors of the Philadelphia sportsman in the faces of classy fields of thoroughbreds. Alex Vite, a 2-year-old filly, was the first to score, earning her brackets in the first race—a four and one-half furlong dash for the 2-year-old misses.

The popular victory of the Riddle double, however, was that of Battleship Gray in the Pimlico graded handicap, class A, although the field was a small one, the 4-year-old son of America's most famous race horse lived up to the public's wants.

DAILY TRUE STORY

This was quite impossible.

Miss Watkins was 19. She looked like 16. It had been difficult for her to convince the hospital authorities that she was more than 12 when, three years before, she had started to learn nursing.

She was efficient. All of the doctors said that she had almost professional intelligence along with woman's natural instinct for attending the sick.

Yet she looked like a kid of 16 and she knew it.

There was old Major Zenobe who, when he came out of the ether, blinked at her and said: "Hey, Doc, what the so-and-so is this kid doing here?" Ollie never forgot that.

Ollie's people had objected when she determined to become a nurse.

Her aunt had been a nurse and Ollie always admired the aunt. It was the aunt who had a "serious talk" with her before the family.

"A pretty and lively little girl like you, Ollie," said the aunt, "so full of life and fun ought never to become a nurse."

"Why not? Isn't it a helpful and honorable vocation?"

"Yes, of course, but my child—"

"I'm not a child. Grandma was married and had mother when she was my age—"

"Listen to auntie," Ollie's father said sharply.

"A nurse sees so much," auntie went on, "so much of pain and suffering and death, but they see so much of the seamy side of life, of maternity cases and cranky dying men, of amputations—"

Ollie's people nodded.

'Hard Boiled'

Aunty went into details that made the others flinch, all except Ollie. She nodded gravely.

"The result is, Ollie, a nurse gets hardened. She sees so much of—of what I have described," auntie shrugged.

"I know, but I knew anyway—we're made that way, the sexes, and—"

"It is better to just cover all such details with the one word, 'biology,' my dear. You see, nurses so often get hard-boiled there is no romance in life for them."

"I want to be a nurse. If I wanted romance I'd get married or be an artist or novelist or something. I don't want to get married. I am never going to marry. I'm going to be a nurse."

Mr. Watkins leaned back in his morris chair and said: "This is the Watkins strain. Ollie will do as she has planned to do."

And so Ollie became a nurse and probably a score of young men who made honorable and valiant efforts to induce her to give up hospital work and take up the more universal vocation of housewife were keenly disappointed.

Being a full-fledged nurse made Ollie proud.

She felt very superior to the sick woman who came under her care. Most of them had been stupid. Too many sweets led to many illnesses. Others had been on too many booze parties or had been on the go, socially, too long. They weren't clever women, she decided.

As for the men—most of them were childish. They couldn't stand pain as well as the women. They were stubborn or petty or cranky. She was glad she had become a nurse and learned the truth about men.

Ollie had to do her share of night work along with the others. She rather preferred it. Most patients slept a great deal at night and she could read quietly in the corner by the little light. In the daytime patients needed, or at least demanded, more attention.

"Take D 4, Miss Watkins," the head nurse said when Ollie came in from the nurses' dormitory.

Doctor Arnson was just coming out.

"Automobile accident. Miss Watkins. He'll sleep until two, then give him another opiate. One of his ribs nearly punctured his heart; couldn't prolong the operation; too dangerous; bad case," the doctor explained.

Paradise!

Doctors who knew Ollie always explained, because she maintained that one could do more efficient nursing if the details were known.

"Yes, doctor. How long will he last?"

She knew that when the doctors spoke like that they meant that the patient would undoubtedly be "lost." Patients in hospitals never die. That word is seldom used there. If they cease living, they are "lost."

The doctor arched his eyebrows.

"Day—Perhaps."

Ollie went into the private room. Miss Yeaton, the day nurse, smiled with relief.

The man's name was Hale.

She studied him a moment. His face was dark and his hair was light. That meant that he was out of doors a great deal. He seemed to be breathing too irregularly for one given a powerful opiate. However, that was up to the doctor. The second opiate was in readiness to be administered at two, if—

Young and strong, rather too bad to lose him, but there were too many reckless drivers—better the drivers be killed than innocent pedestrians.

Ollie sat by the night lamp and read.

At one o'clock she looked at him again. She didn't like the way he was breathing. It didn't seem like an opiate-induced sleep.

She went back to her book. It was an interesting biography. Ollie loved biography.

Well, well.

It was a rather deep but musical voice that came from the cot. Ollie put the book down and arose swiftly.

So this is Paradise!"

He was still under the influence of the opiate Ollie thought, and she would administer the other.

"I know," said the man, "that you wear the garb of a nurse and that you have camouflaged these surroundings to look like a hospital room, but you can't fool me; this is Paradise. Nowhere this side of Paradise could there be so beautiful a girl."

Take this, Ollie said sharply. She was glad the light wasn't any brighter. Her cheeks were burning.

Amazing Case

"What is it?"

"Medicine to cure you."

Ollie had to talk that way to men; they were so childish.

"You can't fool me—it's an opiate. They gave me one before and I don't need any more."

"Any pain?" Ollie knew that if he didn't feel much pain he would likely still be half doped.

"Pain? Bliss—perfect bliss, just watching you."

"Quiet, please—you've been hurt."

"I know it. I was there at the time."

He was sleeping well when Ollie was relieved in the morning.

The next night Ollie was directed to D4.

"What is the case?" she asked.

"Same one Miss Watkins. Dr. Arnson says it's an amazing case."

The doctor came in, made an examination and said: "Well, Mr. Hale, you had one chance in a thousand and made the grade. We will have you out of here in a week."

"Hot or cold, I suppose?"

Mr. Hale laughed.

"And next time don't drive into elevated pillars. They are not very elastic."

"Believe it or not, I hadn't been drinking, Doc, and I want your help if the cops try to take my license—"

"You hadn't been drinking, Mr. Hale, we know that. What puzzles me is why, in broad daylight, you drove into—"

"Just a whim. Forget it, Doc."

Ollie went out to the corridor with the doctor.

"Strange case—he's all right now. We know why he drove into the pillar—he did it to avoid striking an elderly lady. Change the dressing at midnight, let him talk if he wishes."

"Yes, doctor."

Taboo Subjects

"What did Doc tell you to do?" Mr. Hale asked when Ollie went back.

"He said to let you talk, but if you insist on such silly things as you said last night I won't listen."

"Sorry, I was a bit light headed, but I realized that you were beautiful—"

"Taboo," Ollie said sharply, and then, "Evidently you do not believe in the survival of the fittest."

"Sure do. Why?"

"You smashed yourself instead of running into an old lady who had probably lived her span of usefulness."

"That's taboo, also, young lady."

"But you did."

"What worries me is whether my crowd up at my place in the Berkshires will look after my kennels properly."

"I can plug in a telephone."

"Bless your sweet heart, you are as brainy as you are charming and beautiful and, taboo or no taboo, you're the prettiest, realest, peachiest little girl I ever saw—"

Ollie brought in the telephone and plugged it in.

Her aunt, the one who was a nurse, called. She had been head nurse there for years and was always welcomed. While Mr. Hale was telephoning Ollie's aunt told her something.

Ollie went back, took the telephone away when he had finished, leaned over and with tear-wet eyes said, "Mr. Hale, I am going to kiss you!"

He seemed amazed and stammered, "W-why?"

"Because," Ollie sobbed, "that was my mother you didn't run into the other day when you smashed into the 'L' pillar!"

Mr. Hale held her a moment and returned her kiss.

"No more tears, little girl. When I get out of here I have very important work to do. I've got to arrange some way to make your mother my mother-in-law!"

Low-Cost Flood Control Suggested to Government

A review of a report of a flood-control survey of the Allegheny and Monongahela watersheds by United States engineers—the review having been prepared by the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh—is an exhaustive document, revealing the extensive work the commission is doing for Pittsburgh and other river towns, as well as the technical facts of the matter in extensive detail.

Recently completed, it has been submitted to Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of engineers, Department of War, to be placed at the disposal of engineers preparing reports similar to the one reviewed, which sets up an estimate of cost considered excessive by the Pittsburgh Flood Commission. The motive, it is assumed, is to prevent, if possible, an abortive result culminating 20 years of work of the commission in promoting regulation of the Allegheny, Monongahela and upper Ohio rivers.

The review states the first of its objects is "to ascertain the reasons for the apparent discrepancies between the findings of these two reports," the reference being to reports of the Pittsburgh Flood Commission and the United States Army engineers, which concluded that the proposed flood control plan by reservoir system was uneconomic because of the excess of cost over the estimated benefit, which the commission states should be $95,000,000.

The review sets up the claim that the benefits are underestimated and the cost could be reduced by a reduction of the plan of the Army engineers, from an estimated $96,000,000 to $58,000,000. This would leave the excess of benefits over cost at such a figure as to make the flood control project justifiable on an economic ground, the commission claims.

It suggests that "further detailed studies of flood protection by reservoirs should be undertaken, particularly with reference to benefits therefrom," further suggesting that they be based on a modification the United States Army engineers' system. Data to indicate such modification would be feasible and adequate for the intended purpose are part of the review.

The public, of course, will hope that the Flood Commission be successful in its effort to obtain relief for the district from the enormous cost of meeting flood damage.

Threatened Reduction of Naval Workers Surprising

Announcement from the Navy Department that more than 1,000 skilled workmen will be laid off during the next 30 days at the Washington, Brooklyn and Mare Island Navy yards will come as a painful surprise to the country.

This threatened reduction is in complete contrast with the course urged upon private enterprise by the administration. Ever since the slump in the stock market last autumn the administration has been appealing to the business world to exert every effort to avoid reduction of employes or salaries.

In view of these appeals the administration would seem to be bound to practice what it preaches. And that is far from what the Navy Department will be doing if it lays off hundreds of men all over the country just when prosperity is returning.

It is denied that the ratification of the London naval treaty has anything to do with these proposed reductions. It is contended that at the Washington yard the force has caught up with all the orders for guns and gun mounts.

It is contended that at the other yards new construction is nearing completion and that vital changes in the designs of the new cruisers will delay progress on them for several months.

If that is really the situation it would seem that the cooperation of Congress should be enlisted to provide appropriations for repairs and maintenance and odd jobs that will keep these forces of skilled workmen intact until they are required several months hence.

Here is an opportunity for the administration to give the country a practical demonstration of that intelligent and scientific planning to prevent unemployment that the administration has been commending to private enterprise.

If the administration, with all the hundreds of millions of dollars that it is spending on public works cannot find ways and means of keeping a thousand surplus workmen at the Navy yards employed for several months the country will rightly come to the conclusion that Washington is better at preachment than practice.

While on the other hand, if the administration insists upon laying off these hundreds of workmen, the country may well come to the conclusion that the administration thinks more of making a cheap and tawdry play to the pacifist element of the country, or of endeavoring to influence the Senate in regard to the London naval treaty, than it does to carrying out its own promises and purposes with respect to the vital matter of restoring prosperity.

Zyxx, Zzyzz and Zzzyn

And the State of the Nation,

There is a fascination about matters of no importance, which, we suppose, accounts for many things published in the guise of "news."

Here, for example, is an item far more interesting to millions of Americans than the tariff, or the naval treaty, or farm relief:

"Pedro Zyxx holds the undisputed cellar position in the new city directory in San Francisco, but he has nothing on Mr. Kantules Xanthafulos when it comes to unusual names.

"Chicagos' telephone directory offers A. Zzynck as its parting shot. In the Manhattan (New York) telephone directory Zebediah Z. Zzyz had the honors until R. Cantarrana Zzyzz and Margot Wilson Zzzyn had telephones installed."

That won't settle the fate of the nation or shape history. But people will read about it where they will yawn over the President's latest address on the business outlook, or say "Yeah?" to the sugar import duties.

An Alibi

For Many,

Out where the West begins—or used to—a trombone player was sued the other day for back alimony. His defense was that he had lost all his teeth, and his false set blew out of his mouth whenever he attempted to perform on his melodious instrument. Thus his occupation was gone—he was unable to make a living. Who could expect him to pay alimony?

The reason seems conclusive. We recommend it to divorced husbands who find the monthly check to their ex-wives irksome. Not all are trombone players, but many can use the alibi. Take train announcers, for instance, or insurance salesmen, or radio crooners,

Or Senators,

Not So Hot

Real Americans will approve this cartoon of Mr. Harry Murphy's. It is just the sort of reception that the London naval pact deserves at the hands of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The public will applaud because this sort of reception means that before the treaty leaves the Senate it will be the subject of closest study and inspection.

It means that all the secret negotiations that preceded the calling of the London conference, and all the secret communications that passed between the Hoover administration and the conferees, all the diplomatic "give and take," and all the facts surrounding the parleying, will be brought out on the table and placed in full public view.

Uncle Sam never has lost a war and never has won a conference. The nation is entitled to know the "inside" of the London conference.

A GREAT TELESCOPE

By Archibald Henderson

An epochal event was the decision of the International Education Board to make provision for the construction of a 200-inch telescope and an astrophysical observatory for the California Institute of Technology. The increase in the knowledge of the universe, which will be accomplished by this colossal fact-finder of the cosmos, is beyond the powers of human computation.

It is impossible to predict, save most inadequately, what this new telescope, with the aid of new technical devices, may accomplish in enlarging our knowledge of the visible universe.

More light! That is the eternal cry of the astronomer. The astronomer is not a physicist, but an astrophysicist. He must study the physical constitution of the stars—their material density, constitution, temperature, mass, distance, radiation, gravitational influence and countless other qualities. It is one of the penalties of his profession that he must prosecute his studies at enormous distances from the objects studied. He cannot, like the physicist, study the object in the laboratory—the star refuses to be lassoed and brought down to earth.

The need for more light is crucial, for the earth is surrounded by what is known as an atmosphere. It is a sort of filmy veil, reducing the light of the stars by almost 50 per cent and affecting its quality appreciably in many other respects.

In order to secure more light it is necessary to build larger and ever larger telescopes. By securing more light it will be possible to photograph many stars and nebulae which are now inconceivably faint. The added light will not only give us greater knowledge of the extent and form of the universe, but will actually bring into view new universes inconceivably remote from us.

Enormous advances in astronomy have been made by means of the great 100-inch telescope on Mount Wilson. The new telescope now building will be a 200-inch telescope, which will have four times the mirror surface. The surface of the new telescope will be nearly 240 square feet in area, and will bring into view stars at least five to ten times fainter than can be studied at present.

With the 100-inch telescope stars of the twenty-second magnitude have been photographed. With the new telescope stars of almost the twenty-fifth magnitude will come under observation.

Just what this means may be illustrated by an example. The brightness of a star of the twenty-fifth magnitude is about equal to that of a standard candle flame of the same color seen at a distance of 41,000 miles, or one-sixth of the distance of the earth to the moon.

Some of the accomplishments of the 100-inch telescope seem astounding enough. A year or so ago for example, a small spiral nebulae near one of the poles of the Milky Way was observed. It was found to be moving away from the earth at the astounding rate of nearly 2,500 miles a second, nearly double the velocity of any cosmical object hitherto observed.

Imagine, then, how deep into the interstellar spaces the new telescope will enable the vision of man to plunge! It will add hundreds of millions to the number of stars within our universe which can be photographed and measured for brightness. It will show nebulae at a distance of something like 400,000,000 light years!

Whereas we can now secure accurate distances for only five or six of the fainter nebulae, the new telescope will furnish reliable distances for 25 or 30 nebulae, and valuable information for some two hundred.

The new telescope, in very truth, will be the great Cyclopean eye of the world.

By Elsie Robinson

How much change can you stand?

What does change do to your life?

Does it stimulate you—fire you with new ambition—give you new birth? Or does it disgust and depress you—terrify you—make you hide for safety?

Marcus Hindus has written a great, strong book about Russia. It is called "Humanity Uprooted," and it tells how Russia fares in the throes of her tremendous change. In preface, Hindus quotes these lines from Bulgakov:

For some an epilogue."

Change—for some a prologue, for some an epilogue—which is it for you? Does change start you in—or finish you off?

Don't dismiss these questions lightly. They are the most serious questions in life. Creatures that will not change have always perished. Consider the dinosaurs—those huge reptiles which once ruled the earth before men. Change came upon the dinosaurs—as it has come upon Russia—as it has come upon you and me. The dinosaurs had been created in the world's dawning, they were creatures of the swamps, of slimy ooze and steamy air. But the young earth cooled. The ice cap came and the climate shifted and the vast beasts, with their pin point brains, could not shift with it. So they and their kind passed from the scene. Only a tiny ratlike creature survived—and became the grandfather of all mammals and, eventually, of man. It survived because it could adopt itself to change.

All about you, human beings are perishing today, as the dinosaurs perished, and for the same reason. Change is their epilogue. They cannot adjust. They don't want to adjust. They are too lazy, too complacent, too cowardly. But, of course, they don't admit that.

They say, instead, that change is silly, or wicked—that the old ways are the best ways—that what was good enough for father is good enough for them. So they excuse and rationalize their sluggishness to themselves. But life doesn't give a hoot for their excuses. Slowly, inexorably, she wipes their stubborn, flabby lives out of the picture.

And, speaking of lives, how about yours? Getting on pretty well? Or are you bogged? If so, what's holding you? Life—or some trait in your own self? Some streak of intolerance you won't give up—some streak of laziness or fear or conceit?

Change—all about you it's going on. Going on, further, faster than it has ever gone before in human history. Are you going on with it? Or are you going to do a dinosaur?

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

This here story ain't so good since they've built concrete roads all over the country, but maybe there's still some places where there's mud puddles in the roads. There used to be plenty of them.

There was a cowboy that was just starting in the business. In fact, he come from Yale to Oklahoma and started to outfit himself up pretty. He bought a beautiful little mare from a horse dealer at Okmulgee, and in two days he was back again.

"Say," he says to the dealer, "do you think you could trade me something else for this here mare?"

"Maybe so. But you wont' get a prettier animal in Oklahoma than that there mare."

"Oh, yes," he says, "she's pretty, all right. But somebody's been telling her about it. She wants to stop and admire herself in every mud puddle we come to. Can't you sell me a homely one, or a he-horse maybe?"

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE—By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells

H. G. Wells

In the weight of his brain (and brain development is by far the most important difference between ape and man) he is almost precisely half-way between the largest ape brains known, those of large gorillas, and the smallest, normal human brains, to be found among Australian aborigines.

He possessed huge browridges over his eyes, like a gorilla, but walked upright like a man. Then there is the Piltdown man, unearthed in Sussex obviously a man and not an ape, but so different from ourselves as to demand being put in a new genus, Eoanthropus or Dawn-Man.

Quite recently, remains of another genus of men, Sinoanthropus, have been discovered in China, with teeth half-way between some of the earliest species of modern man and chimpanzee; in various ways he seems to have resembled the man of Piltdown.

Three other extinct types of men which, though admitted to the same genus as ourselves, clearly belong to different species, are Heidelberg man (Homo heidelbergensis), without a chin and with a jaw of extraordinary massiveness, Rhodesian man (H. rhodesiensis), with browridges heavier than in any existing human beings, and a brain that today would be definitely subnormal; and Neanderthal man (H. neanderthalensis).

This last is the only extinct species of man of whom as yet we possess abundant material. The reason for this was that he buried the bodies of his dead.

Other species of bygone men, it seems, were left to moulder where they died, like animals; but the Neanderthalers laid out some at least of their dead in their caves and put tools and implements beside them and buried them, presumably because they did not believe life was wholly ended, and so put these things for the use of the departed if and when he or she awoke again.

It is rash to guess too precisely what ideals led to these interments. They had ideas and doubts about death no doubt that resulted in burial. That is as much as we can say of creatures so remote from ourselves.

The majority of Neanderthal skeletons so far discovered owe their preservation to this disposition.

In spite of this human habit of interment the Neanderthalers were distinctly less human than we; they had heavy brow-ridges, no chin, large teeth—though their canines were less ape-like than ours—head thrust forward on a thick neck, and their short, bent thighs compelled them to walk bandy-legged, with their weight on the outer side of their feet.

Many of the implements ascribed to extinct human species are so big as to be unwieldy by any living race of men.

All these extinct human and sub-human forms are of Pleistocene age (V E), save possibly for Piltdown man, who may (though it is unlikely) date back to the Pliocene (V D).

Their remains, until we come to the Neanderthalers, are mostly found in gravels that may have been disturbed and redeposited and so are exceptionally hard to date. They are probably only a small fraction of the quasi-human species that still await discovery.

Some that have existed may forever escape record, for such intelligent creatures could have been rarely drowned or bogged or otherwise preserved for us.

Earlier, as far back as the Miocene period (V C), there existed in Europe a creature christened Dryopithecus, which obviously is to be put in the same group with the living, man-like apes. But its teeth, though differing from our own in many ways, have a pattern which is more like that of the various extinct species of man than it is like that of modern apes.

Thus the fossil evidence, even though it be fragmentary, is uncompromisingly consistent with the idea that man also is a product of Evolution.

What does an investigation committee do when it's doing it?

Who appoints them? And who appoints him? When they go into executive session why do they take a caddy along with them?

It is our fervent misquotation that all big business in this neck-of-the-woods is done on golf links.

Any time you want to consult a bank president you have got to chase him across a terrain of raging divots.

Most of the state officials are in the surfless sand of the ever-blooming bunkers that dot the countryside. A politician in the rough is a man who changes his statement with every club.

A capitalist in the woods slices accidentally to the fairway and meets an international promoter niblicking himself from hazard to hazard.

So they merge. The result is a 16,000,000-share day on Wall street and a panic that started with a topped mashie crack.

If you want to work your way by uneasy stages to the high rung of the financial and political world buy yourself a pair of baggy bloomers and join the jerky putters of the suburbs.

Civic and state politics used to be run from the back rooms of corner saloons.

Now they use the locker system.

A foursome consists of one executive and three efficiency experts. A twosome is a racketeer and his lawyer. A onesome is a man who inherited his business from his father and doesn't want any partners.

And when you see a threesome trudging the weary hills you know that two of them are trying to keep the other guy away from the telephone.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 8.—New York has a big army of swivel chair adventurers—dreamers chained to skyscraper desks who ride broomsticks into imaginary lands. In their rationalist world they hunger for the jungle, the veldt and the wild places they will never see.

There are a hundred little nooks harboring filibusters who plot revolutions that will not be realized over speakeasy tables. The Campfire Club in New York is one of the biggest organizations of its kind in the world. It satisfies an echo of cliff-dwelling romanticists.

Men who have scarcely crossed the island's boundary lines sit about in pop-eyed eagerness to hear Conradian accounts of the exploits of explorers, tiger and elephant hunters who have returned to a placid civilization after riding with Death along outer rims of the world.

Nearly all the backers of the Byrds, the Steffansons and other intrepid wanderers are men whose lives are attuned to the bump of street cars and the honk of motors. No spot in the world was so deeply interested in the search of Kermit Roosevelt for the giant panda as New York.

There are innumerable men who spend relaxing hours in the huge sporting goods establishments, prowling about examining guns, pup tents and out-of-door cooking outfits. Many equip themselves for expeditions and wind up lolling on the sands of Palm Beach.

One rich man, confined to a wheel chair as the result of a collegiate football accident, has an elaborately equipped gun room in his gloomy mansion on upper Fifth avenue. He spends many hours there dreaming. Hundreds of metropolites own packs of hunting dogs they never use.

The lure of adventure is responsible too for many who roam the queer lost streets of the town after midnight. Every policeman on an isolated patrol knows them. They are stalking—and a little pathetically—the thrill that is as elusive as the rainbow.

Ruth Etting, the blues crooner, is credited with the record for learning her part—four songs, many lines and "business"—in the shortest time. She was engaged 24 hours before a musical show opened and swept through her role without a slip.

The memorizing art is highly developed among magazine editors too. One, whom the literary world knows as "R. L.", reads a manuscript in chunks of several paragraphs. He requires only a second or so for each page, skimming through them with lightning rapidity and those who try to trip him regarding details have failed.

My nomination for the most annoying pests hereabouts are those who grow facetious at expense of waiters and waitresses. The other night in 50th street a waiter who had endured a barrage of wise cracks suddenly jerked off his apron. "I have been forced to wait on you," he said with a deadly calm, "but I don't have to submit to uncalled for insults." And he uncorked a sock to the jaw—and walked out amid an outburst of hand claps, the head clapper being none other than this correspondent.

I was last night the victim of a practical joke that has been played on several recently. In a cafe I often patronize I was by pre-arrangement seated facing a "planted" magician. My attention was first called to him when after taking a bite of food he pulled a strip of bright red ribbon out of his mouth and continued to eat unconcernedly. Next his four in hand tie changed from bright green to pink and the climax was when he lifted the lid off an en casserole dish and a canary flew out. It was all nice clean fun I suppose but they better send someone around to uncross my eyes.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

Men are invariably honest about their ages. Women never are. Somehow youth doesn't seem to be the asset to men that it is to women. Men tell you truthfully how old they are, and you can take them or leave them, as you like. Some women do both.

A woman changes her age each time she tells it. You meet her 10 years after you left the old home town, and she tells you she is a year younger than she was when you went away. She probably doesn't expect you to believe it, but there it is! They add birthdays and at the same time subtract years. Only the nimble witted can do that.

A current play informs us that old men "believe everything you tell them, and sleep 18 hours a day."

If that is so, what is it that we see congealed in easy chairs, in the windows of these fine clubs, that have the appearance of old men?

They look as if you'd have a difficult time making them believe ANYTHING. But it would never occur to them to lie about their ages. Seventy-five—eighty—it doesn't matter.

Women like the mystery of the thing. They want to have something you have to guess about, and with clothes just what they are, their ages are about all that you don't actually KNOW. So a woman of 18 says she is 23. One of 35 says she is 25, and one of 40 is 30.

"But, Mandy, you don't look that old," the court told her.

"Are you sure?"

"Yas, I'se sure," she told him.

"Jedge, I made a mistake. That 73 is ma bust measure."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Do you bore your friends with requests for assistance?

Are you always seeking their recommendation or a note to meet this and that notable whom you do not know, in order to gain a business audience?

If friends wish to help you they will if they know what you want.

If they don't offer they don't want to assume responsibility for such introduction.

You won't increase the friendship if you take things in your own hands and deliberately asked for it.

It is embarrassing to refuse and is distasteful to anyone to know that they are used as a leverage to gain business for another.

A certain degree of help that way may be offered, but many persons expect and demand too much.

Why not stand on your own feet and gain more respect.

Asking assistance in little troublesome matters which should be met by the individual weakens the one who relies on such methods.

The longer you follow the practice the less able you will be to help yourself.
